SUCCOP TAKES STAND IN QUIZ

Today

Diligent in His Business.
Henry Ford Pays a Visit.
Earned $3.50 Per Week.
Makes Thought Reality.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

DETROIT, Mich., April 20.

THE MOUNTAIN came to Mohammed on this Sunday with a vengeance, when Henry Ford drove in from Dearborn, to visit this writer at the Book-Cadillac Hotel.

Looking remarkably well, thoroughly sunburned, after a short stay with Edison in Florida, Henry Ford talks of his old friend with reverent affection. You cannot make him believe that he, Ford, has done anything in particular, although he is the most useful man born in this country since Lincoln.

The happiness that he has conferred on old men, women and young children, in the production of 20,000,000 automobiles and his usefulness to the nation, are known only to the Angel Gabriel.

Ford is interested, not at all in past achievement, only in things that he plans to do, and they are innumerable. May he live past 100 and have plenty of time for them all.

FORD REALIZES that he is a slave and quotes, smiling, what President Coolidge said to him in the White House:

"I can get out of my job, Mr. Ford, but you can't get out of yours."

Ford has on his shoulders a terrific weight and responsibility. Frankenstein was nothing compared to the responsibility of leadership in the nation's greatest industry, yet he is actually creating more work.

MR. FORD spoke with admiration of Calvin Coolidge's articles published in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and many other newspapers throughout the country. This writer offered Mr. Ford on behalf of the Hearst organization $150,000 a year, for 300 words a day! over his own signature. Said Ford:

"The pay is a great temptation, but I am going to remain free, and don't intend to be tied down to regular work."

Henry Ford's net profits in 1930, an off year, were more than $44,000,000, as shown in a report filed in Massachusetts, and he does not actually NEED $150,000 more. Nevertheless, he may be persuaded to write regularly, if not daily.

CONCERNING THAT important word "FREEDOM" Mr. Ford said something that should encourage fathers and mothers of small boys inclined to have their own way.

"I ran away from school, when I was little and I ran away from home over in Dearborn when I was 16, and got a job about six blocks from here in a machine shop. I have been in a machine shop ever since.

"They paid me $2.50 a week. I couldn't quite live on that so I worked in a jewelry store every night from 7 to 9:30 for $1 a week. That gave me $3.50 a week. I got good board and lodging for $3 a week, and had 50 cents left for luxuries and extravagances."

YOUNG GENTLEMEN who think the world owes them a living, whereas, to quote Henry Ford, "it owes them only a chance to make a living," will notice the difference between $3.50 a week and 44 millions profit in an off year.

They should also notice that if he had not done his best for $2.50 in a machine shop, and every night in the jewelry store for $1 a week, he would be somebody's dissatisfied old employe now, instead of making $44,000,000 in an off year.

MR. FORD is interested in making fertilizers, extracted from his ovens in the process of changing 12,000 tons of coal into coke every day. Ammonia phosphate, a by-product, makes things grow.

He is interested in his new chemical laboratory developing "new uses for farm products." Says he:

"You must come and spend two days in the laboratory."

INSTEAD OF complaining about conditions, business men should be grateful for what they have, according to Ford.

"Everything is all right up to this second. It is our business to make a change."

He doesn't say WHAT change.

HE TELLS of a recent talk with Gerard Swope, president of General Electric, whom he calls "the best salesman in America." The talk included Russia, and Ford said:

"The Russians pay their bills, and have a right to make their own experiments, as long as they don't interfere with ours."

AFTER AN hour and a half talk, he returns to Dearborn, where he was born, an American boy with no better chance at the start than any one of a million boys, now starting.

As he left he said:

"Going to Chicago tonight? Say hello to Julius Rosenwald if you see him."

HENRY FORD, thinking hard throughout every working hour, possesses power to change thought into reality. A blessed gift.

He thinks he is free, but he is the slave of his own genius. His only happiness is achievement, as is the case with all men that do work worth while.

Men driving tractors, now plowing up a thousand acres of Ford's farm at Dearborn, for experiments with soybeans and other crops, need not envy Henry Ford. They have more "fun" and leisure than he has.

He does not envy them, or any one, for he is "a man diligent in his business."

BUTLER LINE SERVICE ENDED

Residents Lose Fight for Road in Court Order; Last Car Runs Wednesday

Twenty-seven thousand or more persons will be without direct interurban transportation to Pittsburgh at midnight, Wednesday, as result of the ruling of Judge Frank P. Schoonmaker in U. S. District Court today, allowing total abandonment of the Butler Short Line Railroad.

Action asking for abandonment was brought by Maurice R. Scharff, U. S. receiver for the line, who claimed the road was unsafe and could never show a profit. About 45 persons will be thrown out of employment by the order.

The grant of Judge Schoonmaker ends the life of a line originally formed of several small electric railway companies by the late R. H. Boggs, founder of Boggs & Buhl department store, as a feeder for his business from outlying boroughs as far north as Butler. It had been taken over by a firm headed by Attorney Frank I. McCahill, along with the Butler, Harmony and Pittsburgh electric railroad.

It recently passed into the hands of the receiver with the Harmony route. Scharff claimed the Short Line could not be rehabilitated except at prohibitive cost, and that the route, competing with new automotive transportation, could never pay its way.

The decision of Judge Schoonmaker automatically ends action brought by the road before the Public Service Commission, pleading for abandonment of the line between Butler and Mars. The hearing was to be held in Butler, Friday.

DELAY REFUSED

The request of Attorneys John H. Wilson, John B. Graham and George Langfitt, representing residents along the route, for continuance of the hearing until after the Public Service Commission hearing in Butler Friday on the proposal to abandon the line north of Mars was denied by Schoonmaker. The original plea for

Du Pont Scion Takes Ticket Selling Job

PHILADELPHIA, April 20.—(AP.)—A. Felix du Pont, Jr., of Wilmington, Del., son of the vice president of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., has gone to work at a salary of $20 a week.

It was learned today he intends to make aviation his career and is acting as a dispatcher at the Washington terminal of the New York, Philadelphia and Washington Airway Corporation to learn the business from the bottom up. His job is to sell tickets and direct passengers to the planes for this city and New York.

King's Pet Dog Dies; Only Parrot Left

WINDSOR, England, April 20—(AP.)—Snip, who often followed King George in the corridors of Buckingham Palace or the grounds, is dead. He has been buried in Norfolk beside Caesar, a dog who was in King Edward's funeral procession. Snip was a Cairn terrier. The only pet the King has now is Charlotte, an old parrot.

Stockholders Approve Steel Pension Plan

HOBOKEN, N. J., April 20.—(INS.)—Stockholders of the United States Steel Corporation at their annual meeting held here today formally adopted the revised pension plan proposed by Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the finance committee.

This approval gives the directors and members of the finance committee the right to retire an official between the ages of 65 and 70.

James A. Farrell, president of the corporation, said that in his opinion the pension plan was the greatest thing that the corporation had done with respect to the welfare of its men in its entire history.

Incidentally, Farrell, who is 68 years, will be forced into retirement not later than February 15, 1933, his seventieth birthday, although under the terms of the revised plan he may be retired at any time prior to that date.

In commenting upon the profit-sharing plan of the corporation, Chairman Taylor brought out that during the 10 years, from 1921 until the present time, distributions have been made annually except in 1921 and 1922. The average amount distributed during the eight-year period totaled $3,112,168.

At the meeting, which was called to order at once, the total number of shares represented by person and proxy aggregated 7,453,675, of which 5,392,915 were common shares and 2,060,760 were preferred.

George F. Baker retained his position as the largest individual stockholder, with a total of 87,000 common shares, a slight decrease from the 90,000 shares held a year ago. Other large holdings were those of Myron C. Taylor with 27,822 shares, George F. Baker, Jr., with 20,421 shares, and Nathan L. Miller 4,140 shares.

QUELL REVOLT IN HONDURAS

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, April 20.—(INS.)—The federal government of Honduras announced this afternoon that the rebel outbreak on the Atlantic Coast was "under control" as the result of "energetic measures" taken to stamp out the insurrection.

Lack of an able leader among the rebel chieftains was held responsible for early collapse of the insurrection, which grew out of unrest over employment conditions.

Pittsburghers Feel Alarm Over Kin in Honduras

Concern was felt today by Mr. and Mrs. Russell Frazier, of 215 Homewood avenue, over the safety of their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Averre, who are living in Porto Cortello, Honduras, in the heart of the revolutionary outbursts.

Mr. Frazier said he has not had word from the young couple since news of the birth of a grandchild was radioed here last week.

Mr. Frazier said:

"We're not really worried about them, since my daughter and her husband have both seemed capable of taking care of themselves. It is strange, however, that we haven't had word of them. They must realize that we would get news of the revolution."

Mrs. Averre was Margaret Frazier. She had traveled extensively, her father said, and after finishing at Miss Thurston's school, she enrolled at the University of Louisiana, where she met Mr. Averre, who was an engineering student.

They were married last June following Mr. Averre's appointment to an engineering post with the Truxilla Railroad of Honduras, and they left here immediately after the wedding.

GIRL HANGED TO TREE BY STRANGLER

Knot in Rope and Army Blanket Only Clues to Killer of Store Clerk

SAN DIEGO, Cal., April 20.—(AP.)—The death of comely 17-year-old Louise Teuber and the lack of clues to the slayer, who apparently strangled her and then hanged her nude body to a tree puzzled police here today.

The body was found by a picnic party yesterday dangling from a high limb of an oak tree in the eastern fringe of the city. Her feet scraped the ground. Police surgeons said the girl had been dead eight hours.

QUIT STORE JOB

Miss Teuber was a clerk in a five and ten cent store and the daughter of William Teuber, barber shop proprietor. She lived with her father and grandmother. Girls who were her friends at the store said she gave up her job Saturday night and told them she was going away, but refused to say where.

At the scene of the tragedy police gathered two slim clues. One was the double half hitch knot which bound the rope about the girl's neck. The other was an army blanket found with the girl's clothes, purse and a package containing a pair of hose she had purchased Saturday.

The knot, police said, apparently had been tied by someone familiar with handling rope. They suggested that it might have been tied by a sailor, or one who had had a sailor's training. The blanket was closely scrutinized for some mark which might lead police to its owner.

CASE BAFFLING

At the outset, the case seemed as baffling as that of the kidnaping and slaying of 10-year-old Virginia Brooks, who disappeared from her home here in February and whose body was found 15 miles from the city a month later. However, police found no link which might connect the crimes.

Investigators said there was every evidence that the girl had been dead before the long rope was thrown over the limb and pulled to a stump 20 feet away to be tied.

Miss Teuber's father aided police in questioning several suspects last night.

Let's Let Dry And 'Anti' Ladies Argue It Out

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Mr. Hoover had two important squads of visitors last week.

They were the ladies who were for prohibition and the gals who were agin it.

The white ribboners called Monday. The wets arrived at the White House Tuesday. Then the drys came back again on Wednesday to tidy up the place.

On Monday tea was served. And gulped eagerly.

On Tuesday tea was served. And sipped sparingly.

President Herbert has shown intense diplomacy in indicating his inclination to listen to both sides of the question. There is much to be said for the ladies. But not much to be said that they can't say themselves.

Now to get a quick decision on the mootleg question, why doesn't Mr. Hoover invite both the wets and drysters to call on him in a body next Thursday? Fight it out right there where the eggs scramble on the White House lawn.

If the drys win hang a lantern aloft in the old belfry. If the wets triumph take the same lantern and drink the oil. And we on the opposite shore shall be ready to ride and spread the alarm.

HALL BOND SUIT REPLY ORDERED

BULLETIN.

The sale of $7,000,000 worth of bonds, including the $1,500,000 issue for the purchase of the Town Hall site, scheduled for tomorrow, was held up by the County Commissioners today pending the litigation started in Harrisburg by opponents of the Oakland site. Commissioner Charles McGovern was absent.

Late this afternoon a suit to restrain the Commissioners from selling the bonds was said to be filed in Common Pleas Court by Attorney Benjamin J. Jarrett, representing Lawrence P. Baker, taxpayer. The suit asks for an injunction, and is said to be similar to the suit filed in Harrisburg.

HARRISBURG, April 20.—The Allegheny County Commissioners today were given 20 days in which to file an answer to the court action of Attorney William A. Magee, former mayor of Pittsburgh, who seeks in a taxpayers' suit to stop the sale of $6,000,000 of bonds for the town hall in Pittsburgh. Magee represents the Allegheny County Town Hall Association, a group sponsoring a downtown site for the hall.

Magee filed his action in the form of an appeal in the Dauphin County Court today. He predicted that if it is granted, the decision would render null and void the bonds not yet issued

Helen Keller Plans First Plane Flight

NEW YORK, April 20.—(INS.)—Helen Keller, famed blind and deaf prodigy, today planned her first airplane flight. She will fly from Newark airport to Washington tomorrow to be received by President and Mrs. Hoover at the White House.

Miss Keller will head a group of delegates from 37 countries, who attended the world conference for work of the blind here.

Rochester Bridge Burns

ROCHESTER, Pa., April 20.—Fire today virtually destroyed the wooden floor of the Rochester-Bridgewater Bridge, crippling telephone service and jamming traffic. The bridge spans the Beaver River.

Seven fire companies from the Beaver Valley turned out to fight the flames, but were handicapped by lack of pumping facilities.

One report was that sparks from a Pennsylvania Railroad locomotive was responsible. Another report blamed a discarded cigar.

Some of the steelwork on the bridge, which was built many years ago, warped under the flames.

Telephone service in Beaver, Bridgewater, Monaca and other towns was reported interrupted.

The bridge, operated by the state, was to have been closed in the near future for repairs.

PARK ASKS O'HERRON AUDIT

BULLETIN.

Attorney Earl F. Reed, of the Citizens Committee, and two auditors of Main & Co. conferred with District Attorney Andrew T. Park late today regarding the dual audit of the Department of Supplies. The auditors brought a large amount of data with them for the conference, but what angle they intended taking up with Park was not disclosed.

Developments in the Department of Public Works quiz before City Council today were:

1—Bertram L. Succop, former head of Department of Supplies, admitted conversations with Joseph J. Darney, building wrecker, concerning razing of Independence street houses. Succop said he told Darney that the matter was up to the Public Works Department.

2—District Attorney Andrew T. Park ordered an exhaustive audit of the city's transactions with the M. O'Herron Company following disclosures that company records had been destroyed eight or 10 months ago.

3—Two witnesses, one called by Attorney Henry Oliver Evans, nearly came to blows when "lie" was passed between them during accusations of bribery.

4—Council hearing adjourned until Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, when the Department of Public Works will be ready to answer Attorney Evans' charges.

Succop was called to the witness stand after District Attorney Andrew T. Park had demanded that Council conduct a thorough audit into the accounts between the M. O'Herron Company and the City of Pittsburgh for the last four years. The audit was requested as the result of disclosures during the investigation that the M. O'Herron Company's records had been destroyed.

WITNESSES CLASH

The near fight occurred during the testimony of Samuel Munz, of 2206 Larkins way, who testified that Darney came to his house Saturday night and offered him $200 if he would testify against city sand inspectors. Munz said that Darney had a letter in his possession, but wouldn't show it to Munz because Munz would recognize the handwriting.

Munz said:

"I was to go down to Mr. Evans' office and tell him what

Broughton Parents Visit Death Suspect

TROY, N. Y., April 20.—(INS.)—A weeping mother and a heartbroken father, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schemnitzer, were en route to their home in Broughton, Pa., today after visiting their son, William, in the city jail here.

William and Stanley Chero are charged with the killing of Sergt. John E. Frey, of the state police. The father and mother, although in straitened circumstances, promised to aid the boy in his fight to escape the electric chair.

Hawks Plans London To Rome Non-Stop

LONDON, April 20.—(AP.)—Capt. Frank Hawks, aviator speedster, will attempt a London to Rome non-stop flight probably Wednesday. He plans a round trip, stopping at Paris on the return trip, and arranging to attend a dinner in London Wednesday night after 1,700 miles of flying.

Federal Judge Overrules Pennington on Brewery

Federal Judge R. M. Gibson today overruled John D. Pennington, former prohibition administrator in Pittsburgh, and restored the permit of the Mt. Pleasant Beverage Company, of Mt. Pleasant, to manufacture cereal beverages.

Judge Gibson held that Pennington's revocation order, issued in March, 1930, was "arbitrary and capricious," and unsupported by the evidence.

The court added that no testimony was offered to establish the removal of 50 barrels of high-test beer from the company's plant, as Pennington charged.

RASKOB SEES 1932 VICTORY IN CLEAR STAND ON ISSUES

TARIFF, DRY LAW HELD BIG POINTS

Predicts Smashing Triumph If People Get Chance to Vote on Leading Policies

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service

NEW YORK, April 20.—John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, foresees a smashing victory for the Democratic party in the national elections of 1932 if the party in its platform takes a clear cut, unequivocal stand on the vital issues confronting the American people, Raskob, in an exclusive interview with International News Service, today declared.

"I am confident the 1932 national election will go Democratic.

VITAL ISSUES

"The vital issues are tariff and prohibition.

"Prohibition has got to be dealt with. The American people pay actually three to eight billion dollars for liquor. Fully $2,700,000,000 of this sum goes for racketeering — corrupting police departments, et cetera.

"If liquor control is brought back to the states racketeering will disappear."

Mr. Raskob illustrated how, in his opinion, the illicit liquor traffic is hurting the American farmer by eliminating the market for grain necessary to production of beer and liquors.

Discussing the prosperity issue," he said that even if business conditions materially improve by November next year, the Democrats should win "because the people are up in arms over social conditions."

Raskob refused to discuss prospective presidential candidates, declaring:

"My job is to build up an organization that will elect the men the convention selects, not to dictate the selection."

He also declined to discuss the alleged attempt of the Republican Party to make Tammany an issue in the forthcoming campaign.

STRESSES DRY ISSUE

Into Raskob's voice came a ring of conviction when he asserted that the prohibition question "will have to be met." He thinks the people are entitled to know the position the Democratic Party will take on that great American issue. He pointed out that racketeering has become a tremendous and menacing "business" in this country, affecting the lives of every citizen. He said that if the government could collect the revenue on liquor sold illicitly today it would be sufficient to relieve all citizens from payment of federal income taxes.

Marion Davies Gives Gay Party for Thalbergs

HOLLYWOOD, April 20.—(Universal.)—It was to the music of an old-fashioned German band, complete with mustaches and "oom-Pahs," that Hollywood bade bon voyage Saturday night to Mr. and Mrs. Irving Thalberg (Norma Shearer), who leave today for a three months' vacation.

Marion Davies was the hostess, of course, for no Hollywood party would really be complete without her as the presiding genius.

And the farewell celebration, held at Miss Davies' beach home, was just a party as could be staged only by the famous folk of Hollywood at their most informal best; the best that is only guessed by audiences who see them only on the screen.

Dinner preceded the dance and the informal entertainment of the evening.

The guest list read like a roster of the best of Hollywood, gathering to wish the Thalbergs a happy vacation, a pleasant memory of Hollywood's goodby and an eagerly anticipated return. Among the invited guests were:

Mr. and Mrs. Thalberg, Mr. and Mrs. Adolphe Menjou (Kathryn Carver), Mr. and Mrs. Townsend Netcher (Constance Talmadge), Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Howard, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Graves, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Mulhall, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Selwyn, Mr. and Mrs. Will H. SERVICE TO END ON BUTLER LINE abandonment of the line north of Mars was entered before the road went into the hands of the receiver, who subsequently asked total abandonment.

Scharff testified that he made a personal inspection of the Short Line and found the tracks and bridges in such condition that there is grave danger of loss of life or serious injurey to passengers in accidents. Stating that $300,000 would be necessary to rehabilitate the line, he testified that he was refused preliminary loans on a receiver's certificate of $30,000 from two banks; that it probably would be impossible to borrow sufficient money to repair the line.

COURT CROWDED

About 150 persons from the district affected, crowding the courtroom, heard Graham state that the present action is a result of the management's deliberate two-year plan to "murder the road and force patrons to ride on the bus line owned by the same people." If service had been maintained the road would have operated at a profit, he claimed.

The Gibsonia Presbyterian Church passed a resolution last night that it would suffer great loss if the road were abandoned, and asking continuance of the hearing until a plan for rehabilitating it could be developed. Signed by the Rev. F. W. Crowe, pastor, the resolution was introduced in court today.

JUDGE'S OPINION

In granting the petition of Scharff, Schoonmaker said:

"It is apparent from testimony that receipts from passenger fares is not enough to pay power bills and labor costs of operating this line, let alone providing any sum of money for maintenance of track and overhead equipment. It is also apparent from testimony and from earnings of the company as shown by its books that it would be impossible to borrow money with which to continue operation of the line and equip the line.

"It would seem to be a distinct hardship upon the motormen to ask them to operate this line if the receiver cannot borrow money with which to pay them."

An order will be drawn up and signed by Schoonmaker allowing discontinuance of service at 11:55 p. m., Wednesday.

DAVIS TO OPEN SPEAKING TRIP

WASHINGTON, April 20.—(AP.)—Senator James J. Davis will start out this week on a speech-making tour of Pennsylvania which is already being interpreted in some quarters as notice the junior Senator will be a candidate for re-election in 1932.

The Senator denied there was any political significance attached to the tour, and said:

"My good friend, former Gov. Fisher, once said when I was making speeches over the state last year before I decided to run for the Senate that 'Jim Davis always appears to be a candidate, no matter when you meet him.'"

His first address will be given at Reading Tuesday before the annual meeting of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers. The next day Davis will speak twice at Wilkes-Barre. Thursday he will attend the testimonial dinner at Pittsburgh to Burgess John Cavanaugh, of Homestead, and the next day he will address a meeting of the Service Clubs of Warren.

Walker to Seek Pardon in Slaying

GREENSBURG, Pa., April 20.—Attorneys for Jake Walker, New Kensington Negro, serving a long term in Eastern Penitentiary for the murder of C. B. Klapp, New Kensington druggist, will ask a pardon for Walker at a hearing before the State Pardon Board Wednesday.

The attorneys say they will stress the fact that Walker proved a valuable aid to state during prison riots in Western Penitentiary several years ago.

HOUSE PROBERS REPORT WILL HIT P. S. C.

Moore Committee's Views To be Offered Without Drastic Recommendations

By ED PRENDERGAST
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, April 20.—The Moore committee of the House investigating public utilities with its preliminary report to be sanction at a meeting late today, will present it to the Legislature either tonight or tomorrow. The committee will not recommend anything drastic, it was learned, but will point out that the Public Service Commission has failed in its duty to act as the consumers' agency.

The committee will continue on, although the lawmakers have set Wednesday as the final day to put bills in the hopper. The report will submit recommendations for legislation to strengthen the public utility laws, but whether it will ask further bills to supplement the fair rate board bill is considered unlikey.

Most of the recommenations of the House investigators are incorporated in the fair rate bill, and amendments will be made to it if considered necessary. The final report may be more drastic. It is to be made before the legislators go home; to return to a special session if called, or if not, two years later.

AGREEMENT SOUGHT

D. Glenn Moore, chairman of the House Committee and others are making every effort to have today's report unanimous.

If proponents of the city manager bill expect to have their newly written measure in the Senate it will have to go this week, or require a majority vote after Wednesday's session.

Whether or not the measure would get in tonight, was said to be problematical. Planned by some members of the City Manager League, reported preparing another local option bill aimed directly at Pittsburgh, opinion was divided as to the ultimate success of a Pittsburgh city manager bill.

Several interesting issues will be attacked, however, the dry prolem and the Blue Law repeal milk bill coming up for voting tomorrow. Both, although Louis Schwartz authored the milk bill, bear the hand of Clinton Sowers, Philadelphia House member. The former is simply a resolution petitioning Congress to call a national constitutional convention to repeal the dry law. The latter, which would extend the hour for selling milk from 9 a. m. Sunday to 10 a. m., is so written that amendment might be made.

BLUE LAW ATTACK

Supporters of liberalization of the blue law expect tomorrow, when this will be a special order of business, to tack on an amendment permitting Sunday baseball.

While the liberals have been growing in strength, and might be able to push both the resolution and the milk bill over the border, both will at least make necessary a test vote—something avoided in the Legislature in a number of years.

Other bills to be fought out this week include the old age and mothers pension bill, sponsored by Frank J. Harris, and Matthew Dunn's bill regulating the state police so that this organization cannot participate in labor struggles.

Reapportionment, on which a House sub-committee headed by James Heffran, of Charleroi, will report, will also be the basis for an organization bill, to be dropped in the Senate by John J. McClure.

Mine Bureau Land Forestation Begins

Planting of 10,000 pine trees was to be started today by V. M. Bearer, district forester, of Ligonier, on the United States Bureau of Mines property on Cochran Mill road. The work is a part of the movement of the Pennsylvania Department of Forests and Waters toward reforestation.

Coolidge Cites Lessons Of Concord and Lexington

To the Editor of The Sun-Telegraph:

The nineteenth of April has been known in this country since the year 1775 as Patriots' Day. On that date British soldiers sent out from Boston through Lexington to Concord to capture military stores of the colonists met armed resistance and were driven back with heavy losses. That day meant that the patriots would defend their rights with their lives.

Mr. Coolidge

Other contemporaneous events in the colonies were of equal significance if not of equal importance, but no other had the dramatic quality which made it in song and story so much a national epic. The guns and drums of a local action not only aroused a whole country but stimulated in the soul of mankind a longing for self-government.

On the day on which this anniversary is observed it is worth while to stop and ponder what self-government means. Lawlessness does not meet its high requirements. It means that when the duly constituted authority of the people has spoken, duty requires the citizen to observe and public officers to enforce the law. The result is order, certainty and confidence. If only we could abide by so simple and obvious a truth, Patriots' Day would be fittingly celebrated.

THE KING AND QUEEN OF SIAM . . . . IN THE U. S. TODAY

First and exclusive picture of Siam's king and queen as they touched at North America, the first oriental ruling head ever to visit this continent. They entered the United States late yesterday, the king now sick and on his way to specialists in the East.

QUEEN OF SIAM SUFFERS COLD

ON BOARD SIAMESE SPECIAL TRAIN, Minot, N. D., April 20.—(AP.)—The King of Siam was recovering from his illness today as he crossed the prairies of North Dakota on the way to the Atlantic coast for eye treatment, but the Queen was confined to her drawing room by a cold.

Welcomed at the border station of Portal last night by emissaries of President Hoover and Secretary Stimson, the royal pair expressed gratification at their return to the United States, where they visited in 1924 while heirs apparent to the Oriental throne.

Julian, Oil Magnate, Fined as Gun Toter

LAREDO, Tex., April 20.—(AP.)—C. C. Julian, widely-known Oklahoman and California oil man, pleaded guilty today to an indictment charging him with unlawfully carrying a weapon and was fined $500 and costs by District Judge J. F. Mullally.

It was the first of four cases against Julian in connection with an incident in which Lamar S. Bolling, former business associate, charged he was kidnaped by the oil man, who allegedly sought to extort $50,000 from him.

Political Leaders To Honor Burgess

City and county political leaders will be guests at a banquet to be held Thursday in William Penn Hotel, in honor of Burgess John J. Cavanaugh, of Homestead. The officials in charge of the banquet include, Harry Markley, secretary; Louis Little, treasurer, and C. J. McBride, chairman.

F. H. VITTE DIES OF PNEUMONIA

After an illness of only four days, Ferdinand H. Vitte, chairman of Mt. Lebanon Township Commissioners, died in his home, Rockwood avenue, early today. Pneumonia was the cause. Mr. Vitte was the oldest member of the board, in continuous service.

Born in Elberfield, on the border of France, 62 years ago, he came to this country when a small boy and settled with his parents in Castle Shannon. In his youth, he engaged in business with his father, Ferdinand Vitte, Sr., in a mould shop on the South Side. Mr. Vitte retired from business shortly after the death of his father 12 years ago.

He was appointed as township commissioner 14 years ago to fill an unexpired term of Commissioner Frank W. Cooke, who is now township manager and secretary. He was elected chairman of the board last December, taking the place of Commissioner C. W. Scheck.

Besides his widow, Mrs. Catherine Heldman Vitte, he leaves a son, Norman Vitte, of Dunedin, Fla., a brother, Paul Vitte, of California, and two grandchildren.

Vet Who Rejected Title of Duke Dies

WEST CHESTER, Pa., April 20.—(AP.)—Thierry Van Casteel Phillips, member of a prominent family and veteran of the Spanish-American and World wars, who rejected the title of duke 10 years ago to keep his title of a Chester County squire, today lies dead at his home in Westtown.

Phillips, who was 66, was the grandson of Sakrovolaski Phillipe Moro, a duke in Warsaw two generations ago, who was driven out of his country because of his activities in plotting for the liberation of Poland.

Man Unhurt in Fall On Stone Mountain

ATLANTA, Ga., April 20.—(AP.)—Frank Trainor, who said his home was in Bristol, Me., slid 500 feet over the steep side of Stone Mountain last night, but was unhurt.

He was taken from a narrow ledge half way down the mountain by a rescue party of more than 200 persons who saw him signaling with matches seven hours after he had tumbled over the precipice.

Marine, Ex-King of Isle, Hailed by Home Town

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., April 20.—(AP.)—Honored as the ex-king of La Gonave, Faustin E. Wirkus, former lieutenant in the United States Marines, came back to his native town of Du Pont yesterday and was royally welcomed. The whole town joined in the reception.

Three bands, Boy Scouts, clergy, business men, school children and firemen took part in a parade through gayly decorated streets. A formal welcome was extended by Burgess Albert Strucke and other town officials at exercises in front of the borough building.

A banquet was given last night at Hotel Mallow Sterling here. Attorney Frank Pinola was toastmaster. Mayor Hart was represented by Dr. Leo G. Mundy, who extended the city's greetings.

Wirkus won world-wide notice as the ruler of La Gonave, an island in the Bay of Haiti, where he was sent as Marine administrator.

PLOT TO K ALFONSO FEARED

Exiled King Will Move to Paris Suburb in Order To Insure Better Guard

PARIS, April 20.—(AP.)—Alfonso of Spain will establish the seat of his exile at Fontainebleau, a summer resort, a little more than 15 miles from Paris, putting up his family at the Hotel Savoy there for the time being.

His decision to move from Paris was announced today after it was understood police, fearing an attempt on his life, had suggested tacitly he seek a refuge in some smaller place where a better watch may be kept on him and his family.

QUEEN LEAVING

The Queen is leaving for Fontainbleau tomorrow and Alfonso will join her and their children when he comes back from London. These arrangements were disclosed today by the Duke of Miranda, chief of the Spanish royal household.

Alfonso will go to London on business tomorrow, perhaps motoring down to Calais for the night boat tonight. Among other things, he will arrange to place the Infante Juan, his son, in an English school near London, and other business will keep him in London for a few days.

There has been some talk from the beginning that Alfonso might choose to make England the place of his exile. His wife is a British princess and he therefore probably would be accepted as a member of the British royal family. Victoria and their children are said not to be accompanying him on this trip.

Alfonso signed no document whatsoever, except his own manifesto of farewell to his people, when he went into exile, the Duke of Miranda told newspapermen today. The duke said:

"The King left voluntarily, making no official statement except that contained in his manifesto."

The statement was received with particular interest, as there has been considerable speculation as to whether the Republican leaders in Madrid permitted the King to leave the country without signing some declaration concerning the renunciation of the royal rights.

INFANTAS QUIT SPAIN

HENDAYE, Franco - Spanish Frontier, April 20.—(AP.)—Infanta Beatrice, sister of Queen Marie of Rumania, and Infanta Isabella, aged aunt of former King Alfonso, passed the frontier this morning on the Sud express en route to Paris.

Though extremely ill and borne on a stretcher, the Infanta Isabella smiled and chatted with numerous aristocratic emigres who came to greet her. The infantas were accompanied by Dr. Varela, Marquis Bertran de Luz and Marquis Mancanedos.

Universities Banned By Alfonso Reopen

MADRID, April 20.—(INS.)—All universities closed during the monarchial reign because of the Republican tendencies of their students, reopened today. Student leaders addressed the various undergraduate bodies, declaring that students had been "one of the most important factors in the downfall of the monarchy."

WALKER ANSWERS TO ROOSEVELT AND FOES

WOULD MEET CRITICS 'EYE TO EYE'

International News Service.

NEW YORK, April 20.—After weeks of silence, Mayor James J. Walker today issued a stinging statement in which he answered for the first time criticism of his private life. He offered to match his private life against those of his critics, declaring:

"My conscience is clear and I would like nothing better than to meet them eye to eye and let them attempt to justify themselves in sight of God and man."

DISPATCHES REPLY

At the same time Walker dispatched to Gov. Frankling D. Roosevelt his 15,000-word reply to previous charges demanding his removal from office. The Governor was expected to make it public late today.

The Mayor was plainly incensed at the new charges involving his private life which were contained in the annual report of the city affairs committee of the National Republican Club, made public this morning. The report declared that Walker's five years as mayor have demonstrated his unfitness for the place and calls upon Gov. Roosevelt to remove him under the formal charges now pending.

The report attributed what it termed the "breakdown" of Mayor Walker's administration to "the vagaries of his private life, including "sitting up all night at wild parties." Reference was also made in the report that Walker spent time "entertaining Hollywood" with the result that he has "drifted to work in the afternoon."

GROUP ASKS HEARING

In connection with the answer to Gov. Roosevelt, the City Affairs Committee, a non-partisan organization and not connected with the National Republican Club, asked an opportunity to be heard in rebuttal. A letter to the Governor from the committee asked that the Rev. Dr. John Haynes Holmes, chairman of the group, and Dr. Stephen S. Wise, vice chairman, be permitted to confer with Roosevelt and give oral arguments in refutation of the Mayor's defense.

Dr. Holmes renewed his attack against Walker in a sermon on Sunday and declared the real hope of elimination of "corruption in the city government" was in the education of citizens to end the alliance between "politicians and men in business, legal and illegal, who purchased privileges." He demanded the end of Tammany Hall, which he called the beneficiary of a "rakeoff" of hundreds of millions annually from public service privileges and illegal resorts.

Mabel Ross, Former Stage Favorite, Dies

LOS ANGELES, April 20.—(AP.)—Mabel Fenton Ross, 63, a stage favorite of several decades ago, is dead. She succumbed unexpectedly to heart disease here yesterday. She had played in the productions of Weber and Fields, Lillian Russell, Louis Mann, Peter Dailey, William Collier and other stars of that era.

MRS. JOSEPH C. TREES

BABY BOY BORN TO TREES

The romance of Joseph Clifton Trees, multi-millionaire oil operator, and his former secretary, which culminated in their marriage two years ago, has been blessed by the birth of a baby boy in West Penn Hospital, it was revealed today. The baby, born yesterday afternoon, weighs 7 pounds 10½ ounces.

Mr. Trees.

Mrs. Trees—his second wife—was the former Miss Edith Lehm, of Dormont. She is 37 and had been his secretary 10 years. Trees is 61.

Trees was smiling and a bit late when he arrived at his downtown office today to receive congratulations. Asked whether he planned to make an oil man out of the youngest Trees, he answered:

"That's a little early yet."

A reliable report had it that before many days pass the youngest of the Trees will be officially known as Joseph Benedum Trees. The middle name is in honor of Michael Benedum, associate of Trees.

FUND LOW, JOB AID FACES END

The Allegheny County Emergency Association will be unable to provide employment for jobless men after July 1 unless more money than is now in sight becomes available, Maj. Philip Matthews, executive director, announced today. Two thousand additional men might be given employment on projects to be financed by the city if money for labor can be raised, it was said.

In announcing operating statistics of the association, Maj. Matthews revealed a total of $1,060,149.76 has been contributed or pledged since the beginning of operations in February.

On April 17 a total of 4,047 men had been given employment, of whom 913 were replacements. Applications for work have been received from 13,835, of whom 11,400 are from within the city limits.

Electrical Men To Attend Meet

Practically the entire membership of the Electrical Contractors' Association of Pittsburgh will go to Washington, April 20-21, for the first annual conference of the Electrical Guild of North America. Pittsburghers participating in the convention are: David A. Fleming, secretary of the Electrical Contractors' Association of Pittsburgh, and L. I. McQueen, secretary, Pittsburgh Builders' Supply Club, who will be one of the principal speakers at the guild banquet.

800 FIGHT FIRE TO SAVE DERRY

DERRY, Pa., April 20.—Eight hundred men and boys working under the direction of fire wardens battled yesterday and last night to save this community from being destroyed by a forest fire which several times ignited houses on the outskirts of the village.

At 10 o'clock last night the blaze was said to be under control. During the 10 hours the flames raged, the community was blanketed in heavy clouds of smoke. The homes of J. H. Rush and William Murty, near Broad and High streets, were slightly damaged. In addition to the townspeople, firemen from Derry, Blairsville, Latrobe and Ligonier fought the flames.

Dempsey, Estelle Differ Widely Over Athletics

ACTRESS HAS NO LOVE FOR EXERCISE

Even Hates Sport Clothes, Says Writer; Jack Never Interested in Women

Herewith is the third installment of the love story of Jack Dempsey and Estelle Taylor, written in intimate fashion by Miss Louella O. Parsons, Universal Service motion picture editor.

The writer has pointed out that the separation of the former champion heavyweight fighter and the actress was inevitable, and she now brings to a vivid conclusion an analysis of the emotions that actuated their moves.

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.
(Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service.)

HOLLYWOOD, April 17.—Jack Dempsey is probably not perfect. None of us are, but he has so much that is sweet. He is certainly more of a real man than the dancing gigolos who interest some of our Hollywood married women.

I do not believe that Jack was ever seriously interested in any other woman despite the stories published that he is to marry a Pittsburgh divorcee. He has never given another woman a second look since he married Estelle Taylor.

At the time he had the fight with Joseph Benjamin at the Fifth Avenue Hotel and a chorus girl was mentioned, Jack was an innocent bystander. I had dinner with him in New York just a few nights before and three times during the dinner he telephoned to Estelle, who was in Hollywood. He told me how lonesome he was and how he wished she were in New York.

Jack is temperate in his habits. He drinks very little, he smokes only occasionally and he keeps himself in perfect physical condition. That is one thing in which Jack and Estelle are alike. I have never seen her take a drink, I have never seen her smoke a cigaret and I have even seen her look with disgust at people who drink too much.

Not An Athlete

But one thing in which they did not share a common interest was athletics. Jack adored exercise in all forms—he loved to swim and to hike—in fact, he was interested in all outdoor sports. Estelle loathed exercise. She even hated sport clothes. The nearest she ever got to swimming was when she donned a becoming bathing suit and posed with Jack in front of their swimming pool. This picture was snapped after a serious illness of Estelle's and was taken to show that she was once more on the road to convalescence. Estelle was ill for many months and whenever there was any difference of opinion, Jack would say:

"Poor darling, she isn't well."

Few husbands would have been so understanding.

Previous to the time she was given the part in "Cimarron," Estelle made almost no screen appearances. A part in "Liliom" and her outstanding performance

AUTO 'RACKET' SUSPECT GONE

According to three complainants, Thomas F. Campbell, Park avenue Bethel Township; Mrs. Mary R. Logeman, 3928 Grenet street, and Paul Mayes, 95 Hazelwood avenue, Kenny sold their automobiles and pocketed the proceeds.

The three offered their autos for sale through him, they say, and he sold them promptly, issuing promissory notes to the former owners for the amount of the sale. The notes were due today and they reported to North Side police that Kenny could not be found. Campbell is owed $375; Mrs. Logeman, $375; Mayes, $250. His place of business was closed. Detectives are seeking other alleged victims.

Succop Takes Stand in Probe; Park Asks O'Herron Audit

he thought I knew. I told him I didn't know anything."

Attorney Evans interposed at this point with:

"I want to make a statement. I sent Mr. Darney over to see Mr. Munz to ask him whether he had any information. I haven't seen Mr. Darney since Saturday night nor have I communicated with him."

Darney then took the stand and denied that he had offered Munz $200, adding:

"I haven't seen $200 in the past nine months."

Darney continued that Munz had a grievance with the Iron city Sand Company because of an alleged "dirty deal" they gave him when he got his finger cut off. Munz was on his feet instantly with:

"You're a damned liar."

Munz moved menacingly to where Darney sat. Simultaneously Sergeant-at-Arms Mose Jacobs grasped Munz while President Herron rapped for order, cautioning the two against violence.

DRINKING CHARGED

Munz and Darney accused each other of being under the influence of liquor as Evans started reading an anonymous letter in which he (Evans) was requested to ask Munz what he knew about inspectors getting baseball passes and other gifts for hauling materials from city jobs to the home of William Hoegel, a city inspector.

Munz interrupted Evans, saying:

"I know the guy who wrote this letter and it's going to be just too bad for him when I see him."

Both President Herron and Councilman W. Y. English cautioned him against violence, English adding:

PARK DEMANDS AUDIT

The District Attorney in a letter conveyed to President John S. Herron by Assistant District Attorney William H. Colvin said:

"Assistant District Attorney Colvin has brought to my attention disclosures with respect to destroyed books and accounts of the M. O'Herron Company with the City of Pittsburgh for 1928. It seems peculiar to me, to say the least, that it should develop at this stage that these accounts and books have been destroyed. I believe a thorough and complete audit of these accounts should be made immediately."

Park urged that City Council employ Price Waterhouse & Co., now employed by the city for the audit of the records of the Supplies Department, to conduct the audit of the O'Herron Company accounts.

Attorney Evans asked Succop to testify to details of a conversation over city contracts he had with Joseph J. Darney, a building wrecker, as Evans continued to present evidence he claims will reveal fraud in the Public Works Department. This was Succop's first public appearance since he was "fired" by Mayor Charles H. Kline, following a secret investigation of charges of waste and extravagance in the Supplies Department.

SUCCOP TESTIFIES

When Succop took the stand Attorney Evans said:

"Perhaps the easiest way to examine you, Mr. Succop, is for you to read the testimony of Mr. Darney. Then you may make your comment in your own way."

Succop concluding the reading of the testimony said:

"I received a communication from Director Edward G. Lang, of the department, to advertise those houses December 19. I went there about 4 o'clock. There were no bidders and I started to leave. Darney spoke to me and asked me what I could do for him. I told Darney that, since there were no bidders, I would have to see the solicitor about the procedure."

Succop said that he then proceeded to forget about the matter.

He was then questioned by his personal counsel, Col. Edward L. Kearns, a former 18th Regiment officer, of which he was a lieutenant colonel. officer.

Kearns asked Succop:

"Did you sell the properties on Independence street?"

Succop replied:

"No."

"Did you give them away?"

"No. The entire transaction was handled by the Department of Public Works."

Following the receipt of the letter from the district attorney, President Herron said:

"The city controller, Dr. James P. Kerr, is our auditor. We will refer your request to him with instructions that he proceed with the matter."

TELLS OF STOCK

J. W. Newcomb, of the C. D. Halsey Company, stock brokers, was called after Succop left the stand and was questioned by Attorney Evans relative to the stock purchases of Joseph Dingfelder, a city inspector. Newcomb said that the transactions of Dingfelder averaged 50 shares monthly, the whole covering a total cash transaction of $1,000 over a three-year period.

Newcomb added:

"A person would starve on that kind of an account."

As the hearing got under way Attorney Lee C. Beatty assured Evans that the Public Works Department would be ready to present its tabulation of estimates on Thursday.

E. Gordon, 5222 Baum boulevard, a city inspector, was called by Attorney Evans and in answer whether he ever received any money or gifts, said:

As Gordon continued President Herron advised him to be careful of his replies, because he implied other inspectors took such trips. Gordon said:

"I'm not working now on account of this hearing. I was assigned to the Eleventh street job, but the contractor tells me this hearing is holding up the work."

CALLS FOR CONTRACTOR

Attorney Evans demanded the name of the contractor and upon being informed that it was R. D. Thomas, asked that he be subpenaed to the hearing. He added:

"I object to statements that this probe has held up any city work. I won't stand for any such impression. These engineers have been sitting here for weeks when they could be down at their work. We are calling the outside contractors in here to fill up the time because the Department of Public Works doesn't have anything to fill it up with."

Charles M. Reppert, chief engineer, replied to Evans:

"We have been trying to handle this case with a minimum of disturbance. Are you trying to dictate to us?"

Tom M. Reed, assistant city engineer, testified that the amount of spoil hauled from the Boulevard of the Allies job was calculated by the engineers by cross sections and levels. He said he checked the work at the time the job was going on, and that the reason for the increase was that much of the excavated material was not fit to be placed on the fill.

William N. Jamison, assistant chief of inspectors, under examination by Evans, said he did not believe the shift in authority from inspectors to engineers, made several years ago, worked well. He said he thought the inspectors should have retained their authority.

COMPLAINT ON STREET

Charles W. Wright, of 1707 Kleber street, testified that the M. O'Herron Company had received a contract March 13 for the repaving of Brighton road, from Davis to Benton avenue, and complained that the street was repaved only five years ago.

He said he wrote a letter to Mayor Kline telling him of the previous repaving and received a letter from Director Lang which he said did not answer the complaint.

City engineers produced records to show that the work done five years ago was in the railways area only. They declared that the base of Brighton road is very bad and that money spent there in resurfacing would be a loss to the city.

The hearings was adjourned until Thursday at 10 o'clock.

Dried-out cigarettes are cruel to your throat

Remember how harsh and hot its smoke was to your throat; how it choked you and made you cough?

That's what happens when evaporation robs a cigarette of its natural moisture content. And most cigarettes lose their moisture and flavor quickly from the day they leave their factory.

Not so with Camels.

The Camel Humidor Pack not only keeps the natural moisture and flavor in; it keeps out all foreign influences which destroy fresh cigarette enjoyment.

An air-sealed wrapping of moisture-proof Cellophane, called the Humidor Pack, keeps Camels always in mild, factory-fresh condition. That's why they are so delightfully easy on the throat.

Switch to Camels, now, for just a day, then quit them tomorrow—if you can.

TWO MEN SLAIN IN EAST END

City detectives of the homicide squad today were investigating the murder of two men in shooting affrays in the East End district over the week-end. Pasquale Otlando, of 6 Bennett place, and Bamsillo Zullo, 45, of 163 Reiter street, died today in Pittsburgh Hospital.

Otlando was shot down when he answered a call to his door early yesterday. As he opened the door the assailant fired and Otlando fell, wounded twice. Questioned in the hospital yesterday, he gave detectives no information to indicate the identity of the gunman.

Tourists Lose Gems, Clothes From Auto

INDIANAPOLIS, April 20.—(AP.)—While Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kaiser, of Toronto, en route home from Havana, dined in a restaurant last night, a thief twisted a door handle from their automobile and looted the car. Clothing and other property valued at more than $1,400, including four ladies' evening wraps and an $800 diamond bracelet, was taken.

Boiling Lye Poured On Man, Two Sons

NEW YORK, April 20.—(AP.)—Boiling lye and water were poured on Samuel Aisenson and his two sons, Harold, 11, and Martin, 14, as they slept early today in their Brooklyn apartment. Police arrested Mrs. Minnie Aisenson, stepmother of the boys, whom they found in a nightdress in a courtyard after leaping from a window.

In line with the program outlined for the "Hospitality Days," leading stores throughout the city, it is indicated, will offer amazing merchandise bargains. Theaters, transportation companies, hotels, clubs, airports, colleges and radio stations have all enthusiastically fallen in line with the movement.

from the 1928 issue, which totaled $43,000,000.

The appeal is brought in the name of John H. Palmer, citizen, a real estate dealer with offices in the Commonwealth Building, Pittsburgh. It is based on the question whether the county commissioners actually voted for the bonds, the brief asserting that Commissiner E. V. Babcock moved to insert a resolution to issue the bonds into the minutes and Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong seconded it, but that no vote was taken.

The Magee suit is the second action taken since Friday to stop construction of the town hall on the Oakland site. In a taxpayers' equity action filed in Common Pleas Court, residents of the Schenley Farms district ask that the County Commissioners and other county officials be restrained from erecting the hall on the Schenley Farms site.

Judge Sylvester J. Snee set next Monday as the date for a hearing.

Honduras, engaged in sharp fighting with federal forces, according to advices received here today.

The Honduran outbreak, coming on the heels of the Nicaraguan disturbances, considerably complicated the Central American problems of the United States government. While busily engaged in warding off insurgent attacks and evacuating its nationals at threatened Nicaraguan points, the American government now faces the task of extending quick protection to approximately 1,000 Americans in Honduras.

It was pointed out here that the Honduran uprising differs from the Nicaraguan situation in that Gen. Diaz and his supporters are waging war on President Vicente M. Colindres and his administration, and not against American interests.

The Navy Department ordered the U. S. S. Memphis, the light cruiser Trenton and the cruiser Marblehead to proceed immediately to Honduras for protection of American lives and property. The Memphis, standing by at Bluefields in Nicaragua since bandit outbreaks last week, landed three machine gun squads and a number of Marines there for defensive purposes before rushing to Trujillo. The aircraft carrier Langley is en route to Nicaragua.

Cruiser Lands Marines At Imperiled Bluefields

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, April 20.—(INS.)—Marine rifles and the guns of American warships today dominated refugee points on the bandit-infested east coast of Nicaragua, where American nationals fled for safety from threatened inland sections.

Bluefields, for the past several days in constant danger of a major attack by Nicaraguan raiders, became an American stronghold when 150 Marines from the cruiser Rochester augmented defensive forces already there.

According to information here, Insurgent activity waned rapidly with influx of American armed forces. Coastal points were quiet over the week-end, and the belief prevailed that all protected points are now safe from attack. Inland, however, the bandit activities continued.

BRITAIN DENIES NICARAGUA AID

LONDON, April 20.—A report from Nicaragua that Britain was considering advisability of dispatching a cruiser into those waters for protection of its nationals in the disturbed region was authoritatively denied today.

Great Britain, it was definitely stated here, will adhere closely to its policy of "no intervention" in Nicaragua.

The government spokesman added that no requests for protection had been received from British residents in Nicaragua.

The Annual Spring Sale of ORIENTAL RUGS

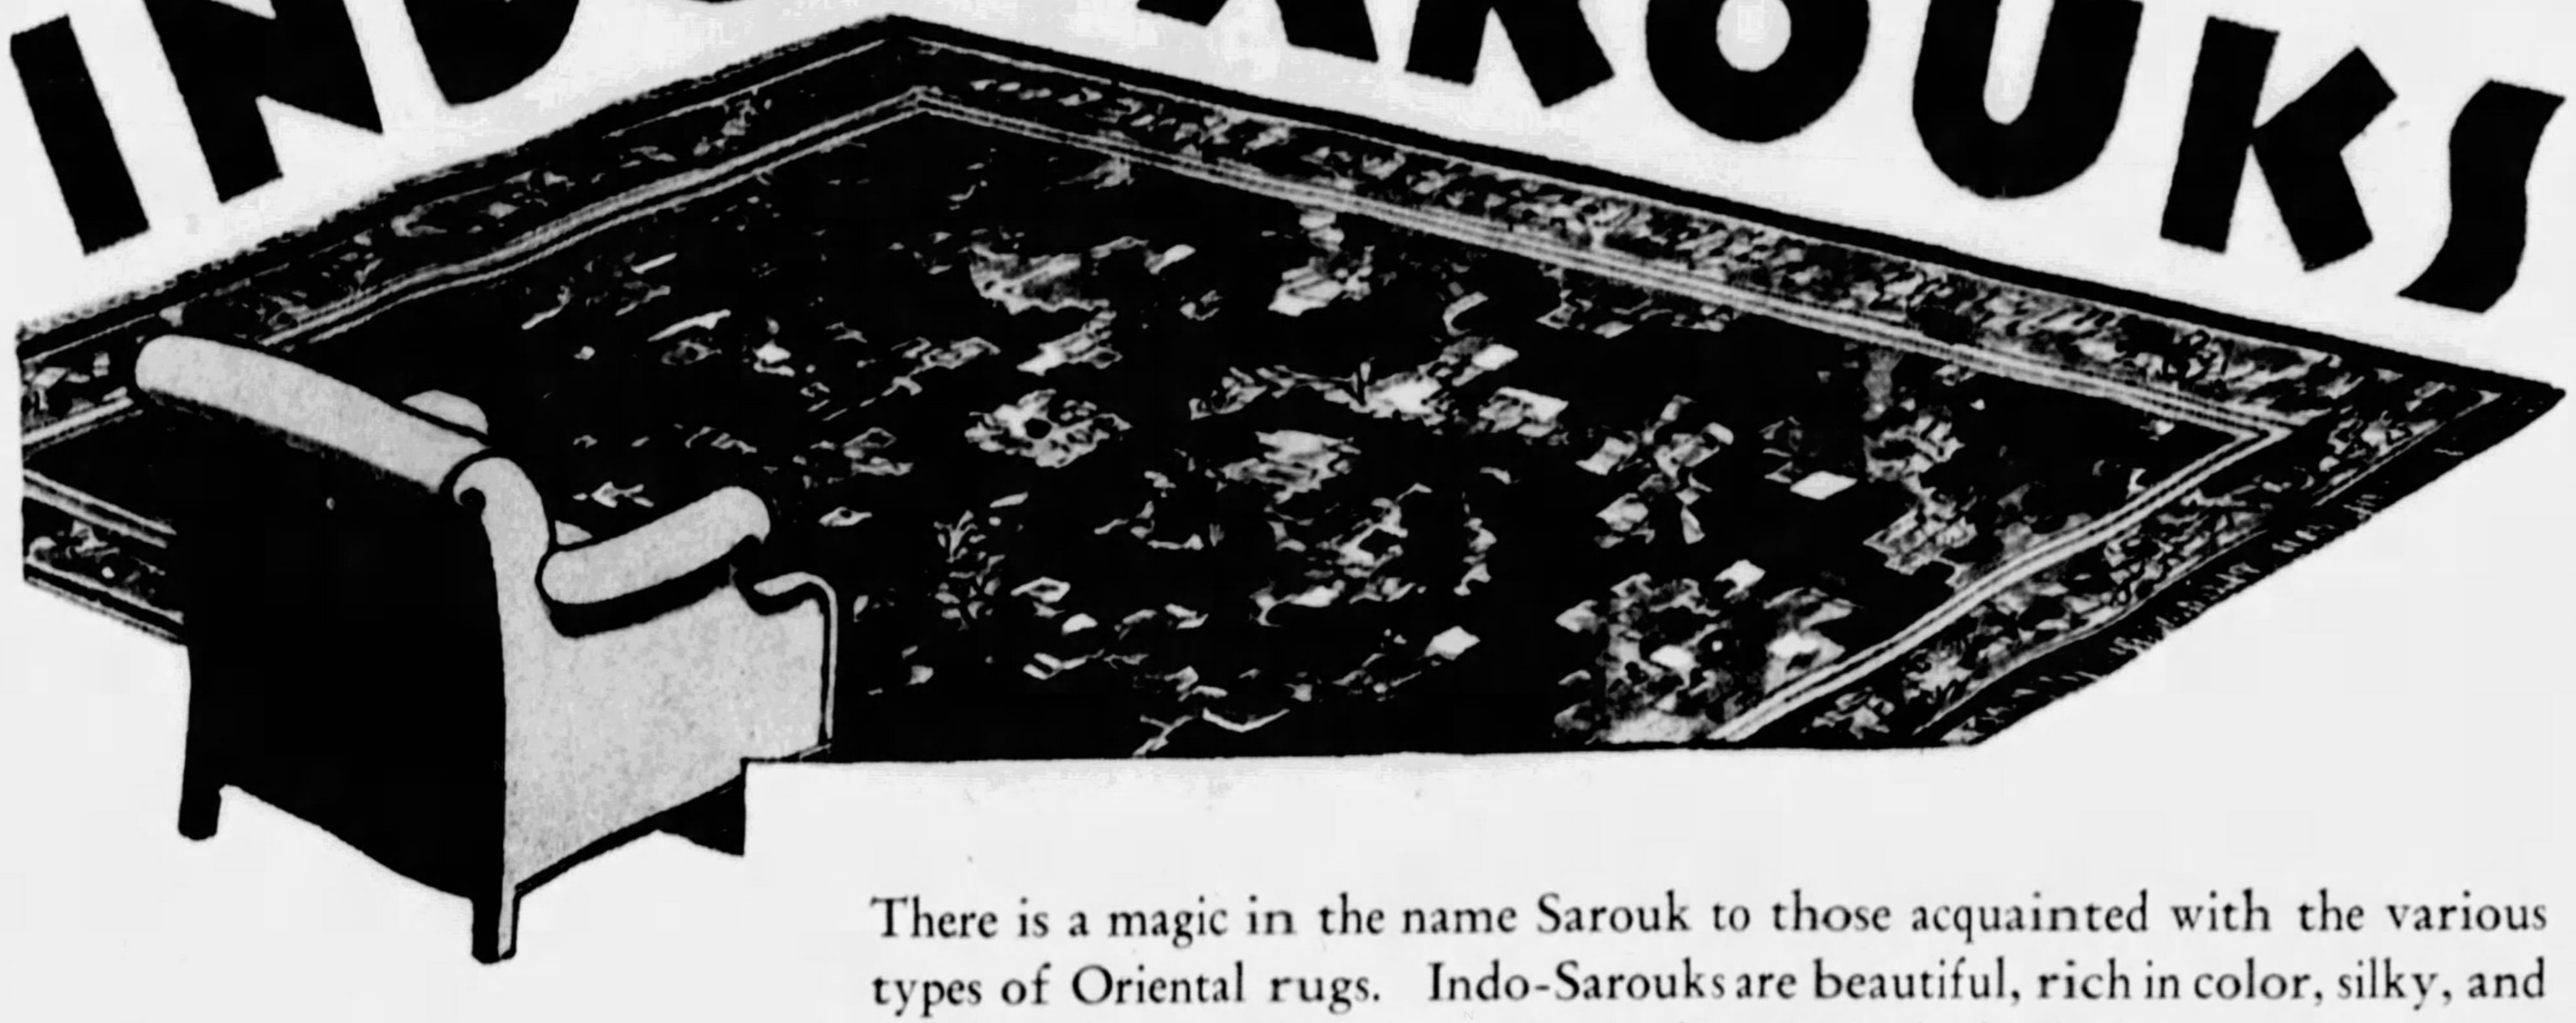
INDO·SAROUKS



There is a magic in the name Sarouk to those acquainted with the various types of Oriental rugs. Indo-Sarouks are beautiful, rich in color, silky, and readily identified by their deep pile—¾-inch thick in many instances. They are heavier than the ordinary Persian rug, and woven from finer grades of all-wool yarn which gives them their great durability.

In this group are individually chosen pieces, each selected for its beauty of design and color harmonies, each with velvety surface, silky sheen, and luxurious feel, each a rug to become a prized possession in your home. There are many sizes representing all the popular room sizes.

Convenient Monthly Payments May Be Arranged On the Purchase of These Room-Size Rugs.

JACK, ESTELLE DIFFER OVER ATHLETICS

Actress Even Hates Sport Clothes, Declares Writer; No Other Woman for Mate

in "Cimarron" were about the extent of her screen career.

This romance has been one of the most interesting in the world. It was like Jack to go to Reno alone, quietly, and file divorce proceedings. It was like him not to mention the things that had hurt him, to lay it all down to Estelle's desire for a career.

As I said before, Estelle is clever. She has engaged one of the best lawyers in the town. If Jack doesn't look out she will get all the public sympathy. I think sympathy should go to both Jack and Estelle.

If Jack divorces Estelle she will go on. She won't be seriously hurt at the moment. If she makes a success on the screen or the operatic stage she will be supremely happy, for fame means everything to her.

Resented Jack

I know that she has always felt that Jack stood in the way of her success. She once asked me if I thought the reason she couldn't get work was because she was married to a prize fighter. Perhaps Estelle didn't realize that fight fans resented Jack's marriage to her more than the movie fans ever dreamed of resenting her marriage to him.

Jack gave up a great deal when he married Estelle. At the very beginning of their marriage he quarreled with Jack Kearns, his manager. The trouble which separated the two friends and which has never before been published was reported due to a remark Kearns is supposed to have made to Estelle.

Jack is said to have resented it and parted with the man who had done more to win success for him than anyone else. Kearns was terribly upset over the new Jack. He didn't like the remade nose, he didn't like the stylish clothes, he didn't like the Jack who was tied to a woman's apron strings.

It has been printed in some newspapers that Jerry Luvadis, Jack's devoted Greek trainer, was another one of Estelle's antipathies. But that is not true. Estelle liked Jerry very much. She used to laugh at him and coax him to tell about his best girl. He was always threatening to get married and always to some "mamma" with lots of money. Jerry adored Estelle and would buy funny boxes of candy for her.

Not Same Man

It has been printed many times that if Jack Dempsey had not quarreled with Jack Kearns he would have won his two battles with Gene Tunney, but nobody can say as to that. Jack had lived in the lap of luxury so long that he was not the same prize fighter who defeated Carpentier, Firpo and Jesse Willard.

I went with Estelle when I was in Chicago, to Jack's training quarters. She distrusted his manager but she kept her dislike to herself. She said:

"I don't want to hurt Jack on the eve of his fight, but I do believe Mr. Flynn is an unsuccessful manager. He doesn't understand Jack."

Estelle was right as the fight in Chicago later proved.

If Jack had not been so harassed with people trying to collect money and annoying him at the time of his first fight with Tunney there are those who believe he would have won in Philadelphia.

I went up to Jack's camp at Atlantic City, the day before the Philadelphia fight, to pay him a visit. His cottage looked like an arsenal. There were guns in every room and there were guards surrounding the place. Not that Jack was afraid, but that people all over the country with fancied grievances were trying to serve him with summons.

Writing of prize fights is not my business but I shall always believe and always say to this day I think that someone fed Jack poison. No man could have changed in 24 hours and look as wan and pathetic as he did when he walked into the ring.

Good Loser

Jack is a good loser in all things. He never told, he never complained, he never gave out a story, although he made one foolish move. He dictated an unfavorable statement against Tunney to the newspapers just before the Chicago fight which reacted against him and which was a thing he should never have done. I always felt it was done on someone else's advice.

The romance of the beautiful screen actress and the prize fighter has been the most widely publicized love story in the world. Books have been written with fictional characters, supposed to be Estelle and Jack. When the Dempseys traveled abroad Jack was mobbed by admirers. When he walked into a restaurant in New York he was besieged for autographs.

They have had many quarrels that were known to the Dempseys' close friends, but when the eventful split came, it came as a surprise. Mark Kelly, sports writer, achieved a tremendous newspaper scoop when he went to Reno and uncovered the truth.

There has been so much bitterness and so much rancor on each side, one wonders if it is possible to forgive and forget. Both Jack and Estelle have their staunch friends and each side sees the battle through partisan's eyes.

We could point a moral and say two distinct professions seldom mix and there can be no love where there is no compromise.

CONSULT YOUR PHYSICIAN ABOUT THIS WONDERFUL LAMP!

Positively fool-proof. Can be operated by anyone. You'll have no trouble whatever to turn on the switch and let the health-giving rays begin their work.

Aged persons suffering from rheumatism, neuritis and arthritis who have tested its pain-relieving power hail it as a godsend. Babies grow plump and cryless under its sunlight rays when bathed. A marvelous perventive and remedy for colds and seasonal infections. Keeps healthy folks fit and strong for the day's trials. Gives office-imprisoned business men the vigor of youth and a suntan as natural as Old Sol could put on. A $50 or $100 sun lamp could do no more. The only invention that physicians do not hesitate to endorse and often prescribe.

INVESTIGATE! SINCE YOU CAN BUY THIS LAMP FROM HARRIS ON LITTLE WEEKLY OR MONTHLY PAYMENTS, DON'T DENY YOURSELF THE GREAT PAIN-KILLER SELLING AS FAST AS BUTTER AND EGGS ALL OVER THE COUNTRY. NO FAMILY SHOULD BE WITHOUT ONE.

HARRIS 624 TO 630 LIBERTY AVE. THRU TO OLIVER AVE.

NOTE BY WIFE TRAPS HUSBAND

MADISON, Wis., April 20.—(INS.)—Outwitted by his estranged wife, whom he abducted in New York, according to police, a youthful husband and his two companions lay in jail here today while authorities awaited kidnaping warrants against the trio.

Those who figured in the abduction, which covered almost half the country in its course, are Helen Fisher Drill, 20, of St. Paul, said to be an heiress to a $50,000 estate; Harry F. Drill, 30, nephew of Lewis L. Drill, United States District Attorney at St. Paul; Howard Caldwell, 30, and Elmer Peterson, also of St. Paul.

Mrs. Drill was spirited away from in front of her home, at 504 West One Hundred and Twelfth street, New York, Wednesday night. No trace was found of her until yesterday morning, when the kidnaping party drove up to a gas filing station at La Porte, Ind., where she wrote a note on a towel asking for help.

BALLOONS HELP KINDNESS PLEA

Small gas-filled balloons carrying messages of kindness to animals were to be released today as a feature of the "Be Kind to Animals" week, being observed here under auspices of the Animal Rescue League and the Western Pennsylvania Humane Society. The balloons were to be released by Rin Tin Tin, the dog movie star.

The balloons were to be released at the Highland avenue entrance to Highland Park. In addition to the message of kindness, the balloons will contain an award to the finder. The "Be Kind to Animals" week opened yesterday, when clergymen through the city stressed kindness to dumb animals at their services. The campaign is to include programs in public schools and radio addresses.

HIDE IN STORE, ROB OWNER

Two robbers hiding in the North Side Poultry Company's store, 846 East Ohio street, held up Theodore Burdon, owner, of 708 Middle street, and took $35 when he opened his place of business at 8 o'clock this morning.

The men, one tall and the other of medium height, stepped from behind a refrigerator, each with a revolver. One said:

"Stick 'em up; don't make any noise, and give us your dough."

Burdon handed over the cash. The robbers then tied his hands and feet. Burdon managed to free himself and call police.

HOLLYWOOD AND GOTHAM NEWS; LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Lewis Ayres Is Friendly With Studio and His Girl Once Again

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, April 20.

Lewis Ayres' long fight with Universal is over.

The former banjo player, who sprang to fame in "All Quiet on the Western Front," has been given a new five-year contract at a substantial increase in salary, plus bonuses.

Lewis Ayres

Victor in his campaign, Lew now is settling down to work, the immediate matter at hand being tests for the long projected "Mississippi."

Assuming they are satisfactory and there is little chance otherwise, this will be the young star's next picture. Director Russell Mack, even now, is completing plans for starting production.

Of shorter duration but of equal interest to the film colony, Lew's spat with Lola Lane also seems to be smoothed over, at least temporarily. The two have found the course of love pretty rough, but they always come back to each other.

"King Alfonso," observes Charles Judels, "can tell you now how it feels not to have your option taken up."

LATEST GOSSIP

Everyone attacks Hollywood for its lack of brains. How about the man who chose Adolphe Menjou to play the fiery managing editor in "The Front Page?" Who would have suspected he could turn in a superb performance in a role totally unlike anything in his career? That wasn't an obvious deduction. . . . The Spanish version of pictures are previewed in Mexicali, which is just across the border from Calexico. In the little picture house here, English films are shown three nights a week and Spanish the remainder of the time. The average person in the audience can understand both languages. . . . Several film people have formed a bicycling club in the Tolucca Lake district. Members include Dick Arlen, Jobyna Ralston, Dorothy Lee, Norman McLeod and Zasu Pitts. They ride Sundays and at night. . . . This department was wrong about Ina Claire being under contract to United Artists. Samuel Goldwyn signed her personally. . . . Impatient to get her summer tan, Lilyan Tashman has been suffering from the popular complaint of sunburn. She's been at home now for two days. . . . When Douglas Fairbanks was tendered a reception at a Manila Country Club, George O'Brien was in town. He came out, unknown to Doug, and tapped him on the shoulder. "Mabuhay, Douglas," he said, aping the Spanish accent. Doug jumped to his feet and made a bow. Then he recognized George and they had a laugh at the deception. . . . According to Raoul Walsh, Sergt. Quirt and Capt. Flagg will be taken out of the service for their next picture, "Disorderely Conduct." . . . Lois Wilson has signed a long term contract at Universal. She gives a fine performance in "Seed."

Adolphe Menjou

"It just occurs to me," writes Troy Orr, "that one of the most consistent jobs in pictures is that of the guy who operates the siren in the gang epics."

THOSE R-K-O COMICS

The future activities of Robert Woolsey and Bert Wheeler are well lined up at R-K-O. The two comedians are to play next in "All at Sea," a story by Ring Lardner and Joseph Santley. Bill Seiter will direct. After the sailor film, the team will make an original story by Douglas MacLean called, "Full of Notions." Dorothy Lee is on her way back from New York to play their leading woman again.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

In the Alvin tonight Ethel Waters will head a cast of dusky thespians in a hue and cry aptly labeled "Rhapsody in Black." Wednesday and Saturday are afternoon show days for this'n.

Nex' wk. the Alv. will present a Briton's conception of the big powder and ball town, Chicago, title of said conception being "On the Spot." In the spotlight will be Crane Wilbur and Anna May Wong, the clever little Chinese girl, erstwhile of the once silent drama.

If a "mentalist" really could read the mind of his audience he wouldn't perform his act.

The Nixon tonight will show "What's Up" and why, the wherefore of which is to be elucidated by a group of scholars who have laid aside the whimsicalities of the cosine and nth power in order to solve the riddle of the universe—what is an actor? In short, the boys of the Pitt Cap and Gown Club are putting on their annual play. Six nights and Saturday matinee are the recitation schedule.

The George Sharp players in the Pitt will swing into their second week of "Death Takes a Holiday" tonight. For a matinee here—Thursday or Saturday.

Next week the G. S. P. will tackle "Strange Interlude," Eugene O'Neil's nine-act drama about people who talk to themselves and yet elude the funny house. Performances are to begin at five-and-a-half o'clock and there'll be up. Matinees at 11 a. m., Thursday and Saturday. be any matinees.

AN ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR
For Lovers of... Real Home-Fare

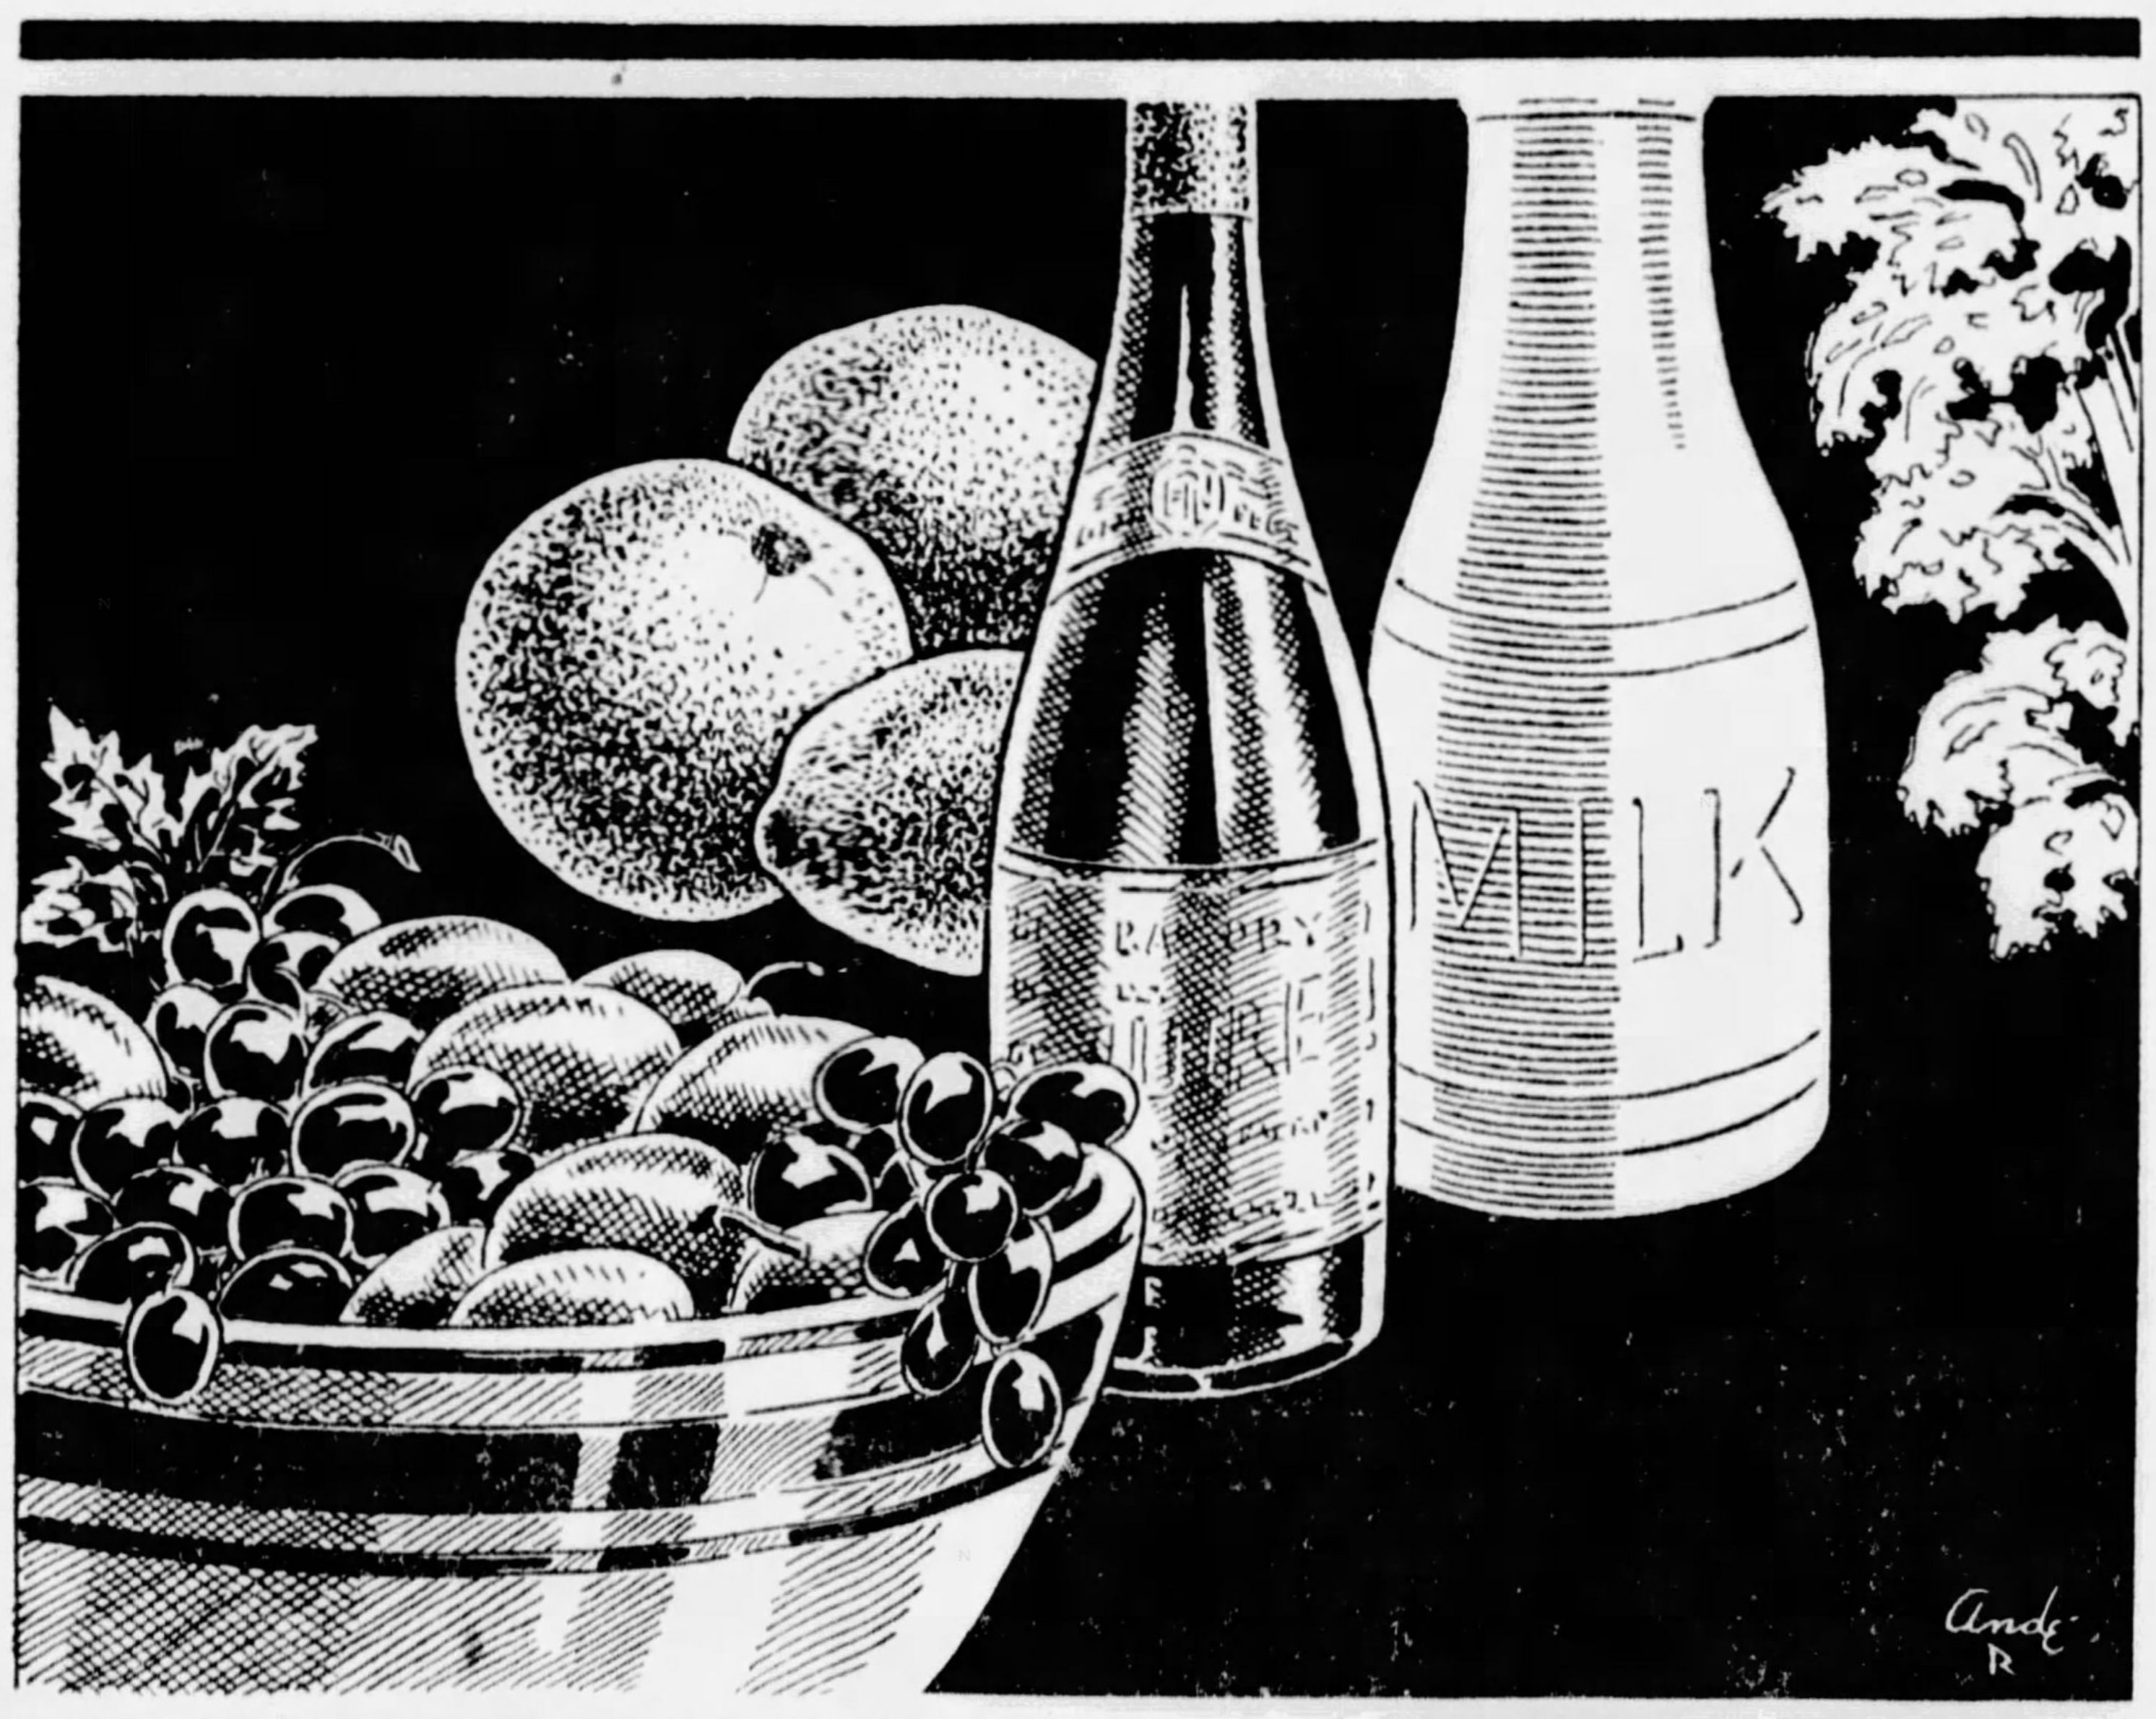
All because of the modern electric refrigerator, in your very kitchen today you can keep vegetables, dairy products, meats, delicate and delicious foods of all kinds fresh . . . for days and days.

AND, REMEMBER, FRESHNESS MEANS FULL FLAVOR. That's the secret of successful cooking. In the electric refrigerator of today you can command the magic cold temperatures that keep foods fresh and full-flavored until they are used.

Even on the hottest of summer days your refrigerator will be freezing ice cubes, chilling salads, making frozen desserts . . . keeping foods safely in a temperature always well below the fifty degrees that is prescribed as necessary for safe refrigeration.

You, too, can have one of these modern, new refrigerators . . . and so easily! A small down payment is all that's necessary to put it into your kitchen and start it at once to saving food, time and money for you.

Wherever electric refrigerators are sold, a complete demonstration will be given gladly and with no obligation on your part. Visit the display room of the dealer who handles your favorite electric refrigerator and ask for a demonstration now.



Plenty of ice cubes for your cold drinks! It's astonishing how quickly an ice cold drink will set one up, dispel fatigue, set the wits to sparkling and start the party . . . any party . . . safely on its way to a good time. And an electric refrigerator will give you a plentiful supply of ice cubes when you want them.

SUCH IS BIG BUSINESS BEHIND OFFICE DOORS IN THE DAVIS

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Big business men are saps, private secretaries are the real soul of success, and all's well that ends well is the simple formula of the screen romance at the Davis. It's a good formula. Every sap will wish he had such a private secretary, clever enough to squirt ink on his shirt sleeve when he's going to wear a colored shirt to interview a conservative banker. Every secretary will wish she had such swell evening gowns when the boss asks her to help entertain a couple of good customers at a night club. Such is big business in the screen romance, "Behind Office Doors," as big business is understood in Hollywood.

George Seibel

Ouida and Bertha M. Clay were realists, and "Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model," really lived up on Mt. Washington.

BUT ASIDE FROM THIS

Aside from this, "Behind Office Doors" is not so bad. It has four good points:

Mary Astor is beautiful.

Robert Ames is handsome.

Catherine Dale Owen is beautiful.

Ricardo Cortez is handsome.

Here are four very good points, besides cute Kitty Kelly, and an assortment of clothes to hang on these people makes common sense almost superfluous.

IT ALL ENDS WELL

Though the hero wore a patch on the seat of his pants when he was graduated from high school, he married Mary Astor in Jersey City at the finish. And we're sure they are selling lots of lumber and wood pulp, and she still picks his neckties, and the blonde stenog has been fired because she can't spell, and the writer of the scenario must have had a dreadful headache making his picture so true to life on some other planet than the good old earth.

New Cantor Picture Titled 'Palmy Days'

Eddie Sutherland will direct Eddie Cantor in "Palmy Days," the new comedy which will be produced by Samuel Goldwyn. Sutherland has just completed "Up Pops the Devil" for Paramount, and among his other successes are "June Moon," "The Gang Buster" and the Wallace Beery-Raymond Hatton comedies.

Things I Never Knew Till Now

(But which you knew all along!)

That, according to a letter from Kenton Kilmer, son of Joyce Kilmer, the war hero and poet, his mother does not receive "heavy royalties" from the song, "Trees," the lyric of which is the famous Kilmer poem. That a Mr. Rasbach paid only $25 outright for it.

"Neither my mother nor I," he adds, "have any injustice to complain of in the matter, but we should prefer to have you quote the exact sum." (A music firm announced "heavy royalties' recently.)

That the longest word in the dictionary is incomprehensible. (Watch them go crazy figuring that one out).

That many women, particularly chorus girls, put a little red crepe paper in rinse water to keep their undies nice and pink.

That they are not ground hogs. They are woodchucks!

That you can hold a crocodile's mouth closed with your hands. But try and hold it open. Ah!

That a good many state road signs are grammatically incorrect, such as "Drive SLOW," also, "Men working ahead."

That, according to Laurence Stallings, the book critic, d Annunzio was a columnist 50 years ago, and a terror, too. For he used his column to date up women and mentioned their names, yet!

That Adam was created first, according to a Pathfinder, to give him a chance to say something.

That David Berger has just discovered that a Broadway banquet is where guests steal hotel silver and columnists steal gags.

That a few columns ago it was recorded that Ruth Nichols was plotting a solo flight across the Atlantic. The next day the N. Y. Post denied it. On April 14, however, the N. Y. Sun confirmed it.

That a needle imbedded in your foot would in time work its way up to your heart, making your life insurance payable.

That George Washington never tossed a silver dollar across the Potomac. He threw a stone. How disillusioning.

That Maryland is the only state where you pay yearly rent on the land under your house.

That superstitious fishermen will never wear colored mittens.

That Alexander the Great lost more men from the drinking of ice water than from all the battles he fought in his eastern campaign.

That the composing room foreman of the Jewish Daily Forward (a newspaper) is an Irishman, named Raider.

That owing to paper money inflation in 1864 flour cost $300 a barrel and a pair of shoes $150 a pair.

That Byron could not endure seeing women eat.

That the daughters of the Czar, dating back to the reign of Alexander I, slept on camp beds, because it was decreed by the Emperor that his dotters should not sleep on comfortable ones until they married. (Just a nice guy.)

That electricity will put out a flame.

That China is the only country in the whole world where milk is never used as food, and where most women wear trousers.

That when Cabot returned to England after discovering Newfoundland he was rewarded with ten pounds and made an admiral.

That the popular notion that a man comes up three times before drowning is a fallacy. He may come up many times, or not at all, depending on various conditions.

That in France, horse races are run to the left.

That western lobsters have no claws, but they resemble their eastern cousins in every other respect.

That all personal property, including furniture, in the state of California is assessed. Of all things!

That when a man goes into bankruptcy in France his creditors take everything but one suit of clothes and a bed. It's the law.

That a well known New York doctor disguised himself in women's clothes and got into a lifeboat reserved for women and children when the Titanic was sinking. He killed himself here recently.

That Leonardo Da Vinci designed an airplane about 500 years before aviation got under way.

That you can clean your kitchen knives by stabbing them hilt deep, five or six times, into good old mother earth.

That the record flight is held by Icarus, who tried to escape from Crete on wings. He flew almost to the sun, but the wax melted, and he fell into the sea. How futile!

That there were more than 19 billion cigarettes smoked in the United States last year. The average person smoked 7,300.

That Al E. Smith once warned James J. Walker that the mayoralty of New York was ""the graveyard of political aspirations."

Huh-huh. How about Teddy Roosevelt?

That when you are jailed in Tia Juana, you are not allowed to communicate with anyone outside. If your friends miss you and cannot locate you any place, then they go to the jail and there you are!

And that you cannot place your back, one foot and one shoulder against a wall and hold your other foot in the air.

New Players Cast For Brenon Film

Doris Lloyd, Ruth Weston, and Paul Cavanaugh have been added to the cast of Herbert Brenon's Radio Picture, "The Next Corner." Kay Francis is the featured lead, with William Welch, Don Alvarado, Adrienne d'Ambricourt and John St. Polis already announced for the cast. "The Next Corner" is from the novel by Kate Jordan, with adaptation by Elizabeth Meehan.

CHARMING AND USEFUL FROCK KEYNOTE TO AFTERNOON MODE

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, April 20. — The useful and smart afternoon frock is in the high afternoon of its glory and every house is offering most distinguished versions of this type of dress. We are not seeing so much just now of the purely formal afternoon frock, which is well enough. Most of us have neither the time nor the inclination to wear elaborate frocks in the daytime, nor does it make for smartness. Elaboration and richness should be left to that section of the wardrobe dedicated to the evening. And so we have indicated our preference for the frock of fine material in wool or a silk weave with clever detailing in the fabric itself, such as appliques, bands and encrustations, set off with lingerie touches, dignified by fine and delicate handwork. Such a frock is bound to be a success and can be worn countless times without making one feel out of place or unsuitably dressed. Do not complete your sartorial plans for spring without including such a frock. It will require looking for, but the search will be well justified.

IN CASE YOU are in the throes of searching for just such a model as described above, permit us to draw your attention to the two most delectable models shown in the drawing. They are both from Lucile's new collection. The one to the left is in fine black wool, cleverly worked in curving insets on both bodice and skirt. The little gilet and sleeve pieces are of white georgette, worked with fagotting between the narrow strips of the georgette. There are two little tabs cut in one piece with the bodice, which ties across the gilet at the neckline.

THE OTHER MODEL is of crepe assouana in bright rich red set off by collar and cuffs of white organdie and pique, combined with handwork. A shallow bolero gives a graceful line to the unbelted bodice, which is draped at the waistline. The flaring peplum starting at each side and crossing the back also lends a graceful line to the silhouette. Don't you agree that these frocks are much more wearable and more suitable than the more elaborate and overdone afternoon frock to which we permitted ourselves to become accustomed for all too long?

By Mark Hellinger

HE IS A HANDSOME CHAP with curly hair. I have known him for some seven years, but I haven't seen him in three. Fast, alert and strictly Broadway, the man has always been interesting to me. Stage manager and actor, he knows his theater inside and out.

His name, let us say, is Martin. Martin has been on the verge of great success on several occasions—but could never quite click. He had "Rain" in his hands, only to let the play get away from him. The same thing happened with "Seventh Heaven."

When I was covering the street for Broadway stories, Martin was a great help to me. We would sit for hours and discuss life, love and the pursuit of the elusive coin. I was sorry when I did not see Martin any more. I liked him.

On a recent afternoon my telephone rang.

"Hello, Mark," said a voice. "This is Martin T——"

After three years! I was agreeably surprised.

"Hello, Martin boy. Glad to hear your voice again. What's on your mind?"

His voice dropped lower.

"Can I talk freely on this wire?" he whispered.

"Sure," I responded.

"Are you positive nobody can overhear us?"

My curiosity was growing by leaps and bounds.

"Absolutely, Martin," I asserted. "For the love of Mike, man, what's on your alleged mind?"

Silence for a few seconds. Then—

"Mark," he continued, "I've got to see you. Absolutely must. It's a matter of the utmost importance to both of us. Just got to see you."

The man was driving me daffy by degrees.

"You can see me any time, Martin," I cried. "You know that. But what's this all about? Can't you give me some idea? Can't you?——"

He interrupted me.

"Sh-sh-sh," he hissed. "Not another word over the telephone. I'm up in Connecticut now, and I can't possibly make your office this afternoon. Will you be in your office tomorrow at 3 o'clock?"

"Certainly," I said. "That's a date. But——"

Once more he cut in.

"See you at 3 sharp tomorrow," he went on. "Until then, not a word to any one that I called you. So long."

And he hung up . . . .

If you have been a reader of this column for a week or so, you will know what I consider all Broadwayites at least 50 per cent batty. I have reached this conclusion, you may be sure, by a careful self-study. Speaking of batty episodes, however, take a look at the manner in which this mysterious phone call from Martin came to a conclusion.

The following afternoon I rose at 2:30. I did not feel well. As a matter of fact, I felt worse than that. Martin's call had worried me. I had slept fitfully. Now I had a headache, which is a bad thing to have at 2:30 in the afternoon. Or at 6 in the morning, for that matter.

I hurried to my office, thereby increasing my headache to pounding proportions. I arrived here at 3:15 and inquired for Martin. He had not arrived as yet. When 4 o'clock came he was still absent. I began to grow a trifle peeved.

At exactly 10 minutes to 5 Martin sent in his card. A minute later he was at my desk. We shook hands. He was the same nervous man. The same alert manner. The same Broadwayite.

He sat down and leaned close. My heart was pumping rapidly.

"Mark," he whispered. "I've got the greatest play in the world."

I gave vent to a relieved sigh. If that was all he had, everything was jake.

"Well?" I queried.

"Mark," he went on, "I let two great plays slip through my hands and I'm not going to let this one slide. Now here's what I had to see you about. Will you read the play for me?"

"I'll be glad to," I said. "But—"

He jumped to his feet.

"Fine," he ejaculated. "Well, I'm glad to have seen you again. You'll have the manuscript in the morning.

And he walked out. No reason why he couldn't have told me that over the phone. No reason for all the excitement. No reason for the whole business. Just a Broadwayite's typical way of doing things. . . .

You haven't heard it all just yet. It is just two weeks today since Martin was in my office. And the script has never arrived! . . .

WILL INSPECT BLIND SCHOOLS

One hundred foreign experts on training for the blind, representing 35 nations, will study blind institutions in Pittsburgh and view the city Thursday as the guests of the Chamber of Commerce and other organizations.

The program for the visitors includes an inspection trip to the Pennsylvania Association for the Blind, Second avenue; an automobile tour of the city; luncheon at Webster Hall; a glimpse of the city from the Pitt Cathedral, and a visit to the Western Pennsylvania School for the Blind, Oakland.

The hospitality committee in charge of the day's activities consists of: James Rae, president of Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce; Francis A. Keating, Frank Wilbur Main, H. Lee Mason, Jr., Harry W. Neely, Taylor Allderdice, Marcus Aaron, B. S. Joice, H. R. Latimer and J. W. Rickey. President Rae will be toastmaster at the luncheon and Rev. C. Wallace Petty, First Baptist Church, the speaker.

Run Down by Auto, Munhall Man Hurt

Andrew Scoffa, 18, of 1251 Coal road, Munhall, is a patient in Homestead Hospital suffering with head and body bruises, the result of being run down by an auto at Eighth avenue and Ravine street, that borough. Police reported Stephen Celai, of 1120 River road, Munhall, took Scoffa to the hospital, and was released on his own recognizance.

LONGER LIFE FOR SILK HOSE

To find a way to make silk hose and undergarments wear longer means money in women's pockets. A New York fashion expert has discovered the secret.

She found that washing with soap and water alone did not remove the body excretions which rot silks. So she adds a tablespoonful of Energine to every quart of lukewarm, soapy water. Then she washes and rinses the articles—as usual. The result is a new cleanliness—a pleasing freshness — revived colors — all with practically no rubbing.

But the most amazing result is the longer life it gives to silks—an economy every woman will appreciate.

Try this method of adding Energine to soapy water the next time you wash silks. You'll be delighted. Remember, too, that millions of women save money by using Energine for removal of spots from suits, hats, dresses, gloves, shoes, etc. Large can 35 cents at any drug store.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

It Is Not Broadminded to Overlook Disloyalty

"I can't be different," sez he. "I've just gotta cheat on you girlie, but—if you really love me, you'll keep on forgiving."

Which we'll admit is a handy alibi for a bozo who likes his own way and wants to keep one girl buffaloed while he plays around with 'em all . . .

But Adela's beginning to wonder if that attitude isn't maybe a little thin.

"Could I be happy with a husband like that?" she wonders, doing a little counting up.

Sees Other Girls

Here's the whole story . . . and for a Big Boy who's stuck on himself, we think her Hero wins the hand crocheted bath tub . . .

"Dear Sally Martin:

"Maybe you'll think this sounds silly, but I hope you will answer it, and give me some help because I do want someone who doesn't know me, and isn't prejudiced to tell me just what they think.

"For six years now, I have been going with a fellow. He is very nice, except for one thing . . . We get along fine, except for that one thing . . . and that is, he cheats on me. By that, I mean that he goes out with someone else . . . and pets with her . . . until I find it out. Then, after I do, he tells me all about it . . . so that I can't say that I don't know everything that he does. Every time this has happened we have broken our engagement. But just as soon as I have made a few other friends he has come back and made it all up with me . . . after which I have always given up my other friends, of course, because I cannot go with other fellows when I am engaged to him.

Wants to Make Up

"Well, it has happened again. And I have told him that I am not going to have it go on happening. But he wants me to make up again. I do care for him. But he says that he will never be different . . . and that real love will keep on forgiving.

"Do you think that is true? Do you think that love can survive, as he says it should? I don't believe it can. I do love him, but I also want to be happy, and to trust the man I marry. My life has never been too happy, as I was born in a large family, and I've had to work hard and do without things.

"Am I selfish to feel this way? Or should I go on and marry him, in spite of what he does and says? Do you think he would change if I did marry him? Or would he go on being just like he is now? Please help me. I am so muddled I don't know what to do. What do you think of him?

"ADELA."

What do I think of Your Hero?

If I told you, Lady, it would take the shotgun squad, the fire department and the board of health to pick up the pieces.

Stop a minute, before you fall for his line, and ask yourself this.

If the tables were turned—if it were you who had a taste for necking 'em all—how forgiving would his "love" be? Would he say sweetly, "That's all right, honey. My love will go on letting you do as you please, and forgiving your disloyalty and unselfishness, always, because love is like that?"

Huh! Don't make me laugh! He would not. He'd howl to heaven about what a cheater and what a bad bet you were! Yet he expects you to let him browse all over the pasture, and you're letting him get away with it!

Loves Only Himself

Are you being "selfish" because you feel like calling his bluff? No little girl, you're not. You owe it to yourself to call it, and call it pronto. If he doesn't love you enough and hasn't manhood and decency enough to give you a square deal, drop him, and find yourself a real man.

As a matter of fact, he doesn't love you. The only one he'll ever love . . . is himself. And he secretly despises you for being such a sap.

Don't let yourself be fooled by his slick talk. Because if you do, you're going to be far more unhappy than you've ever dreamed of being up to now. No love on earth could survive such selfishness and conceit as his.

Give him the air, honey. It may hurt you now, but you'll thank your lucky stars, once you find the real love of a real man!

Household Hints

A few strokes over a rough grater will remove the skins of carrots more quickly and easily than any other method.

Fill the steaming teakettle through the spout if you want to avoid burned hands. A small funnel will facilitate the operation.

Always heat the plates for dinner if you want the food to stay warm until eaten. Not only does this little fact hold good with vegetables and meats, but it is particularly true of pastries and buns. Placing hot pastries directly on a cold dish will make them soggy.

If Business Man Is Tired Now It Must Be Due to Too Much Tonic—Fay King

By FAY KING

When our good friend, "Dr." Florence Ziegfeld, first started to prescribe pageants of grace and beauty as a tonic for the tired business man, he little dreamed how successfully his prescription would be followed by the business world in general.

Today it is a little difficult for the tired business man to tell just where show business stops and serious business begins.

He himself probably feels more like a movie director or a leading man when he sees his office so full of beauties who could leave him flat any minute for the films or the Follies.

Beauty and grace are everywhere to please him now.

If the business man is tired these days it must be too much tonic—not lack of it!

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Love's Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Is Amazed at Savarin's Fortune

I promptly obeyed Mrs. Cosgrove's summons, trying hard not to let her see the reluctance with which I faced my imminent interview with Robert Savarin. But she has shrewd eyes, this sister of the famous artist, and I felt her friendly reassuring hand upon my arm.

"I know," she said understandingly. "This is an ordeal for you, and I would spare you if I could. But Robert has set his heart upon telling you himself about those securities."

"Oh, please!" I exclaimed, shocked by her interpretation. "Do not think I am reluctant to see Robert. It is only that I am—embarrassed—I think is the word, by the mission he has given me."

"'Mission' is just the right word to describe it," she told me. "Think of it as that and it will make it easier for you, if I know you, and I think I do."

She stepped to an old-fashioned corner cupboard, unlocked it and took out an oblong package wrapped in brown paper.

"I've had these in my trunk since the lawyer brought them yesterday," she said, "until just before you came. Then I put them in here, and I have not had my eyes off them since. I think Robert would have liked to keep them in his room, but he didn't want the nurse to know about them. Of course, she knows there's some important business afoot, but she's discreet and tactful and not a bit inquisitive."

The nurse proved the truth of the encomium when Mrs. Cosgrove tapped upon the door of her brother's room. She opened it instantly and smiled brightly at us.

"All ready for visitors," she said cheerily. "If you don't mind I'm going to seize this chance to walk up and down the veranda a bit. It's such a glorious winter morning."

She ushered us into the room and then went out, closing the door; and I turned to the bed where Robert Savarin was propped up against his pillows, his warm, colored dressing-gown reflected in the flush upon his cheeks, usually so drained of color. At the foot of the bed his portrait of Lillian, which was to be mine, but which he meant to keep before his eyes as long as he had life to see it, seemed to look at me in reproach at the kindly conspiracy which was being completed against her.

He turned his eyes from the portrait and stretched out a thin hand to me.

"It is so good of you to come," he said, and then his sister laid the brown paper parcel, untied, upon the bed.

"Here are the different papers all separated as I showed them to you yesterday," she said. "You won't need me for a few minutes, will you? I have a cake in the oven."

"You blessed little prevaricator." Her brother smiled at her fondly. "But run along. Come back, though, in 10 minutes at the longest."

"All right." She hurried out of the door, and Robert Savarin lifted the parcel and took from it two large manila envelopes. His thin, almost transparent hands shook as he held them out to me.

"For her!" he said, turning his eyes reverently to Lillian's pictured ones. Then he looked at me.

"Open them," he said. "This one first." He indicated the smaller envelope.

I took the papers from the envelope, finding two bank books.

"Those total the 15,000 which I want you to have for your divine charities," he said. "But, I should like to feel that if ever any dire need arose in your own life—which God forbid—you would remember that your old friend would be saddened immeasurably if you did not use it for yourself. Won't you promise me that much?"

"If ever such a need arises, I will use it gladly," I said simply, for I had not come this long way to thwart him upon an academic point.

"Thank you," he said fervently. "Now open the other envelope, which contains the things you are to keep in trust for Lillian and for Marion. The documents which were in the other envelope were the same as in my own, the savings account and the checking balance (on a different bank than the first) were also in my name and were for the same amounts as those in the first. But the value of the securities listed in my name made me gasp.

"Oh! Robert! this is such a responsibility!" I said. "This fortune! Couldn't your sister be made a co-trustee, or something?"

A tender smile touched his lips.

"You know Lillian's fiery independence better than that," he said. "I do not know—even though she told me—" he checked himself abruptly, then went on hastily, "don't you know that you are the only person in the world from whom she might conceivably some time receive this legacy? It is an unwelcome task, a hard responsibility, I know, but won't you accept it—for Lillian?"

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Tuesday, April 21

The lunar transits influencing the affairs of this day may be read as furthering inclinations to make sudden changes or to launch into new lines of initiative and adventure. Despite minor setbacks or postponements, there is prospect of much enterprise and striving for new contracts or business, with financial possibilities fair in the way of speculation or investment, although real property may give concern.

Those whose birthday it is may expect the presentation of an unexpected opening, calling for abrupt change of plans and possibly environment. Matters in connection with new enterprises will be lively and profitable.

A child born on this day may be original, versatile, enterprising and have good judgment. It should make its way to fair position through its own sagacity and constructive ability.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Walking Is the Best of Exercises

Dr. Copeland

Frequently the doctor is confronted with the problem of advising his patient about the most beneficial forms of exercise. Since exercise is universally recognized as essential to good health, this problem cannot be dodged.

For the individual whose work requires muscular exertion, we need not worry about the matter. He is more interested in having rest and relaxation, when work is over.

However, there are many persons whose work is of a sedentary nature. These individuals find that as they grow older they are "flabby," have no "pep," no energy. They are apt to complain of various digestive disorders.

In most of these cases exercise is prescribed. It is essential to a return to good health. It is advised that the exercise is outdoors and, when possible, in the sunlight.

Golf is, perhaps, the most frequently advised form of exercise. Unfortunately, though it is an ideal game, enabling one to be outdoors and in the sun, it is an expensive form of recreation. Tennis, horseback riding, swimming and other sports often fall into the same classification.

There is one form of exercise which everyone can afford. I can think of nothing better than walking. It can be practiced by the old as well as the young. No equipment beyond your legs and the willingness to walk is needed for this healthful exercise.

The popularity of the automobile has greatly discouraged walking. This is unfortunate. Even though you have a fine car or two, do not overlook the health value of an occasional walk.

Walking clubs, which were very popular at one time, have now almost disappeared. I do hope that these organizations will be revived. They are common in Europe and should be in America.

Make it your practice to walk at least one mile every day. When the weather permits, walk to work in the morning. Your day will be more satisfactory and your work less fatiguing.

Walking is sure to improve your health. Your appetite will be stimulated. Your food will be digested with greater ease.

Walking is a great cure for restlessness and insomnia. Sleep is improved and the general health is benefited.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A Sympathetic Letter Of Condolence.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have a very dear friend who has lost his wife. I never met her and the children (all grown) but received a card from one of his daughters asking me to write to him. How shall I word the letter? I am not very young and am afraid that I cannot write a good enough letter. READER.

I suggest that, for the letter, you write something like this:

Dear Adele:

We were terribly shocked at the news in your letter, for we were both deeply devoted to your dear mother, and had hoped sometime to see you and your father. You were very kind to have kept us in your thoughts, and to write us—thank you very much.

We were glad, with you, that your precious mother did not suffer as she passed on, for to see this kind of suffering is always such a bitter experience and such a bitter memory.

Your mother's life was a great inspiration to everyone who knew her, and my husband and I have had many beautiful hours talking of her beauty of heart and spirit. So perfect was her life that we think of her now "standing in the sunlight, with God's work done," and I am sure that you too think of her in that way. We shall all miss her, tremendously, but always her memory will stand with us glowingly.

All deepest sympathy, and blessings, and do let us know if we can be of any help. Tell your dear father how deeply and sincerely we feel for him . . . the readjustment will be most difficult, and I wish that we were nearer so that we could see him and give him personally what we would hope would be our deep comfort.

Dearest love to you all, and our sympathy.

Midnight Is a Very Late Hour at 15

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am 15 years of age and go to quite a few parties. It has often been discussed as to what time I should return home. I think no earlier than 1 o'clock. Am I wrong? T. L.

Indeed you are, my dear girl. And I am afraid that I should not be as lenient as your mother is in her 12 o'clock rule. On week days, until Friday, you should not go out in the evening at all, for there is school work to be done. Most schools make this a rule with girls of your age, and they should do so. On Friday and Saturday evenings, when you go to informal little parties, you should be at home by 10 o'clock or 10:30. The times when you are allowed to be later than that should be only exceptional, such as a school dance.

44 PENNSY MEN GET MEDALS

Forty-four employes of the Pennsylvania Railroad have been awarded 50-year gold service medals during the past three months, local railroad officials announced. The group included a vice president, eight locomotive engineers, six track and gang foremen, five conductors, five shopmen, three station agents and three clerks.

E. T. Whiter, of Pittsburgh, in charge of passenger terminal improvement program and related projects here, heads the list. He entered service in 1881 as a telegraph operator. Howard M. Shade, of the Pittsburgh division, who ran the first relief and reconstruction train through the Johnstown flood district in 1889, was also on the list. Since 1928, the railroad has awarded service medals to 1,267 employes.

Russia Declares Canadian Boycott

MOSCOW, April 20.—(AP.)—M. Rosengolz, people's commissar for foreign trade, issued an order forbidding all Soviet importing organizations and trade representatives abroad to buy any Canadian goods or use Canadian shipping.

The order was in response to the Canadian government's embargo against Soviet made goods.

Real Estate

A building lot fronting 37½ feet on Glass avenue, Amherst Terrance plan, Versailles Township, has been sold by the Amherst Terrace Realty Company to John Gietl through the office of William M. Weldon, McKeesport realtor. The purchaser has begun construction of a brick bungalow.

SELL TWO LOTS

The same broker has sold two lots fronting 50 feet on McCully avenue, Amherst Terrance plan, to Hannah Hoberg. Plans are now being prepared for the erection of a home on the property.

An improved property in Lamarido avenue, Nineteenth Ward, has been deeded by the Keystone Development and Home Building Company to Charles F. Duer for $8,600. The lot measures 30x100 feet.

Gov. Richie of Maryland will welcome realtors to the annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Board to be held in Baltimore, May 27 to 30. The Governor will speak at the opening session of what promises to be the largest conclave of real estate men held for many years. More than 875 reservations from 100 cities throughout the United States and Canada have been received.

2 DEAD, 12 INJURED, WEEK-END AUTO TOLL

SIDEWALKS —of— PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

The dog show at Motor Square Garden Friday and Saturday was a pretty good place to go if you wanted to hear barking dogs. We discovered that the pointers bark more than any of the others and the Irish terriers don't bark at all. These Irish terriers were the favorites of the women. They're little things, suggestive of Airedales, and they seem to have given up all hope—just the sort of dog to arouse a woman's sympathy.

William Pfarr

A dog show is fairly uninteresting unless you're especially interested in dogs. Even the judging is dull to a layman. The dogs are walked along the judges' territory and then taken back to their stalls. There are no prizes for dogs that turn more somersaults than any other, or for the dogs which bark the loudest. This condition is not, of course, the fault of the dogs, and we're asking dog owners not to write in and say that anybody who doesn't love dogs is no good, you big stiff!

Our mind was preoccupied as we went from stall to stall, eyeing the dogs with our critical dog eye. We couldn't help thinking what a great story it would have been for the papers if somebody had turned a cat loose in the Garden.

A lady we know told us about an aggressive 6-year-old boy who stopped her on the street and asked her to fix his roller skates. One skate was loose and the lady, an obliging creature, promptly fixed it. The 6-year-old then suggested that the other skate could do with a bit of fixing, so the lady fixed that one, too. And as the lady brushed off her hands and prepared to depart, the very young man, becoming very confidential on short acquaintance, said, "You know my mother's no good at all fixing skates."

News reports of breadlines in Russia invariably bring a chuckle to Antonio Modarelli, conductor of the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra. They remind him of the time when, at the invitation of the Society for Cultural Relations with Foreign Countries, he went to Moscow to conduct his symphonic poem, "September."

Mr. Modarelli carried a huge basket filled with sausages, hard tack, canned goods and bananas, provided for him by kind, if gullible, friends in Berlin, who feared he might suffer from hunger.

The reception and bounteous dinners which followed were somewhat bewildering to him, but no more so than his mysterious basket was to the Russians. Finally one of the officials could no longer restrain his curiosity and asked Modarelli what it contained.

Laughter followed the opening of the basket and the conductor's explanation of the fears of his German friends. They advised Mr Modarelli to give the food to the poor, but when the bananas were sighted—ah! that was different—bananas are a luxury. They would eat the bananas. They did.

We regret that we are unable to reveal the last name of Bobby, the 6-year-old young man who lives, at least for the time being, with his parents in Squirrel Hill.

The other night, when his bedtime arrived, he tramped up the stairs, taking care to supply as much noise as a pair of young feet can create.

His father called him down and told him to walk up those stairs as a gentleman would.

Bobby did, but as he reached the top a second time he turned around and yelled down to his mother, "Ma, I don't see why you married that fellow."

WILL ROGERS SAYS

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. April 20.—Back home, must be American territory, I don't see any Marines. Miami the only place to bathe in the ocean in the winter and a great city. Flew right over the whole length of Cuba, Haiti, San Domingo, and Porto Rico yesterday. Roosevelt is doing a real human job in Porto Rico, and they like him. He is kinder like Morrow, he has brought sympathy into diplomacy. Only been gone from California two weeks. Been in 15 countries, 8,000 miles all for $600 fare, and I took no "good will" to them, in fact they are mighty wise. They are wise to us.

LORD NORTHCLIFFE

What Made His Success? Intelligence, and WORK.

Northcliffe. He DID and you CAN succeed.

THIS picture of Lord Northcliffe, a Britisher who did more than anybody else, except Lloyd George, to win the war, was made in 1895, at the height of his power. It is an excellent portrait of one of the most successful and useful men ever born on British soil, although it was intended as a caricature by "Spy."

You see power in the well-shaped head, the driving back brain, the strong, but not exaggerated chin, and the seeing eye, carrying truth to the brain.

Lord Northcliffe, who began poor and obscure, as Alfred Harmsworth, possessed great intelligence. And he succeeded because he possessed UNLIMITED CAPACITY FOR HARD WORK, and THAT, added to intelligence, means success. Hard work is 90 per cent of it.

Lord Northcliffe began by seizing, and utilizing, small opportunities. As long as he lived, he looked for other and greater opportunities, and because he LOOKED, he FOUND.

As a newspaper owner, he progressed from his inconspicuous little publication, Answers, to ownership of the London Times, then accounted the most powerful and important newspaper in the world.

Ceaselessly he worked, watched and studied. Death, caused by a blood poisoning that affected his mind, found him working, as he struggled against disease to the last second.

To think clearly, without deceiving yourself, or blaming anything but yourself, is the first element of success.

TO WORK HARD is to success what the iron beams are to a skyscraper. Nothing lasting without work.

After he had made a success in the country, whither he went for his health, although a partnership had been opened to him, he went to London, taking one thousand pounds that he had saved, and, as his biographer, Hamilton Fyfe, says, he went "in search of Opportunity."

He FOUND it, WORKED at it and made it go.

He owned many newspapers, earned many millions, enriched thousands of stockholders, served his country with fearless criticism, that caused him to be hated in life and loved in death. He helped his nation in the war.

You, also, should SEEK OPPORTUNITY. Opportunities are all around us. You will find many of them in the classified advertising columns of this newspaper. Turn over to them, and study them, as Northcliffe would have done, select the right one and make a success of it.

PEDESTRIAN BEATEN BY BANDITS

Finding Only $1, Outlaws Slug Victim; Cab Drivers Robbed by Armed Fares

A robber early today bound E. L. Luttner, attendant at the Atlantic Gasoline Service Station, South Main street near Carson street, and after locking him in a wash room, looted the cash register in the station office. The amount of loot has not been determined. Luttner was freed after he had attracted the attention of a motorist who called for gasoline a short time later.

Two highwaymen this morning beat John Radow, of 147 South Fairmont avenue, when they discovered that he had but $1. The robbery occurred in front of Radow's home. One of the men knocked him to the ground, kicked him and broke his glasses. The other stole his hat.

Two bandits held up Murray Nichol, of 7552 Dickson street, Swissvale, as he was seated in his parked automobile at Forbes street and Devon road last night. They stole his watch and $2. The men escaped in a machine.

CAB DRIVERS ROBBED

Two Negro passengers held up Victor Jerri, of East Ohio street, after Jerri, a cab driver, had driven them to Bedford avenue and Junilla street. They stole $8.70, Jerri told police.

Forced at the point of a revolver to abandon his taxicab near a roadhouse in Carnot early yesterday, Walter Lennon, a driver for the Woodlawn Taxicab Company of Aliquippa, was robbed of $10 and compelled to walk four miles into town. Police say a man engaged the cab at the Aliquippa station and asked to be taken to the roadhouse. The machine has not yet been recovered.

Accused by police of having held up an alleged disorderly house in Cajou way, North Side, James McGrogan, 21, of 5133 Lytle stret, was held for further investigation when arraigned in North Side Police Court. Police testified that they arrested him as he and three alleged companions were fleeing from the house.

WOMAN BEATEN

According to Patrolman Sylvester Henry and Michael Gigilotti, they saw four men fleeing from the house and gave chase, capturing McGrogan in Federal street. The four men are said to have entered the establishment and held up Edna Carney, alleged proprietor, and two men. The Carney woman was said to have been struck on the head with a revolver wielded by one of the robbers.

At the hearing yesterday it was decided to hold McGrogan for investigation. The woman failed to appear and police were ordered to bring her into court to appear against the suspect. When the woman failed to appear against McGrogan for a second time today, Magistrate Ray Schneider held him for court on a charge of carrying a revolver.

AUTO VICTIM OF THE SUNDAY TRAFFIC: THREE INJURED IN CRASH THAT FELLED IT

An inverted sedan at North avenue and Sandusky street, North Side, one of two cars that collided in the heavy Sunday traffic. A woman and two children suffered injuries. Sylvester A. Nock, 1609 Federal street, was the driver of this car. H. H. Hyams, Dormont, was the other.

PROJECTS HERE SPUR ARTIST

From an etching here, a lithograph there, and a woodcut elsewhere, one may assemble a Pittsburgh expressed in the graphic arts.

Penelope Redd

The other day at the site for the new postoffice, there was a gallery of hundreds of men watching the progress of the work as they might enjoy a sport.

Neads, however, saw in it a pictorial motif. He has made prints of the construction work at the county airport, riverboats and studies of typical industrial neighborhoods.

Probably, prints of this sort will one day be collected as representative of our great construction projects just as we now regard eighteenth century sporting prints as particularly illustrative of the English life of that period.

Material Obstacles Alone Put Limit on U. S. Aid, Says Foch

In yesterday's instalment of Marshal Foch's Memoirs he told of the preparations he had begun making for the Allied counter-offensive that was to start in July, 1918. During the spring of 1918 the German drives had forced the Allied line back many miles and at times had threatened the Allies with disaster. The Allied defense had been accomplished at great cost in manpower but finally the German offensive had been halted.

Marshal Foch reviewed the strategic situation and discussed the amount of American manpower that could be counted on in the program for the counter-offensive that was destined to mark the turning point in the war. In today's instalment he discusses further the participation of American troops.

By MARSHAL FERDINAND FOCH

Commander-in-Chief of the Allied Armies During the Closing Phases of the World War.

CHAPTER XXIII.

At a meeting at Abbeville on May 1 and 2, the Allied governments had fixed a general program for the transport of American troops to France during the months of May and June.

At a new meeting on June 2 at Versailles, they requested Lord Milner, Gen. Pershing and myself to submit a schedule for American transports during the month of July.

An agreement was accordingly reached between us, which confirmed the absolute priority to be given to the transport of infantry during the month of June and proposed that the same priority be observed for July; it was requested that 140,000 infantry and machine gun units be conveyed to France during that month.

The Supreme War Council not only ratified this agreement, but expressed the further desire that the government of the United States, in order to insure the numerical superiority of the Entente, and consequently its victory, should constitute an army of 100 divisions for August 1, 1919, entailing a monthly levy of at least 300,000 men.

Marshal Foch

To this appeal of the Allies to America, Gen. Pershing very shortly took occasion to respond in an indirect but particularly impressive manner.

On June 9, at the moment when the 18th German Army was launching its attacks in the direction of Compiegne, the commander of the American Expeditionary Forces, renewing his gesture of March 28, came to see me at Bombon.

He assured me that he associated himself entirely with the common cause, and that more than ever he fervently desired to see all his divisions taking part in the battle.

At the same time, he constituted himself the interpreter of the unanimous sentiment of the American nation, which, he said, was absolutely determined to throw its whole force into the contest, without counting the cost.

It can be understood how greatly the expression of such sentiments was calculated to facil-

POLICE SEEK HIT-RUN DRIVERS

Many Accidents Mar Outings; Four Motorists Arrested After Crashes

Automobile injuries caused the deaths of two aged men yesterday in local hospitals. Twelve other persons were injured in accidents. Springlike weather filled the highways with motorists and many minor mishaps were reported.

Charles Klich, 63, of Castle Shannon boulevard, Mt. Lebanon, died in South Side Hospital from injuries suffered when he was struck by an automobile in Castle Shannon Thursday.

Harry Naylor, 65, of 420 South Lang avenue, died in Columbia Hospital as a result of being struck by an automobile at Penn and Lang avenues Tuesday.

TWO HIT-RUN VICTIMS

A hit-run motorist who carried his victim into a corner confectionery store and then fled, was being sought by North Side police today.

The victim was James Sproule, 76, of 525 Grandview avenue, who is in Presbyterian Hospital in a serious condition. Sproule suffered a compound fracture of the right leg and severe body bruises when hit by an automobile in Spring Garden avenue, at Wickline lane. The driver of the machine carried the man into the store of Mrs. Mary Schoetz and fled. Police say they know the identity of the owner of the car.

Dorothy Green, Negro, of 629 Herron avenue, was injured last night when a hit-run motorist knocked her from the running board of her automobile while it was parked in front of her home.

2 GIRLS, MAN INJURED

William Lott, 42, of Center, Pa., and Miss Katherine Eaton, 29, of 6372 Alderson street, were injured last night at Hamilton and Braddock avenues, when their automobile collided with a machine driven by Gertrude Schilling, 27, of 760 Hill street. Miss Schilling suffered internal injuries and was removed to her home. Matsie Oblock, driver of the car in which Miss Eaton and Lott were passengers, was arrested on a reckless driving charge.

Miss Eva Wallace, of 5725 Phillips avenue, was cut and bruised early today when a taxicab in which she was riding collided with another car in the Boulevard of the Allies at Van Brahm street. She was treated at Mercy Hospital. Police did not arrest the drivers.

Two children and a woman were injured slightly in an accident at North avenue and Sandusky street, North Side, yesterday. James North, 3, of 5715 Center avenue, was removed to Allegheny General Hospital suffering bruises and Robert Nock, 12, of 1609 Federal street, was treated at Presbyterian Hospital for cuts. Mrs. M. North, 27, mother of James, also was cut and bruised.

AUTO OVERTURNS

Police say the three were passengers in the machine of Sylvester A. Nock, 1609 Federal street, which collided with the car of H. H. Hyams, 1303 Mississippi avenue, Dormont. Nock's car was overturned. Both drivers were arrested.

Patrolman Michael McManus, 358 Lovett street, was to be given a hearing today in Traffic Court on charges of violating the automobile laws. Police say he failed to stop his machine after it struck another car and a fence in Peralto street yesterday. Police say McManus' car hit a fence in front of 903 Peralto street and then struck the car of John Young, of 53 Carrie street.

Three Pittsburghers were injured near Chester, W. Va., when their automobile went over an embankment yesterday. The driver, Edward Lewis, also of Pittsburgh, escaped injury. The injured are James Edwards, 35; Miss Mary Foster, 30, and Miss Nona Ford, 29. The two women were cut and bruised but James Edwards was injured seriously.

Pittsburgh Schools Lead In Music Instruction

Pittsburgh was the third American city to introduce music instruction in public schools, it was revealed today by Dr. Will Earhart, director of music in Pittsburgh schools. He said:

"Lowell Mason introduced music into Boston schools first. Buffalo was next and Pittsburgh followed a year later."

Group piano instruction in public schools of the United States has tripled in the last three years, according to C. M. Tremaine, director of the National Bureau for the Advancement of Music. He said:

"The number of municipalities where piano classes are reported in operation in public schools has increased from 389 in 1929 to 977 in 1931. In 1929, 549 teachers were conducting classes; in 1931, 2,248. Three years ago 2,273 municipalities requested information; 5,202 inquired in 1931. Individual requests increased from 4,089 in 1929 to 14,393 in 1931."

The growth has been spontaneous in Pittsburgh. Dr. Earhart said:

"It is evident that music fulfills and ministers to a need in children. And it has won the faith of parents. No parent is disinclined to provide private instruction for a child who expresses an interest in music. But it is pure speculation, a costly experiment which may end in death of interest and no accomplishment."

Dr. Earhart believes that the boy who has to take private music lessons on Saturday afternoon when other boys are playing is apt to develop a resistance to practicing fatal to success.

POISON LIQUOR CAUSES THREE DEATHS HERE

Secretly Wed

MARY M'CORMIC

PRINCE SERGE MDIVANI

SINGER, PRINCE WED SECRETLY

SANTA MONICA, Cal., April 20.—(AP.)—Another honeymoon may be added by Prince Serge Mdivani and Mary McCormic, opera star, to the one they interrupted after their secret marriage to assist police in tracking robbers who rifled their home of $12,000 worth of furs and rugs.

The prince, a Georgian nobleman and until recently the husband of Pola Negri, film star, said today he and his bride might tour the European capitals as soon as arrangements could be made for a longer absence.

The diva said she married Prince Serge 10 days ago, but neither she nor her husband disclosed where the ceremony was performed. They said upon their return here Saturday night that they had taken an "automobile honeymoon tour through three western states."

TWO ARRESTED IN DRINKING ORGY

Auto Salesman Found Dead in Rooming House; Coroner to Hold Autopsy

Three deaths from acute alcoholism occurred over the week-end, according to reports to the county morgue.

An autopsy on the body of Andrew Ashcom, 24, reputed wealthy automobile salesman, of 5560 Avondale place, East End, revealed death was due to acute alcoholism, according to a coroner's report. Ashcomb was found dead in a rooming house at 409 Ross street yesterday.

The death of Joseph Bozok, 51, whose body lies unclaimed in the morgue, was due to acute alcoholism, according to a coroner's report. He was found dead Saturday in the rear of 45 Orr street.

The death of Frank R. Bergmark, 39, of 56 Eureka street, Saturday, was also caused by alcoholism, coroners say. Two men, who police say were engaged in the drinking orgy that resulted in Bergmark's death, are being held.

ARREST PASTOR OVER 'CURE'

Simon D. Brook, Negro, who said he was the ordained pastor of the Independent Universal Spiritual Association Church in Center avenue, was arraigned in Central Police Court today with three women members of his flock.

Detectives testified that Brook, who was also described as Prince Brook, not only charged $50 membership in his church, but gave spiritual readings and supplied interesting cures to the sick.

Brook and the women—Lula Butler, Nettie Johnson, Alma Anderson, Negroes—were held for investigation.

Struck by Train, Victim Loses Foot

SIEGE CAPTIVE FACES HEARING

Preliminary hearing for Andrew Shusko, Ambridge millworker, who held county detectives, Leetsdale and state police at bay for five hours Friday before he was overcome by tear gas, was to be held today before Alderman George J. Anderson on charges of carrying and pointing firearms.

Shusko, thought to be suffering temporary insanity caused by loss of his job, eviction from his home and the attempted suicide of his wife, threatened officials of the plant and defied arrest.

Mrs. Mary Shusko, who drank posion following eviction from her home, was recovering today at Sewickley Hospital, physicians said.

LOW FARE BUS MEETS FAVOR

Approximately 150 persons used coaches of the Brentwood Motor Coach Company from their homes in Brentwood to Pittsburgh today when the service was started, according to D. L. Feick, president of the company.

A straight fare of 20 cents, or five tokens for 75 cents, is being charged.

Mr. Feick explained that under the permit granted the company by the Public Service Commission, they are permitted to transport persons from Brentwood to the city and return them to the borough.

The company's busses are not allowed to take on or discharge passengers between the intersection of Maytide street and Saw Mill Run boulevard and Forbes street. The route extends from Brownsville road and Saw Mill Run boulevard to the company's downtown terminal in Grant street, between Third and Fourth avenues.

The Brentwood motor coaches cannot take on or discharge passengers between the terminal and Brentwood because of an earlier permit granted to the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company.

PITT MAN DIES IN WAYNESBURG

William M. Harvey, 29, an English instructor at the University of Pittsburgh, died in the home of his parents, Dr. and Mrs. McLeod Harvey, of Waynesburg, Pa., yesterday. A blood ailment, known as Hodgkins disease, noted for its rarity, caused his death. He had been ill since September.

Mr. Harvey was graduated from Waynesburg College in 1927 and for two years taught in Dormont High School. Last year he took up his duties at the university and this year was to have become head of the English Department at the Pitt Junior College, at Erie, Pa., but was unable to take the new position on account of his illness.

He was born in Worcester, Mass., and for several years was engaged in newspaper work. In addition to his parents he leaves his widow, Frances Irwin Harvey; a brother and three sisters. Funeral services were to be held tonight at Waynesburg and burial will be tomorrow in Washington, D. C.

Henry Ford Is Doing Well

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Every year Henry Ford adds a new milestone to his yardage.

While others were weeping softly in executive conference Hank stepped out in 1930 and gathered himself the lumpy sum of $44,000,000 profits.

He did better in 1920. But that's history. And you know Henry's stand on history.

If 44,000,000 spineros is a bad year we would like to get a carbon copy of Caesar's diet.

We feel tough over Mr. Ford's sad 12 months. As a mark of sympathy we will close our one-car garage from twilight to dusk.

If a $44,000,000 profit is a bath in red ink all we ask Henry is to allow us to go to a crimson chemical finish clasped in each other's arms.

And if Mr. Ford wants an expert statistician to help him count that money we can guarantee an almost correct total with a slight evaporation due to sticky fingers.

It looks like another good year for the automotive industry. We wish them all happy reports and trust that Henry doubles that $44,000,000 profit for the fiscal year.

He's doing all right. And as a pedestrian we will continue to try to cross his model T.

VICE CLEAN-UP NEEDED HERE, JURIST SAYS

Judge Gray Renews Charges Linking Politics With Crime; Holds Probe Vain

Judge James H. Gray, of Common Pleas Court, last night renewed his charges that vice and crime prevail in Pittsburgh, because politics prevent the police from performing their duty. In an address in the Warren Methodist Episcopal Church, Center avenue and Watt street, Judge Gray reiterated the statements made originally before the Greentree Advancement Association Thursday night.

Using as his source of information a report published by a committee of the Urban League, Judge Gray declared that a cleanup was in order. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Robert H. Terrell Law Club, composed of Negro attorneys. Other speakers were Attorneys Richard F. Jones, Robert L. Vann, P. J. Clyde Randall and Oliver L. Johnson. Attorney Theron B. Hamilton presided.

After paying tribute to the late Judge Robert H. Terrell, Negro, who for years was a municipal judge in Washington, Judge Gray began his charges against the police department and ward politics. Speaking of the Urban League report, he said:

"If the statements in that report are true, the police have not made any great headway toward ridding the Third and Fifth wards of vice and crime. What do you think would happen in these wards, or in the Fourteenth, where I live, or in any other ward, if the police department were conducted on Christian principles? They would be comparatively free from vice and crime."

After his address, Judge Gray said he would not ask for a grand jury investigation of crime and vice conditions. He said that he did not see what could be gained by a probe, as there are enough investigations going on at present.

MAN BURNED TO DEATH, TWO HURT IN MONTOUR FIRE

WOMAN SAVES BABIES FROM FLAMES

Fireman Overcome as Blaze Damages 2 Stores; Home Destroyed in Explosion

A man was burned to death, two firemen were overcome and two children were carried to safety when fire destroyed the home of Joseph Alleo, at Montour, early yesterday. Gilbert Lawrence, 22, a coal miner, was burned to death. Yolanda, 4, and Bobby, 2, children of Alleo, were carried from the burning building by Miss Marie Franks, housekeeper.

The fire occurred, it was said, when a gasoline stove exploded. Lawrence was a boarder in the Alleo home. William Jenkins, a Montour volunteer fireman, was partially overcome, as was Tony Rea. Rea was burned slightly.

STORES DAMAGED

Michael Pyres, 46, was in the Homestead Hospital today after being overcome by smoke while fighting a fire which damaged the three-story brick structure of the Phillips department store at 308 Eighth avenue, Homestead, early today. The Natz shoe store, adjoining the department store, was damaged slightly. The fire began in the basement of the Phillips building and spread to the upper floors.

A double explosion, thought to have been caused by a leaking gas line, which was followed by fire, destroyed the two-story frame home and garage of Raymond Bowker, in Virginia avenue, Munhall terrace, Saturday midnight. Bowker, his wife and three children were away on a motor trip at the time and there was no one in the dwelling. Walter Gregg, a member of the Franklin Volunteer Fire Department, said that gas had caused the blaze.

PERILED BY GRASS FIRE

A school, several houses, an oil well and a number of small sheds were threatened with destruction last night when a grass fire burned over more than a mile of ground near Harmarville. Volunteer firemen from several communities fought the blaze.

State Treasurer Addresses Ukrainian Rally on U. S.; Revolution Anniversary

Heeding of the ideals of American democracy as a safeguard against the destructive forces of Communism was urged by Gen. Edward Martin, state treasurer, in an address made to more than 2,000 Ukrainians in McKees Rocks yesterday. His address was made on the one hundred and fifty-sixth anniversary of the firing of the first shot in the American Revolution.

The meeting was held as a part of the state wide Americanization program among Ukrainian organizations sponsoring the program have set a goal of 100,000 members in the state. In the Pittsburgh district alone more than 1,500 persons have joined.

Other speakers included Congressman Guy Campbell, the Rev. J. N. Wolushuk, national chaplain of the 40 Hommes and 8 Cheveaux, C. C. Tinstman, member of the Americanization Committee of the State American League organization, and Representative Michael A. Musmanno. The Rev. Dennis Kulmatytsky presided.

3 BANDITS BIND VICTIM, FLEE

After being tied with rags and threatened with death if he attempted to leave the cupboard in which he was made a prisoner by three bandits, Leonard Thom, 24, of Tarentum, night attendant at the Ohio and Pennsylvania Oil Company service station, Freeport road, Cheswick, early today, escaped by a rear window and notified Springdale police from a nearby garage.

The robbers escaped after taking $15 from Thom's pockets and $25 from the register. Springdale police found their machine after a two-hour search. According to Patrolmen Jack Trager and Harry Lloyd, of the Springdale police department, the machine was stolen from Harwick several hours before the holdup.

2 FOUND HURT ON STREETS

East End police are investigating the injuries suffered by two men who were removed to the Pittsburgh Hospital this morning after they had been found unconscious in streets in two different sections of the district. One of the men is in a critical condition, police reported.

Frank Harris, 63, of 1028 Lang avenue, was found unconscious at Lambert street and Hamilton avenue. It was said his skull had been fractured.

Frank Foster, 31, of 6238 Station street, was found at Larimer avenue and Station street. He had suffered severe cuts on the face and head. Police believe the men were injured by automobiles or were victims of fotpads.

This spring the choicest foxes have been tracked down to make collars. So contrary to the usual, the choicest tails are to be had for less than the fortune they would command were they end-on a fox scarf!

Keen on the scent of this happenstance, this foxy manufacturer of ours took to horse and hounds to hunt down the most gorgeous fox brushes you'd want to see. Worked as a furrier knows, they fashion the knock-out tail cuffs, sketched. To you, the price instead of being $59 to $159, as one would reasonably expect, is but $25, full silk lining, and all.

HUGE PROGRAM FOR TROOPS OUTLINED

state the task of the Allied governments. Indeed material obstacles alone put a limit to American co-operation. Unfortunately, these were serious, and I emphasized their importance in a note I addressed on June 14 to the Prime Minister.

Supply Demands Great

In this note, I discussed the basis on which should be established the program for the transport of troops from America to France during the second half of 1918. I brought out, along with my legitimate desire to see the greatest possible number of men sent to France, the causes which might hinder its realization.

I mentioned, among others, the amount of tonnage available, the possibility of finding in France, or nearby, horses necessary for the organization of the American units disembarked each month, the resources in the matter of armament procured in France or furnished by American factories, in short all the ever-increasing demands of supplying the American Army overseas.

The complexity of the problem necessitated "careful preliminary studies in many different departments, as well as agreements to be arrived at between the governments, in order that exact data might be established."

With the consent of the Prime Minister, I directed these studies and, in collaboration with Monsieur Tardieu, who was at that moment in France, I framed a program on the following basis:

"To place the Entente in a position to make with certainty a decisive effort in 1919, it must have an undoubted numerical superiority over the 220 or 240 German divisions; this means the presence of 80 American divisions in the month of April and 100 divisions in the month of July, 1919."

In order that these divisions might have three months' training before embarkation, the last of those to arrive in April, 1919, must be composed of men called up in December, 1918.

American Forces Grow

The formation of each division, taking into account the corresponding proportion assigned to services, army troops, etc., entailed the incorporation of 41,600 men. Consequently, including replacements, a minimum of 30,000 men must be enrolled during each of the last six months of 1918 and the first four months of 1919.

This program was approved by Gen. Pershing at a conference held in Chaumont on June 23. It was then submitted on July 2 to the members of the Supreme War Council at Versailles, who likewise adopted it and transmitted it to President Wilson.

He replied immediately that there would be 100 American divisions in France on July 1, 1919, and that other divisions would follow if necessary.

The principal difficulty, that of tonnage, was next settled, thanks in the first place to the tremendous impetus given to the American merchant fleet, and in the second to the help of the British Admiralty, which undertook to make good any unforseen shortage.

However, the rapid growth of the American forces rendered all the more pressing Gen. Pershing's desire to form them into an autonomous army. On July 10, he came to see me with a request to expedite as much as possible the formation into army corps of American divisions then in the French zone. He also asked me to furnish artillery for these divisions which had none, drawing it, if necessary, from French units.

Agreed With Pershing

I was emphatic on this occasion in once more assuring Gen. Pershing that no one desired more fervently than myself the constitution of American corps, armies and sectors, in which American troops would fight an American battle, and that my best efforts were being directed to this end.

I was, indeed, firmly convinced that the soldiers of any country only give their best when fighting under their own leaders and under their own colors. National self-esteem is then engaged.

Gen. Pershing's experience and character, moreover, were a guarantee that, whenever he might engage American troops, he would halt after success had been achieved. Unfortunately, the lack of guns still prevented the furnishing of artillery to all the American divisions or army corps which it might have been possible to form.

However, the object of the Entente was to obtain an indispensable superiority in numbers, and it would scarcely have accorded with its interests to deprive French units of their artillery for the benefit of American units.

On the contrary, the American divisions which had no artillery would be very advantageously used to relieve French divisions in quiet sectors, and so make the latter available for battle.

The collaboration of the American Army was not applied solely to the western front.

On July 17, Gen. Bliss came to Bombon to see me concerning Lord Milner's request addressed to President Wilson in regard to the dispatch of an American contingent of 4,000 men (three battalions and two batteries) to Murmansk and Archangel.

President Wilson, as much for reasons of prudence as through his unwillingness to reduce the number of American troops and the corresponding transportation destined for the French front, was little inclined to accede to Lord Milner's suggestion.

Favors Intervention

However, six days later, having learned that the Germans had transferred a certain number of divisions from Russia to France, I, in my turn telegraphed to President Wilson that this fact could be regarded as "a decisive argument in favor of the intervention by the Allies in Siberia."

On June 27, in a second telegram to the President of the United States, I again stressed the point and requested him to send two American regiments as soon as possible to Siberia.

On July 2, the question was submitted to the Supreme War Council during its meeting at Versailles, and the whole matter taken in hand by the heads of the Allied governments.

As can be seen, in order to insure the formation or the maintenance of the troops under its direction the Supreme Allied Command was called upon to extend more and more its field of action until it reached the interior of each Allied country, and embraced the whole theater of operations, where Allied interests were at stake. The Doullens formula had been singularly enlarged.

But, while the war in all its aspects and on all its theaters claimed attention, it was still on the western front that the decisive game was being played; and the western front comprised all that vast territory which stretched from the mouth of the Yser to the mouth of the Piave.

In spite of the preoccupation which the operations in France inspired, the importance and interest presented by the Italian theater could not be lost sight of. For events on the two sides of the Alps necessarily induced reactions upon each other.

In the first place, it was important that the Allied arms should suffer no harm in Italy, and then, as soon as possible, they must be given the possibility of achieving victory. It was with this end in view that, at the Abbeville conference, I had been entrusted with a mission of co-ordination in what concerned the Italian theater of operations.

It was like "old home week" to tune in Dave Harmon at WLW and at the next flip of the dial pick up Dewey Bergman at WBEN . . .

An announcer at WTAM was chewing gum. Stepping to the microphone to make the station standby, he blurted "Wreck Network" for "Red Network" . . .

Dudley Mecum, Don Bestor's funny man, coming out of a book store . . . well, what's he reading? . . . why, Dudley . . . tsh . . . tsh . . . tsh . . . "Sex and Civilization!" . . .

Madame Schumann-Heink is to sing over WCAE at 3:30 on Sunday afternoon, April 26.

A week from Wednesday—the 29th—Bebe Daniels sings "The Little Things in Life" for Pleasure Hour listeners on KDKA . . .

"Memory Lane" Saturday night was mostly about children . . . and lovely presented . . .

WLS saluted "Mother" . . . and we said "Amen" to their suggestion that we give flowers and courtesies to the Mother who wears a sunbonnet today instead of waiting until Mother wears a crown in heaven . . .

The Radio Commission is working on a plan to provide 10 additional channels by reducing the deviation tolerance of broadcasters from 500 cycles to 50 cycles . . .

Asked to use the words "Ben Hur" in a sentence, Wamp Carlson, of the Jesters, replied: "A woman I know found $10,000 in a purse. How would you like to have Ben Hur?"

Fred Webber, who knows his Bostonese like Uncle Sam knows his Nicaraguans, spilled a big laugh the other night when the Cavaliers, singing "Dinah," forgot the southern accent and said "in Caroliner" . . .

The LOUDSPEAKER

—By LOUIS REID—

NEW YORK, April 20.—To be a successful foreign representative of the radio rajahs one must be something of a ferret and must possess the tact and persuasiveness of a politician.

To track down statesmen, scientists or other public men of wide renown with the purpose of leading them to trans-Atlantic air waves is a tough assignment. Yet Cesar Searchinger has been eminently successful in it. It is to him that we owe a good part of the glamor of trans-Atlantic broadcasts.

His newspaper training has been, of course, an aid to his labors. Yet, it has been something, too, of a handicap. The bigwigs of Britain are notoriously opposed to American newspaper methods. They are traditionally hostile to casual telephone calls and interviews.

They insist on being first approached by letter. Then if the circumstance is favorable and the weather is propitious and the tea has not been kept waiting and a careful scrutiny of the empire's news has been made and innumerable details have been attended to a resonse to the reportorial knock may be considered in order.

Searchinger can show an amazing collection of British big shots in his corral. During the few months he has been on the job he has marshaled an imposing parade for the American armchairs. Save the shy Barrie I can think of no one among the leading men of letters who has escaped him. Noted statesmen, churchmen, surgeons, industrialists—all have been grist to his mill. Yet he has had his troubles in snaring them.

Take the case of Viscount Grey, of Falloden, England's outstanding elder statesman. Today the man who guided the foreign policy of the British Empire at the outbreak of the war lives in retirement. Nothing but what he considers public duty will induce him to leave his Northumberland estate where he rests among his birds and the haunts of nature that give him solace in his old age. His health is uncertain; he refuses almost all invitations; he doesn't even go to court.

How to get such a man to broadcast? He was written to; he politely refused. "I tried an appointment," says Searchinger. "His secretary warded it off."

It was decided to approach him in a different way. The ruling passion of Lord Grey, the man who signed England's declaration of war in 1914, is peace. Secondly, he is a historian, and certain historical figures have a particular appeal to his heart. George Washington is one of them.

Peace in England today is synonomous with Anglo-American understanding. That is why Lord Grey is president of the English-Speaking Union. Lord Grey—as Lord Grey—may be unapproachable, but Lord Grey as the head of the English-Speaking Union is something else.

The secretary of the union happens to be the editor of a noted political weekly. Searchinger interviewed him. He converted him to the idea that Lord Grey speaking on George Washington on Washington's birthday would foster Anglo-American understanding, and the union supported the request of Columbia's European representatives for an interview with the statesman.

PIRATES LOSE GRANTHAM

Sport Comment

By JAMES J. LONG

Value of Buc Slab Ace. Good Start by Regan. Indian Rookie Shines. Klein's Great Record. Hidden-Ball Claims. Diving Star's Advance.

KREMER WINS 10 OF 11 RED GAMES

THE SUCCESS OF Remy Kremer in pitching the Pirates to a 5-to-1 victory in Cincinnati yesterday for their second successive win showed what a hard blow it had been to the Bucs to be deprived of the services of the veteran slab ace in the opening series in Chicago, to say nothing of the loss of Ervin Brame in addition. True, there's quite a difference between beating the feeble Reds and doing the same thing to the powerful Cubs, but the form Kremer is showing now indicates that if he had been available in Chicago the Rovers might have succeeded in getting an even break there instead of losing three out of four games.

Remy Kremer

At first glance Remy would appear to have been still handicapped by the effects of his recent illness, inasmuch as he gave the unusual number of six bases on balls in addition to eight hits, but that he was the Kremer of old when the sacks were occupied is indicated by the fact that out of 15 Reds who got on the bases 14 were left there, and that Remy would have started off with a shutout but for an error by Lloyd Waner.

IT MEANS A LOT to the Bucs to have Kremer in a winning stride in the early season as he is still the kingpin of the local staff, and as he goes so goes the club. Last year, though he wound up with 20 victories, a mark equaled in the National League only by Pat Malone, he got off to a wobbly start and had to be lifted from 10 of his first 11 games.

Evidently Kremer has lost none of his old ability to baffle the Cincinnati hitters. Yesterday's victory was another addition to a remarkable record he has made against the Reds. Few hurlers in the majors have defeated one club so consistently. Kremer won his last game against the Reds in 1928, four out of five in 1929, and four straight in 1930. Counting yesterday's win he has beaten them seven times in succession and 10 times in his last 11 games against them. He has not lost a decision to them since June 26, 1929, when he was defeated by Adolfo Luque at Forbes Field, 6 to 4. Yesterday's defeat was the fifth for the Reds in five starts, but at that they have fared no worse than Brooklyn's pennant aspirants.

BILL REGAN got an early chance to show his value to the Pirates, and in the first championship game he ever played for his home-town club he acquitted himself creditably, accepting eight out of nine chances at second base and contributing a two-bagger to the attack.

Regan's fielding skill assures that the Corsairs will not lose anything defensively when Grantham is out, but at that the news that the latter will be back at his post within a few days is encouraging, as George's spring hitting punch cannot well be spared.

WHEN THE SEASON started, Manager Roger Peckinpaugh decided to keep his new rookie outfielder, Joe Vosmik, out of the first game because he feared the youngster would be too nervous. He took a chance in the second game, and look what Joe has done since: Four games, 18 times at bat, 12 hits for a total of 22 bases, batting average a mere .667. On Saturday he became the first player of the year to make five hits in a game, and of his 12 hits to date seven have been for extra bases—a home run, a triple and five doubles. Too bad about that nervous kid. He may make some trouble for the pitchers when he settles down and gets a grip on himself.

Chuck Klein

CHUCK KLEIN may be the Babe Ruth or the Ty Cobb of the future, the man who will be heading the swatting parade for years after the Bambino has followed Cobb into retirement.

This young Chuck, 25 last October and with only two and a half years of major league experience behind him, is already one of the topliners of the big show, and he is advancing at a rate that indicates he may be the outstanding hitter of the fast set for many seasons to come. His grand average since he came up has been .369, a mark superior to that of Cobb, Ruth, Wagner, Hornsby or Jackson.

KLEIN SHOWED HIS class as the most improved ball player in the country last year when he set a modern National League record of 158 runs scored, a new league record of 107 long hits, and a new league record of 59 two-baggers.

That new record for doubles displaced a mark that had stood for 31 years, Ed Delehanty having set the former record of 56 in 1899. Klein, besides, established a new major league mark with 44 assists from the outfield, a new record of 850 total bases on hits in two consecutive seasons and until Hack Wilson made 56 last year he held the National League mark of 43 homers.

JUDGING FROM HIS start Klein may accomplish even greater things during 1931. In the first game of the season he made two home runs, in the second he made one homer, a triple and two singles and though he went hitless yesterday his record for five games up to date is eight hits for 21 bases in 21 times at bat, an average of .381, six runs scored and six long hits made, including three homers, a triple and two doubles. And he didn't have any spring training, either. Just a natural born great ball player.

RECENTLY SOMEBODY BOBBED up to deny the old story that the trick of hiding a football under a jersey and running for a touchdown had been first pulled by Frank Dillon, of the Carlisle Indians, in a game against Harvard. It was said the trick had been invented earlier by Prof. C. V. P. Young, of Cornell. Now comes Burr Chamberlin, old Yale tackle, to claim the credit for Alonzo Stagg.

"Before any more roses are pinned on Prof. Young for inventing the hidden ball trick in football," Chamberlin remarked to John Kerin, "you might look up the records of the Yale-Springfield game when Lon Stagg was coaching at Springfield and Van Luven was playing end for him. I was a kid at Andover at the time, and I may be mistaken, but I think Stagg was the inventor of the trick. Stagg, Harry Williams and George Woodruff, all of about the same period at Yale, among them invented about all the tricks of football with the exception of the spinner, and you might discover that among their old plays the diagrams could be found."

IN DON M'DONALD, who handles the bi-weekly wrestling bouts in Los Angeles, and who officiated in the recent match there between Don George and Strangler Lewis, California claims to have America's premier grappling referee.

McDonald has served in 142 championship mat and boxing contests and in more than 5,000 matches, all told. He does it merely as a hobby, too. He is a prominent Long Beach bail and bond broker of independent means. A graduate of the University of California, he started his grappling career 18 years ago. Wrestling as a middleweight he won the Pacific Coast A. A. U. championship in 1915-16-17.

Georgia Coleman

FEW CHAMPIONS IN any branch of sports have risen to the heights in such a brief space of time as Miss Georgia Coleman, holder of the women's fancy diving title. According to James Burchard, she walked into the Pasadena Athletic Club three years ago and two months later won the national junior crown. Four months afterward, the first time she ever attempted high platform diving, she triumphed in the final Olympic tryouts. With that limited experience she went to Amsterdam and captured two second places in the Olympics. Fred Cady, Los Angeles A. C. coach, says she learned 11 dives in 30 days. Only 19 on January 23, Georgia will be graduated from a Los Angeles High School in June.

FORMER MAJOR LEAGUER JOINS DALYMEN

By TOM BIRKS

Walter Kimmick, Wilmerding star who formerly played in the big leagues as a member of the Cincinnati Reds, has been signed to play for the Homewood club, in the City League, it was announced today by Hank Daly, manager of the team.

The signing of Kimmick about completes the roster of the Homewood club. Curley Semler, former Stowe star, will start in center field, with Johnny Pearson patrolling the left field pasture.

GOT START HERE

Kimmick is one of the many local boys who made the grade in the majors. He started playing with the old Westinghouse Airbrake team, playing shortstop along with such old favorites as Eddie Artman and Joe Gannon. Kimmick soon attracted the attention of big league scouts and it wasn't long before he worked out with the St. Louis Cardinals and Pittsburgh Pirates.

However, he landed in the Blue Ridge League, which loop sold him to the Cincinnati Reds. Local fans recall the day the Pirates were battling the Reds for second place in the National League pennant race. Kimmick went in to pinch-hit against Wilbur Cooper and he came through with a single to clinch the berth for the Reds.

PLAYED ON COAST

After a long stay with the Reds, Kimmick was shipped to the Pacific Coast League, where he attracted the attention of big league scouts, this time landing with the Phillies. Kimmick went from the Phillies to Nashville, then to Bridgeport, where he led the Eastern League in slugging for two years.

Kimmick is engaged in business with his father in Turtle Creek and is satisfied to remain at home and play sandlot baseball. He should prove a big star for the Dalymen.

HORNING LOSES SOCCER TILT

Playing under a hot sun, the Mollenauer team, of the Panhandle League, qualified to meet Shannon Fintex eleven in the final round of the spring junior tournament by defeating Horning by a 2-goals-to-0 score at Castle Shannon yesterday afternoon.

This was a replayed game and was a ding-dong battle throughout. Horning played a great game, but could do little with the Mollenauer defense.

The teams finished the first half deadlocked. It was the brilliant runs and shooting of Bobby Brown that eliminated the Greens from the tourney. Brown got away with two solo efforts. The first one found him beating the entire Horning defense to score from close in.

In exhibition games yesterday, the Crafton eleven defeated the German Sport Club, 5 to 2, in a game played at Turner Field and Curry won over the Pierpoint Motors, 3 to 2, at Curry.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF SATURDAY: SNOW SET FIRE TO A CAR OF IRON—During the winter of 1900, while employes of the Trigg Shipbuilding Company, Richmond, Va., were loading a car of iron filings and lathe cuttings for shipment to a smelter, the car and contents caught fire during the night and burned. Snow blew through the openings of the car, causing rapid oxidation of the newly-cut iron and steel from nascent water of the melting snow, which resulted in the firing of the car. This was witnessed by Clarendon Ions, Realty Board Building, Miami, Fla., who assisted in loading the car. THE MAN WHO COULDN'T TALK WITHOUT LYING—The Civil War veteran, who, until his recent death, lived in Letohatchee, Ala., had a bullet lodged in his throat in such a way that the pressure affected his voice. Unless he lay flat on his back he could not utter a word. This unique case is attested to by Mrs. A. E. Perry, of Manitou, Colo., who sketched the drawing. AN APPLE WAS ORIGINALLY "A NAPPLE"—Brocket gives "napple" as the ancient English spelling of the word "apple.". There are several such words beginning with "a," the spelling of which underwent a similar transformation. Thus "apron" was originally "napron," "orange" was "norance," etc. A STORAGE BATTERY DOES NOT STORE ELECTRICITY—When the two terminals, positive and negative, of a storage battery are connected a chemical action takes place which causes it to produce an electrical spark. Electricity cannot be stored, but is available through its agents when the chemical action is caused to take place. Electricity from a dynamo is not available until it is created in the magnetic fields as it turns, being driven by another power.

CINCINNATI, April 20.—Second Baseman George Grantham will be missing from the home opener lineup of the Pirates on Wednesday afternoon. Developments today were to the effect that the regular keystone tender has a leg injury which will keep him out of action indefinitely.

Grantham

So when the Buccos take on the Cubs in the holiday spectacle, a son of old Oakland will be at second base. Bill Regan, who played the post yesterday, will stay on the job. His fielding yesterday was of a strict major league quality, and he did not make the error with which he was charged by the scorers. Regan was not even supposed to cover on the play in question, but he stopped the rocket after Remy Kremer had tossed it high.

LIMPED AT CAMP

Grantham's ailment is in the nature of a ruptured blood vessel in upper left leg. He says he thinks it came from a quick start he made while the Buccos were playing the Cubs. George was not in camp long this season before he was limping, and doubtless he was favoring the leg when he made the bad start. In any event he is hors de combat, and Regan, who has not fully recovered from a sprained ankle, must hold down the post.

Forbes Field patrons will be pleased over the fielding actions of Oakland Bill, and he looks the part of a real hitter. The grace and skill he uses in fielding bad grounders has made a marked impression on Manager Ens and other Pirate veterans.

MISSES SHUTOUT

Remy Kremer almost turned in a shutout victory over the Reds yesterday as he made his season's debut on the slab. Kremer gave a masterly exhibition while his pals

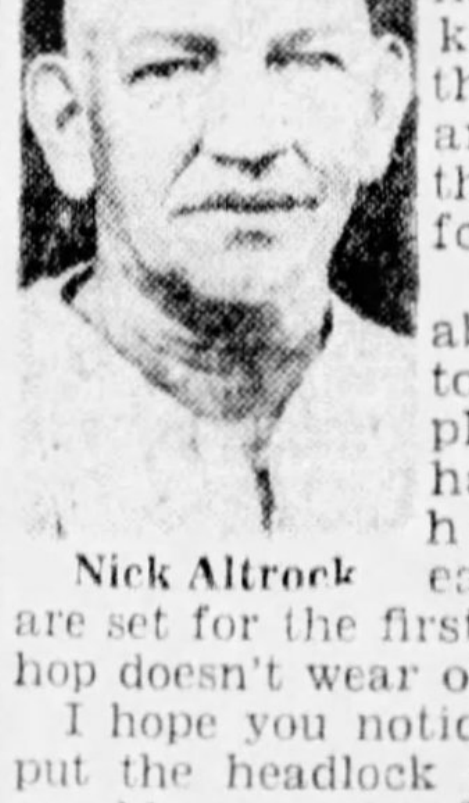
Says Nick Altrock

(Baseball's Comedian)

WASHINGTON, April 20.—If these Brooklyn Robins are pennent contenders, they are certainly sneaking up on the flag by a wide detour. I didn't think the Robins would have the stuffing knocked out of them so early and be sent to the taxidermist for repairs.



Nick Altrock

And don't ask about those Boston Braves. They play like they had a jab of heroin before each game. They are set for the first division if the hop doesn't wear off.

I hope you noticed the way we put the headlock on the A's. As an old garage mechanic I will tell you Connie Mack won't get any ignition out of this year's team until he cures that battery trouble.

TRACK MARKS UNIMPRESSIVE

By JESS CARVER

In spite of anything anyone could do, the intercollegiate track and field campaign stepped off on its 1931 campaign last Saturday. Nothing of special note happened; no noteworthy performances were turned in in any of the three meets that had to do with district squads and as was generally expected West Virginia's men of might established themselves as the king-pins of the area.

M. Armentrout.

Pitt was very soundly walloped by Ohio State at Columbus. Carnegie Tech won with points to spare over an unusually strong P. A. A. array, and West Virginia kicked over Geneva by a margin of 35 points. Geneva admitted prior to the meet that it was weak in the field events. The result showed very plainly that the Covenanters knew whereof they chattered.

ARMY LOOKS GOOD

Possibly the most encouraging result of the Tech-P. A. A. meet, to Coach Halferty of the Tartans, was the promise shown by Murray Giles Armentrout, Tech's football captain-to-be, in the hammer throw. Murray Giles did not win the event, but in a special swing after the event was over, he twirled the iron ball 128 feet 3 inches, which was a sight further than Dexter, of the P. A. A. shoved it in winning.

If Armentrout can get better

Sport Vignettes

Jewel Ens, manager of our Pirates, who will be permitted to come home to open the National League season on Wednesday, now that they have a few victories under their belts, is a most sympathetic fellow . . . Although Hack Wilson didn't sing "Give Me Something to Remember You By," a Chicago fan tossed some over-ripe oranges at the Martinsburgh (W. Va.) slugger the other day, and Hack, the Whacker, was telling Jewel about it the following day . . . Big Hearted Jewel's comeback was merely, "You're lucky the watermelon season isn't here!" . . . Nice fellow, that Jewel . . . It cannot be truthfully said that the awarding of the best dog in the show honors to Champion Blue Dan of Happy Valley at the conclusion of Bob Maloney's highly successful bench show at Motor Square Garden over the week-end came in the nature of a surprise . . . The English setter was a standout, nothing less, in the field of bluebloods of the canine kingdom that vied for the laurels, and has been a consistent winner everywhere it has been shown . . . Dr. A. A. Mitten, its owner, is the son of the late traction magnate of Philadelphia, and the dog's trainer, Ben Lewis, of Lansdowne, Pa., is one of the best in the country, if not the best conditioner . . . Blue Dan has scored sweeping victories in Madison Square Garden, New York; Washington, D. C.; Raleigh, N. C.; Kansas City, Washington, Pa., and elsewhere, and therefore did not enter the local competition as any part of a "dark horse" dog.

A St. Louis layer of odds will bet you 4 to 1 against the chances of Equipoise and 7 to 1 against Twenty Grand, the two favorites in the Kentucky Derby. . . . He'll also give you 10 to 1 against the chances of Equipoise winning both the Preakness and the Derby and 20 to 1 against Twenty Grand's chances of scoring a double triumph. . . . The odds against Equipoise in the Preakness are 5 to 2 and against Twenty Grand 3 to 1. . . . Mate is the third choice in both events at 10 to 1 in the Derby, 4 to 1 in the Preakness and 40 to 1 against a double victory.

The same bookie rates the Cubs the best bet to win the National League pennant, at odds of 2½ to 1 against, with the Cards, Robins and Giants second choices at 3 to 1 and the Pirates fifth at 4 to 1. He'll give you 60 to 1 against the Braves and Phillies and 200 to 1 against the Reds. . . . The Athletics are less than even money to win their third straight American League pennant, at 7 to 10, with no betting on their chances of finishing second or third. . . . The Yankees are second choice at 3 to

BRAME ARRIVES FOR OPENER

Ervin Brame, star righthander of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who was left behind in Chicago when the Corsairs invaded Cincinnati for their present series, due to illness, arrived in Pittsburgh this morning to await the return of his teammates tomorrow.

Brame was feeling none too well this morning after spending a bad night in the Pullman from Chicago. The tall righthander is stopping at Webster Hall.

Fall River Wins National Soccer Title

CHICAGO, April 20.—(AP.)—Playing with only 10 men failed to handicap the Fall River Yankees yesterday and they defeated the Chicago Brick Layers, 2 to 0, at Sparta Field, to clinch the national soccer championship.

Scotty Nilson left the Yankees Friday to join a Norwegian team, and Capt. McNab suffered a fractured right arm at Detroit Sunday, leaving the club a man shy.

Patenaude, the Yankee's sensational center forward, scored after 18 minutes of play in the first half, and Burness counted early in the second half after a free kick by White.

Westminster Track Schedule Announced

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., April 20.—Six track meets, four of them dual engagements, have been carded for the Westminster College track team. One dual meet, for May 16, is pending. The schedule:

April 25, Grove City at New Wilmington; May 1 and 2, Ohio Relays at Columbus, O.; May 9, Allegheny at Meadville; May 16 (pending); May 20, Geneva at Beaver Falls; May 30, Tri-State Conference championships at Beaver Falls.

STRIKEOUT FEATS MARK BIG LEAGUE FRAYS

HITTERS BOW TO SKILL OF HURLERS

Associated Press.

If major league pitchers can continue their performances of the season's first few games, some of the strikeout records may be in serious danger. Whether it is the changed ball or a mere epidemic or poor batting eyes, fanning this year seems to occur more often than in previous seasons when slugging was the rage.

Seven hurlers in the two major leagues struck out five or more rivals in yesterday's eight games and in many cases that was not enough to win or even keep the pitcher on the mound for nine innings. Big Fred Fitzsimmons, of the New York Giants led the way, fanning seven of the Boston Braves as his team won 9 to 2. Fitz limited the Braves to six hits in giving them their first defeat of the season while the Giants got 14 blows to go into a three-way tie for the league lead.

SOX BEAT BROWNS

In a long drawn out game which saw the Chicago White Sox whip the St. Louis Browns, 12 to 6, 14 men struck out. Sam Gray, one of four St. Louis pitchers, and credited with the loss, and Garland Braxton, of Chicago, each whiffed five. With a near record crowd of 80,000 looking on Rube Walberg, of Philadelphia, bested Charley Ruffing, of the New York Yankees, 3 to 2, in a pitching and fanning duel. Walberg struck out six and allowed the same number of hits. Ruffing fanned five while giving seven hits.

Charley Root, of the Chicago Cubs, and Remy Kremer, of Pittsburgh, also were credited with six strikeouts apiece. Root was wild at the start but good Cub fielding aided him in turning back the St. Louis Cardinals, 4 to 1. It was the first defeat for the Cards, putting them level with the Braves and Giants. Weak base-running by the Reds rendered Kremer's six walks harmless to Pittsburgh as the Pirates won, 5 to 1. Cincinnati had 14 men left on base.

BROWN HURLS WELL

Good pitching also came to the fore in the other American League games, bringing victories to Washington and Detroit. Lloyd Brown's mound work helped the Senators take the lead by shutting out the Boston Red Sox 8-0. Earl Whitehill turned back Cleveland with seven hits, stopping all of the Indians but young Joe Vosmik to win, 7 to 2. Vosmik's homer brought in both Cleveland runs and with a single left him with a batting average of .667 for five games.

Philadelphia's two Elliotts combined to hold Brooklyn to seven blows in the remaining National League game and hand the Robins their fifth straight defeat, 6 to 4, in 10 innings. Homers by O'Doul and Herman were the leading Brooklyn blows.

Yanks May Set Major Crowd Record

NEW YORK, April 20.—(AP.)—The New York Yankees apparently are bent on setting a new attendance record for major league baseball this season. They've played five games so far and drawn an aggregate attendance of 205,000, an average of 41,000 a game.

Yesterday 80,403 jammed the Yankee Stadium to watch Philadelphia trip Joe McCarthy's men, 3-2. The only larger crowd came to the Stadium in September, 1928, when 85,265 saw the Yankees beat the A's twice in a Sunday double-header.

HUB MARATHON UNDER WAY

BOSTON, April 20.—(AP.)—One hundred and eighty-seven runners were sent away sharply at noon today from Hopkinton in the setart of the thirty-fifth annual marathon of the Boston Athletic Association. The weather was clear and warm.

The temperature was higher than in several years, threatening difficulty for the runners when they hit the hills to be encountered half way through the long grind of 26 miles 385 yards from the start to the finish line at B. A. A. clubhouse.

Among the members in the pack that jumped off from the starting line was the veteran Clarence H. De Mar, seven times winner and favorite in today's race; John C. Miles, of Hamilton, Ont., winner in 1926 and 1929 and holder of the time record of 2:33:08 4-5 for the course; Carl Linder, of the Boston A. A., winner in 1919; William Kennedy, of Port Chester, N. Y., winner in 1917, and several who finished the first 10 last year.

than 130 in the meets to come, he'll rank right up there with the best slingers in the section. Hill, of West Virginia, threw the hammer 143 feet 11 inches against Geneva and Berry, of Ohio State, for 131 feet 1¾ inches against Pitt.

The performances in the Pitt-Ohio dual were greatly superior to those in the Geneva-West Virginia tussle. At Columbus, the boys excelled in the 100, 220, high and low hurdles, 440, half mile, discus and broad jump.

Morgantown turned in best performances in the mile, two-mile, hammer, high jump, shotput and the javelin and gained in a tie at 12 feet in the pole vault. So much for all that.

The Tipoff

Maybe it was from looking at too many basketball games, or maybe it's just plain old age, but these astigmatized eyes viewed a sight Saturday night they never in the world expected to see. The sight was the one and only Benny Kile, former Geneva and local semi-pro and professional football player decked out in a swallow-tailed coat and, believe it or not, a high silk hat . . . a topper, if you will.

If the great Kile has gone for toppers, anything may happen, and probably will.

Tut Melman, not so long back a swell performer at Fifth Avenue High, has been appointed basketball coach at Slippery Rock High School. He succeeds Neenie Campbell, of the Homestead Campbells. all John needs to develope is form to be- Rock while tutoring the high schoolers.

Two affairs have been scheduled in the way of honoring the state basketball champions of Scott High, North Braddock. Friday, there will be a big town meeting in the school auditorium and Wednesday evening, April 29, the boys will be guests of honor at a tri-borough banquet in the Edgewood Country Club.

Johnny Karcis didn't do so bad in Tech's meet with the P. A. A. He was good for 129 feet, a new school mark, in the discus, and was second in the shot. More than bountifully supplied with natural strength, all Johns needs to develope is form to become a real figure in track. His red-dog game, however, hasn't improved from football season to any noticeable extent.

Mike (Joe Palooka) Sebastain, of Sharon, is running at a halfback for Pitt in spring practice and is running very well. He and Jimmy Clark, who was a fullbacker last year, have been working as halfbacks this spring, with fairly satisfactory results.

MORGAN BOUT OFF

LOS ANGELES, April 20.—(AP.)—A wrenched shoulder, which Tod Morgan, California junior-lightweight champion, suffered while training last week, forced him to cancel his 10-round match here tomorrow night with Cecil Payne, Los Angeles.

PIRATES LOSE GRANTHAM

saw to it that the ace had a nice margin of tallies on which to work. The score was 5 to 1.

Remy reached dizzy heights in the third when he fanned Stripp, Cuccinello and Cullop, three sluggers, with two runners on the sacks.

Lloyd Waner's muff of a hot liner and a later muff of a double-play toss by Thevenow spoiled the chances of a shutout success.

The Reds scored their lone tally as these missed plays developed. The same round, Regan contributed a fine play that took the Pirates out of a bad jam. Traynor let fly with a low throw to Bill. Regan made a scoop of the bad fling and then ended the game by making another force play.

TRAYNOR CLINCHES GAME

Capt. Pie Traynor put the game on the ice in the third when he whacked a fine triple to left center with two of his mates on the sacks and two out. The two runs were added to one made in the first and two more were picked up in the fourth and fifth.

Silas Johnson showed the Buccos a lot of stuff, but the young Red righthander had all the worst of the breaks, quite a few of the Pirate hits being of the handle variety. Kolp and Frey finished on the mound for the home team.

The official scorer made an excusable error in charging one to Regan in the eighth. Cullop was on first with none out when Roettger hit to Kremer. Thevenow was supposed to cover and he was moving toward the bag when Kremer threw high and wide. Regan, backing up the play in the regulation manner, stopped the ball and was charged with an error for failing to cover. In other words, he was penalized for a smart play, but those things will occur.

SCHOOL GRID STAR DIES

Calvin Martin, a guard on the Braddock High School football squad, died at the McKeesport Hospital yesterday from spinal meningitis. Martin was hurt in a spring practice game a couple of weeks ago, and it is believed the injury led up to his death.

He was 17 years old and also played on the basketball team.

The second annual Peter Dawson special international relay foot race, for the championship of the world, at between 400 and 450 miles through the Province of Quebec, starting in Montreal Sunday, August 2, and finishing in the Montreal Baseball Stadium the following Sunday, is just announced . . . Last year's run, the successor to Charley Pyle's ill-fated American cross-country marathon, drew entries from all over the world and the forthcoming event is expected to prove an even bigger feature . . . There will be $10,000 in prizes, with $3,000 going to the winning team, and an additional $500 to the first Canadian team to finish, and awards all the way down to tenth place . . . It costs only $25 to enter and entries may be sent to Armand Vincent, manager, Suite 416, Amherst Building, Montreal, Canada.—HARRY KECK.

GIANTS SCORE 4-3 WIN OVER BRAVES

BOSTON, April 20.—(AP.)—John Berly, making his major league debut, pitched the New York Giants to a 4-to-3 victory over Boston today in the morning game of a Patroit Day program. Berly held the Braves to seven hits in 8⅓ innings, Joe Heving finishing the ninth round on the mound for the Giants.

A three-base hit by Bill Terry in the eighth inning was converted into the winning run by Bruce Cunningham's wild pitch.

SEATTLE GIRL SWIM QUEEN

NEW YORK, April 20.—(AP.)—Four days of spectacular performances by Helene Madison, the Seattle nymph, provided the principal attraction for packed galleries that witnessed the 1931 national women's swimming championship but the well-balanced team of the Women's Swimming Association, of New York, romped away with the club honors.

By winning three first places and numerous seconds and thirds in the four-day water festival, the New York mermaids carried off high honors with a total of 39 points. Thanks to Miss Madison's winning ways, the Washington Athletic Club of Seattle finished second, with 27, with the Los Angeles Athletic Club in third place with 15. The Scranton Swimming Association scored seven points and Carnegie Library of Homestead, six.

Although she came east with a reputation of having cracked the existing records almost every time she entered the water for the past year, Miss Madison failed even to equal the established marks in any of the three events she won here. She captured the 100-yard, 220-yard and 500-yard free style championships.

The Seattle star climaxed her eastern invasion by winning the 500-yard event yesterday, beating her closest rival, Lenore Kight, of Homestead, Pa., by more than 20 yards.

Her only defeat of the meet came in yesterday's opening event, where she could place no better than third in the 100-yard back stroke. The new national champions:

220-yard free style—Helene Madison, Seattle.
500-yard free style—Helen Madison, Seattle.
300-yard medley—Eleanor Holm, New York.
400-yard relay—Washington Athletic Club, Seattle.
Low board fancy diving—Georgia Coleman, Los Angeles.

SCHOOL LINKS LOOP CHANGED

The addition of Langley and Oliver and the withdrawal of McKeesport has been announced by Capt. W. A. Palmer, of Shady Side, secretary of the Interscholastic Golf Conference. The additions bring the membership of the conference to five, Shady Side Academy, Allderdice and Kiski being the other members.

Hollidaysburg may join the organization between now and Friday, when the playing schedule is booked to get under way. Langley has been assigned McKeesport's dates and Oliver's schedule will be worked out later. Neither of the new entries has decided where it will plays its home matches. Langley intends to seek the South Hills Country Club, while Oliver will seek to use Highland.

TROPHY OFFERED

The teams will play for a trophy to be donated by Mrs. Donald C. Lott.

Pro golfers of the tri-state district will be the guests of the United States Rubber Company at a banquet in the William Penn Hotel this evening. A feature of the affair will be the showing of motion pictures of golf playing and merchandising.

James Fownes, president of the P. G. A., has announced that the state amateur tournament will be played over the Aronimink Club course, at Newton Square, Pa., July 8, 9 and 10. Greer McIlvain, Oakmont star, will defend the title he won last year.

TEAMS NAMED

Oakmont, Highland, Shannopin, South Hills, Hannastown, Fox Chapel, Allegheny, Chartiers Heights, Field Club, Greensburg, Valley Heights, St. Clair, Westmoreland, Stanton Heights, Alcoma and Longue Vue will participate in the West Penn team matches this year.

Al Banuet Wins In Matches at Y

Al Banuet, national singles handball champion for the past three years, turned in three triumphs in exhibition matches at the Y. M. H. A. yesterday, after having won two singles matches and split another pair at the Keystone A. C. Saturday.

Yesterday, he defeated Dave Olbum, 21-6, and Dave Winkleman, 21-8, in the singles. Both are Y. M. H. A. members. In the doubles, he and Olbum defeated Winkleman and Lou Alman, 21-12. The matches were witnessed by a large gallery.

Chicago Women Lead in Tourney

NEW YORK, April 20.—(AP.)—The Finucane quintet, of Chicago, defending champions, rolled into second place in the team event of the Women's International Bowling Congress here last night. The Finucanes totaled 2,613 pins, 135 pins behind the first place five, the Alberti Jewelers, also of Chicago.

LITTLE GOLF CHAMP

SAN FRANCISCO, April 20.—(INS.)—Lawson Little, Stanford University student, today was the winner of the Northern California amateur golf championship. He defeated Mel Thompson, Ingleside, 8 and 6, to win the title.

SUSKY BOXES LAWLESS AT GARDEN

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Bucky Lawless vs. Pete Susky, 10 rounds; Jack Tracey vs. Dory Shimar, 8 rounds, and Billy Flanagan vs. Georgie Chambers and Jimmy Reilly vs. U. S. Carpentier, 6 rounds each, Motor Square Garden.

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

Pete Susky, of Scranton, Pa., who quit digging coal out of the ground to dig his fists into the anatomies of his opponents, makes his Pittsburgh debut in the Motor Square Garden ring tonight, with Bucky Lawless, shifty Syracuse welterweight, as his foe in the 10-round main bout.

Susky comes here with quite a record. He has fought three former champions, Jimmy Goodrich, Joe Dundee and Jackie Fields, and beaten the first two and extended the latter. He knocked out Dundee in three rounds. He also has fought Rene DeVos, for a time a leading middleweight contender, and is rated one of the tough fellows in the class ranging from 150 pounds to 155. He is meeting Lawless at 154 pounds. Lawless is known to the fans through his two bouts with Buck McTiernan and Paul Pirrone at the Garden, in both of which he received the decision.

Bucky Lawless

Pete Susky

Dory Shimar, stablemate of Lawless, boxes Jack Tracey, local Negro middleweight puncher, in the eight-round semi-final. Billy Flanagan, of Braddock, and Georgie Chambers, of East Liberty, two more middleweights, are in the second bout, while U. S. Carpentier, of New Kensington, and Jimmy Reilly, of McKeesport, lightweights, open the show at 8:30.

Between Rounds

K. O. Christner and John Schwake have been matched for a 10-round battle at St. Louis May 1.

Ray Alvis, in town with Pete Susky, says the first bout in defense of his regained welterweight title, in which Young Jack Thompson, whom he also manages, will engage, likely will be with Alfredo Gaona, the Mexican, at Mexico City. Gaona gave Tommy Freeman a tough tussle during the latter's short reign as champion.

SPORT SHORTS

ATHENS, Greece—Greece entered the second round of the European zone of the Davis Cup competition here yesterday by eliminating Austria, three matches to two.

FAIRMONT, W. Va.—The Fairmont Club, of the Middle Atlantic League, has announced that practice will get under way here next Friday.

SAN FRANCISCO.—(AP.)—Georgie Spencer, 31, featherweight boxer, died in a hospital here yesterday after a long illness. Spencer, whose real name was Dispensa, was born in Buffalo, N. Y., but started his boxing career here 12 years ago. Illness forced him to retire in 1928.

LONGCHAMP, France.—(AP.)—Maurice Boussac's Tourbilon earned $7,930 for his owner yesterday by winning the Prix Greffuline Produce stakes for 3-year-olds at a mile and a quarter. Tourbilon finished a length and a half ahead of Kousor with Indus third. There were 15 starters and the winner paid 18 to 1 in the betting.

CHICAGO.—(AP.)—Joe Prelli, Notre Dame football halfback in 1925, 1926 and 1927 and coach of Mt. Carmel High School here, died last night of influenza. Six members of his high school squad will act as pallbearers at the funeral from St. Clara Church. He will be buried in Oakland, Cal.

YORK, Pa.—(AP.)—York of the New York-Pennsylvania League defeated the Detroit Clowns, 15 to 3, in an exhibition game here yesterday. Johnny Fidek and Vangroski, rookie players of the York team, hit for the circuit as a feature.

LEIPSIC, Germany.—(AP.)—Fraulein Jordan, of Nuremberg, defeated three male competitors in the first Olympic tests in fancy diving at Carola baths here yesterday. She accumulated 79 points to leave her three male rivals far behind.

MONACO.—(AP.)—Louis Chiron, driving a Bugatti, won the third grand Prix of Monaco, famed automobile road race, from a field of 23 rivals yesterday. The winner's time was 3 hours 39minutes 9 1-5 seconds for the 318 kilometers (about 198 miles).

SLATINGTON, Pa.—(AP.)—Dick Hughes' home run with the bases full in the ninth inning, enabled the Hazleton Club, of the N. Y.-Penn. League to win over the Hildale Giants here yesterday by a score of 9 to 8, before a crowd of 2,000 fans.

EPSOM DOWNS, England—(AP.)—Summer Princess, under the feature impost of 91 pounds, today won the Great Metropolitan stakes at 2¼ miles, the opening stake event of the Epsom Downs meeting. She is owned by Charles Gulliver. H. Liddell's Dusty was second and Lady Curzon's Arctic Star third.

BUENOS AIRES, April 20.—(AP.)—Justo Suarez, Argentine lightweight, announced today he was sailing for New York on the liner American Legion, Friday. He is seeking a fight with Tony Canzoneri, world champion at 135 pounds.

Fan's Raucous Shout Ruled Interference

With Orsatti on first, Bottomley, Cardinal first sacker, drove the ball to the edge of the overflow crowd to Stephenson in left field. Stephenson muffed the ball, and it went into the crowd.

Umpire Moran ruled that someone in the crowd had ruined Stephenson's morale by shouting raucously. He called Bottomley out and further ruled that Orsatti could go to third on the same interference theory.

By virtue of the ruling, the scorers were forced to give Stephenson an error, deciding in effect that Stephenson caught the ball and threw it into the crowd instead of to the infield.

Gabby Street said he will file a protest over Moran's ruling.

VOTEL WINNERS ANNOUNCED

The Votel brothers today announced the prize winners in their tenth annual tenpin tournament which came to a close Saturday night in East Pittsburgh. Burkle and Shane, of Wheeling, led the field in the doubles with 1,296, Benny Cole, of Akron, paced the field in the singles with 664, while Dennisky, of East Pittsburgh, was the all-events winner with 1,301. The winners, their scores and prizes, follow:

FIELDS GETS OFFER

CHICAGO, April 20.—(AP.)—Jackie Fields, former welterweight champion, received an offer today to box Jack Hood, British welterweight pride, or Len Harvey, English middleweight, in London the latter part of May.

HUBAC, HERMAN HOLD LEAD IN DOUBLES

With Ed Renkey's record shattering 700 still standing as a singles mark that it is not likely to be bettered before the end of the competition; a mark of 1,103 apparently untouchable in the doubles and a team total of 2,697 also withstanding the shocks of heavy attack, the Greater Pittsburgh Alley Owners' Association's first annual tournament begins its seventh day of competition on the Haus alleys, North Side, today. The tourney will be brought to a close Wednesday.

To be in the first 10 in the singles, bowlers must crack 570. Renkey leads with 700; next comes G. Marsden with 604; Ollie Hughes with 603; Randic with 594; Hamilton with 591; Bloskis with 583; Bykowski and Wylie with a pair of 531's; J. Blum with 575 and Casey with 570.

In the doubles, Hubac and Herman have 1,103 for first; Vanderslice and Douglass are second with 1,102; Culler and Comer and Sullivan and Lesko next with 1,099; Guy and Peluso fifth with 1,097; McClusky and Burkett sixth with 1,081; Cooper and Ryner seventh with 1,066; Trozza and Mier and Pucalik and Hutuett tied for eighth with 1,061 and Shaney and Thompson tenth with 1,052.

The Barones, of Mt. Washington, are out in front among the five-men teams with a fine high of 2,697. The Donora Miers are second with 2,476 and the Wilkinsburg Casino third with 2,445. Fourth are the Lear Colts, with 2,425 and fifth the Joos' Colts, with 2,412.

Renkey will make his second appearance in the tournament tonight, rolling with the Union Alley five, of Turtle Creek, in the five-men event.

GRAYS WIN

CUMBERLAND, April 20.—The Homestead Grays, Pittsburgh's crack Negro baseball team, defeated the Cumberland Middle Atlantic League club in an exhibition game here yesterday, 5 to 6. L. Williams limited the Colts to three safe hits.

STOCK MARKET AGAIN HEADS DOWNWARD

Trading Remains Sluggish; Some Specialties Break Sharply; Few Rallies Made

NEW YORK, April 20.—(AP.)—The stock market fell back into its habit of declining today, after the upturn on Saturday.

Trading remained sluggish, and liquidation of notable volume appeared only in spots, but traders evidently saw little in the upturn last week save beat profit-taking. A few specialties broke sharply but there were a few fitful rallies and General Motors and the tobaccos managed to make upward progress.

Auburn was again a weak feature, dropping more than 20 points before rallying. United States Steel made an extreme decline of 3 points, getting below 130 for the first time since 1927.

Among the brighter developments of the day were the remarks of Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, before the annual luncheon of the Associated Press. Mr. Gifford expressed confidence in the nation's ability to progress out of the valley of economic depression, and added that the telephone company's statisticians find that the immediate present already shows signs of improvement.

The balance sheet of only one company in the world shows greater assets than that headed by Mr. Gifford. That is the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, and only a few days ago Frederick H. Ecker, president of Metropolitan, said there is "no question but that revival is in the making at the present time."

Despite confidence in eventual economic improvement, however, the stock market continued to pay for its excess of enthusiasm of a few weeks ago. Wall street generally has felt for some weeks that the tide has turned or is turning, but the stock market is traditionally unpatient and given to fits and starts.

The weekly surveys of the economic advisory services were inclined to look for further market irregularity and weakness during the near term but continued to express confidence in the longer term prospects. The news of the week-end added little new light to the general situation. Further revolutionary activities in Central America were not disturbing to Wall Stret, as American investments there are not extensive. United Fruit stock, however, was depressed. Cancellation of the Morgan loan by the new Spanish government was reflected in a drop of about ½ cent in the peseta, but it went only down to around its low level of early in the year.

Pays Part Interest On Bolivian Bonds

NEW YORK, April 20.—The Chase National Bank, a successor trustee, will be prepared on and after May 1, 1931, to distribute $485,584 which it holds in the service account for the Republic of Bolivia 25-year 8 per cent bonds. Payment will be made on a pro rata basis at the rate of $22 for each $40 coupon upon presentation of coupons to the trustee for notation of payment.

The government of Bolivia has advised it will be unable to remit additional funds to pay interest in full which would require $882,880.

Three Lamp Firms Figure in Merger

NEW YORK, April 20.—The Thomas J. Corcoran Lamp Company, of Cincinnati, the John W. Brown Manufacturing Company, of Columbus, and the Indiana Lamp Corporation of Connersville, Ind., have been consolidated under the name of the Corcoran-Brown Lamp Company. The new company, which has assets in excess of $5,000,000, will be headed by G. P. Doll, president of the Corcoran Lamp Company. The consolidation was effected through an exchange of stock.

Firm to Maintain Advertising Policy

NEW YORK, April 20.—After a survey lasting several months of the advertising medium best suited to financial advertising, officials of the Administrative and Research Corporation, sponsors of corporate trust shares, announced their decision not only to continue to place the larger part of their advertising appropriation in newspapers, but to augment the amount of space heretofore used.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, April 20.—Grain prices underwent early setbacks today as a result of reports indicating general breakup of drought. Material enlargement of the amount of wheat on ocean passage counted also as a bearish factor. Opening at ½-cent off to ¼-⅜ up, wheat afterward continued to sag. Corn started unchanged to ½ down and subsequently declined all around.

Signs of Business Gain Seen by A. T. T. Chief

NEW YORK, April 20.—Statisticians of the world's largest business enterprise, the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, report that the immediate present shows signs of improvement, Walter S. Gifford, president of the company, said at the annual luncheon of the Associated Press.

Kelvinator Will Show Profit in First Half Of Fiscal Year

While sales of Kelvinator Corporation have shown improvement since the middle of March, preliminary figures indicate net profit for the quarter ended March 31 fell considerably below the like quarter of the preceding fiscal year, when $883,553, or 74 cents a share on 1,186,106 shares was reported. Unless the final audit changes the figures the March, 1931, quarter net will approximate that for the March, 1929, quarter, when $273,250, or 23 cents a share was earned. With a loss of $332,600 in the quarter ended December 31, 1930, it appears operations for the first six months of the current fiscal year will result in only nominal profits at best, and may show slight loss. Net for six months ended March 31, 1930, was $796,536, or 67 cents a share, while for six months ended March 31, 1929, a loss of $140,146 was reported.

Operations of Houdaille-Hershey Corporation in March are understood to have resulted in a profit of approximately $140,000 following small losses incurred during the preceding two months. For the first quarter the company probably will report net profits of around $100,000 after all charges, approximately equal to quarterly dividend requirements of 62½ cents a share on outstanding Class A stock. In the first quarter of 1930 net profits were $80,365, or 46 cents on 174,180 outstanding A shares.

The recent victory of the big oil companies in the gasoline "cracking" suit, involving cross-licensing of patents, is regarded as brightening the outlook for victory of the Radio Corporation of America in the anti-trust suit pending against its patent licensing arrangement. In view of the basic position of the patents of the Radio Corporation and the importance of royalty income in its present and future development, a favorable decision is a matter of the utmost importance to the company.

In its most recent survey of the food products industry, Standard Statistics is of the opinion that selected common stocks of the food companies offer unusual stability and good income. Among the numerous issues which remain in favor for yield, safety and moderate long pull price appreciation possibilities, if bought on a scale down basis, are American Chicle, Beatrice Creamery, Borden, National Biscuit, National Dairy Products, Penick and Ford, and Wrigley. Other shares recommended for long pull purchase on further sizeable recessions are Corn Products, General Foods and Hershey.

Judging by reports coming through from the Youngstown district, indications are that the rate of steel mill operations will experience further slight curtailment this week. So far as can be discerned now the slackening will probably be about along seasonal lines. Youngstown schedules in the aggregate are expected to show a drop of about 1 per cent which would bring the rate down to about a 40 per cent basis compared with the 41 per cent rate in force last week.

The bear party evidently is doing some close calculating in laying its plans for market operations just now. This is apparent from the fact that forces working for lower prices seized upon the psychological moment for the final drive staged in the closing hour Friday. Ordinarily a week of receding prices, such as we have experienced in this instance, is followed by something in the way of technical rally at the week-end as shorts proceed to level off their positions. But as the rank and file inclined to look for a rally it was apparently calculated that a successful drive at the time would exert a disturbing influence on sentiment.

California Crude Oil Output Down

RIVER AGENCY NETS $46,336

WASHINGTON, April 20.—The Inland Waterways Corporation "turned the corner" in 1930 and showed a net profit of $46,336, compared with a net loss of $354,048 for 1929.

Maj. Gen. T. Q. Ashburn, chairman of the corporation, the government's agency for developing cheap river transportation, said in his annual report to the Secretary of War that progress had been made toward meeting the conditions which would justify the government in getting out of this business.

Referring to opposition of certain railroads to the Denison act, which created the corporation in 1924, Gen. Ashburn urged that the government demand of the railroads co-operation in making the act effective.

If that were done, he said, the purpose of the act—to create a great co-ordinated, co-operative rail, water and motor transport system—would be greatly advanced.

Lone Star Sells Higher In Early Dealings With Small Changes in Others

The new week opened on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange with prices showing only moderate changes from the levels prevailing on the previous close. Volume of trading was light and there was no concentration of activity during the early dealings.

Lone Star Gas started with a fractional rise, but not enough of the stock was handled to determine the real trend. Western Public Service held around the previous close, but the turnover in this issue was light also.

The industrials were rather hesitant, awaiting their cue from the "big board." The local list ignored the early reaction and likewise failed to display much enthusiasm when the New York market staged its rally at the beginning of the last hour.

EXPORT COPPER PRICE CUT

NEW YORK, April 20.—Pric weakness in the domestic coppe market resulted today in a reduction of ¼ cent a pound in the export quotation to 10.05 cents, c. i. f. European base port.

General Cable Corporation has reduced the price of bare copper wire ¼ cent a pound to 11½ cents in carload lots.

Zinc Production Up for Februar

World zinc production in March totaled 97,283 short tons, against 90,929 tons in February and 100,761 in January, according to the American Bureau of Metal Statistics.

Controversies Found on Fixed Trusts

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

SIDNEY S. KORZENIK, an economist connected with Columbia University, has taken issue with some of the conclusions reached by this writer in a series of articles on Fixed Investment Trusts which appeared in this column last February.

While I felt that fixed trusts of the distributive type involved the danger of liquidation of capital to such an extent that the investment might be seriously reduced in value over a long period of years, Mr. Korzenik believes that the distributive trusts are entirely suited to the needs of certain types of investors. After several weeks of correspondence he agreed to write his views on this controversial problem.

I do not agree with all the conclusions reached by Mr. Korzenik but portions of his analysis of the question will be reproduced in this column during the present week.

Misconceptions Corrected

"Readers of the financial pages of the Sun-Telegraph are to be congratulated upon the enlightening series of articles which recently appeared in its columns dealing with fixed investment trusts. These should do much to correct the many misconceptions which prevail about this new form of investment.

"In view of the rapid development of this investment device in this country, it is not surprising that the finer points of fixed trusts are frequently clouded in confusion by the average investor.

"As is to be expected, this remarkable acceptance on the part of the public has given rise to improvements in the technique of fixed trusts, based on a riper sales experience and a more seasoned study on the part of economists and security analysts,

Viewpoints Differ

"BUT THESE NEW DEVELOPMENTS, in turn, have tended to engender widely divergent points of view respecting the best procedures to be followed in the operation of these trusts, and to rtard the public's thorough understanding of the more essential characteristics and functions of the numerous trusts now being offered.

"These controversial issues are often honest differences of opinion, but as a writer in Barron's observed recently, more frequently they involve merely the attempt of some trust sponsors to benefit from the introduction of a new selling argument, rather than a serious discussion of an important point; and when full publicity is available, they lose their apparent importance.

"Aside from the selfish motivation of such controversies, it is true, however, that the really vital points of issue have developed as a result of the varying needs, circumstances and temperaments of individual investors. Just as no one prescription meets the requirements of all patients, so no hard and fast rule can be set up as a cure-all for the needs of every investor.

Different Set-Ups Used

"BASICALLY, ALL FIXED trusts of national prominence have a common denominator in a portfolio comprising a group of high grade stocks on inherent and accepted investment value. It is—to lapse for a moment into professional venacular—in the difference in the "set-ups" of the various trusts that their similiarity ceases.

"These differences call for a fine discernment on the part of the investor which many purchasers of trust shares have not the technical knowledge to exercise. The newspaper, therefore, which aids and abets a better understanding of these considerations renders a very definite service to those of its readers who are present or prospective owners of fixed investment trust shares. Such, in the opinion of this writer, has been the service rendered in the series which recently appeared in these columns."

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

CUTLER HAMMER

Frank R. Bacon, former chairman, has been elected president of Cutler Hammer, Inc., succeeding B. L. Worden, deceased. The office of chairman was abolished.

DEALERS' AUTO STOCKS LOW

DETROIT, April 20.—Those who are looking for the usual seasonal peak of automobile manufacturing activity this year, are likely to be disappointed. The industry seems likely to make the flattest and longest summer curve ever known. Thus far in 1931 there has been practically no stocks of cars ahead as in former years. Field inventories of both new and used cars are not only low but have not risen in proportion to the increase in April production over March.

The head of one large company says:

> The technical position of existing supply and demand is such that if business generally were on the upgrade we would be thoroughly warranted in boosting our May schedules fully 25 per cent."

There are sufficient retail delivery returns for the first 10 days and in some instances for the first two weeks of April to indicate production increases made in April over March were warranted. Unfilled orders continue to come in a steady stream and contrary to 1920 the percentage of cancellations is almost nothing.

Farm Board Faces Marketing Problem

WASHINGTON, April 20.—The Federal Farm Board, having adopted a hands-off attitude toward the new wheat crop, today faced the task of drafting a new policy on the marketing of this year's cotton crop.

With 1,300,000 bales of last year's cotton held in warehouses, the board must decide whether it will retire from buying activities or attempt to peg cotton prices for another season. In all probability, it will announce a retirement from the buyer's market. This was indicated when the board decided to forego further efforts to stabilize the price of wheat by purchases in the open market.

Dismissal Motion On Loew's Denied

NEW YORK, April 20.—Supreme Court Justice Salvatore Cotillo has denied a motion to dismiss a suit brought by a stockholder of Loew's, Inc., to set aside the sale of stock of Loew's, Inc., to Fox Film on February 25, 1929. The complainant alleges an illegal profit of $9,200,000 was made by Nicholas M. Schenck, Arthur M. Loew and David Berstein, officers of Loew's, Inc.

Building Contracts Total $40,166,300

NEW YORK, April 20.—Construction contracts awarded in the metropolitan area of New York during the first half of April totaled $40,166,300. Non-residential building was the leading construction class for the two weeks, with a total of $17,233,600. Residential building was second with $15,347,700, and public works and utilities totaled $7,585,000.

BANK SITUATION IMPROVED

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Illustrating the substantial improvement in the American banking situation, there were but 370 suspensions during the first three months of 1931, compared with 660 failures in the last three months of 1930, according to Federal Reserve figures available today.

However, compared with the first three months of 1930, the comparison was not so favorable. In that period 260 banks suspended, with 165 failures in the first quarter of 1929 and 169 in the same months in 1928. Nevertheless, officials believe, the crisis in the banking situation was passed in January.

The first quarter of 1931 has shown a particularly substantial improvement among the national banks ahd other members of the Reserve system, only 65 member banks having closed their doors.

Soft Coal Output Lowest for Year

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Total production of soft coal during the week ended April 11 is estimated at 6,770,000 net tons. This is the lowest figure for any week during the year to date, the Bureau of Mines advises. In the corresponding week of 1930, production amounted to 8,257,000 tons.

Total production of soft coal during the present calendar year to April 11 amounts to 114,929,000 net tons, against 139,074,000 tons in 1930 and 152,931,000 tons in 1929.

Damage Suit Filed By St. Louis Firm

ST. LOUIS, April 20.—Suit for $1,000,000 alleged damages resulting from the publication of a financial statement was filed in Circuit Court here by the Paf Manufacturing Company, of Greenville, Ill., against the Bradstreet Company, credit agency.

The Paf company, manufacturers of spark plugs, charged that a Bradstreet statement listed the manufacturing firm as financially weak and that a heavy loss of business resulted. The plaintiffs claimed their company is financially strong.

New Low for Raw Rubber at London

LONDON, April 20.—Raw rubber dropped to a new low of 2 15-16 pence per pound on Mincing lane today. The market eased off on publication of stocks showing an increase of 1,283 tons to 85,704 at London and an increase of 1,488 tons to 51,221 at Liverpool.

Retail Food Price Index Takes Drop

WASHINGTON, April 20.—United States Bureau of Labor statistics weighed index on retail food prices was 126.4 on March 15, against 127.0 on February 15 and 150.1 for March of 1930.

Forbes

Past History Held Guide To Market Trend

By B. C. FORBES

AN ASSOCIATE, R. W. Schabacker, author of a comprehensive volume, "stock market theory and practice," offers the following analysis of present stock market conditions for readers of this column:

B. C. Forbes

"Comparatively few students of economics and finance or laymen doubt that both in time and price levels we are gradually approaching an end to the long period of depression which has gripped the world for nearly two weary years. And there are few investors who are not eagerly scanning the business and financial horizon for indications of when the 'next bull market' will start.

"THE QUESTION the average investor is asking himself is not whether there will be a new bull market, but when will it begin and how much lower stock prices will go before the absolute bottom appears.

"If any individual were able accurately to answer that question he would be the sort of ideal paragon which has never been seen in Wall Street and never will be. The most reliable counsellor is the one who admits at a time like this that he has absolutely no yard stick by which to gauge the exact bottom of any stock market movement. For one thing, he knows from past experience that the market is quite likely to do just the opposite from the obvious and the expected.

"WHAT WE CAN DO, however, is to formulate an investment schedule based upon more intimate knowledge of past history, current trends and future statistical probabilities.

"From a technical standpoint the current stock market bears a great resemblance to that of 1921 when business and the market were gradually turning the corner upward. After it was all over it was easy to see that the main portion of the long bear market came to an end in December, 1920, on very high volume of trading and followed by recovery that lasted for several months.

"A large number of the leading stocks of the subsequent bull market never again reached the low prices at which they were available in December, 1920. Yet the accredited averages slumped off again in both June and August 1921 and went slightly into new low ground for what now appears as a 'false move' just prior to beginning the real bull market which started in September of that year.

"Just as he is doing now, the average investor in April 1921 was asking himself whether these December lows would again be broken. They were broken in 1921 and they may be broken this year, but there was no guarantee of such action then and there is none now.

"THE MOST important point then, as now, was that the stage was set for the beginning of a new upward swing in business and securities. The only tragedy of that question in 1921 was for the investor who did not buy in December 1920, and then became so over-confident of lower prices on the short dip in the summer of 1921 that he waited for a wide open break which never came.

"That seems perhaps inconceivable when we look back at 1921, but there is no truer psychological reasoning than that it will happen again to literally hundreds of thousands of investors. Greed for the lowest prices in a bear market will mean just as great loss in future years as did greed for the highest prices in 1929."

THE SECRET SIX -:- By Frances Marion

Scorpio Accused of Killing Racketeer's Brother

A sensational melodramatic story of the underworld, adapted from the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer-Cosmopolitan picture.

Franks and Colimo eyed each other warily as two boxers in the ring. Newton, sitting back in his chair, regarded them a little contemptuously. He poured more brandy into the wide glass, warmed it again with his hands, smelled its aroma.

"Colimo," he said, "you might as well get us right. The mob muscled in on your territory tonight, and they'll probably do it again. That's part of the racket. This town is getting too small for us, and we are going to expand. We're getting up in the world.

"That's all business. We are perfectly willing to take our chances with your mob any time. But we didn't intend to kill that boy tonight. You realize that."

Colimo nodded. There was logic in what the lawyer said. And, too, Ivan had disobeyed, when he went with Kluse and the rest. He considered, wavered, then—

"Just the same—I want to get the guy who bumped him off—croak him with my own hands. After that, we can talk about other business."

Newton nodded.

Talk Business

"Get me right—if we turn up the man who bumped Ivan, that's all you want? That settles everything about tonight's affair?"

"Right," said Colimo.

"You fellows have the milk dealers, the laundry men and the garage men all paying in," went on Newton.

"Yes—and we're organizing the building contractors' protective association now," added Colimo. "But what has that to do with the guy who bumped Ivan?"

"Just this," responded Newton. "Here in Centro we have all our business organized. We have a big supply of beer coming in, as well as 10 stills turning out alky and hootch. The booze racket brings in the biggest quick profits, but the other is steady and reliable, and ought to be nursed along.

"I had been thinking of talking this thing over with you," went on Newton. "I have figured out a way to make it look legal—make it look like legitimate business—and we can get away with throwing a pineapple or two. We might pool our interests on that end of the business—to say nothing of the booze."

"There can't be any talk to that," snarled Colimo, "until I've bumped the man who got my brother. After I've done that, if you play square with me—maybe I'll talk business. I say this because I don't blame Johnny here—or you—for the kid's death. Now the only way you can show me you're on the square is to turn over the guy."

Newton again gazed at the bottle, half-full of milk on the table. Franks' gaze followed his.

"The man," said Franks, "is a man who is high up with us. In fact, he's one of the best rod men I have. It's asking a lot, Colimo, to ask me to turn him up. Do you realize that?"

Colimo shrugged his shoulders.

"My brother," he answered softly, "meant just about everything in the world to me. Do you realize that?"

Franks apparently wavered.

"I don't want a general scrap—though we'd be ready for you, if it comes to that. I'd rather do business, both of us like regular business men. You have something we want — terribly. We have something you want—Newton's brains for one thing—our stills, our beer, and our protection. I'd like to get together without any more shooting. That thing tonight was an accident."

Blames Scorpio

"Accident or not—I am going to get that one killer," insisted Colimo. "For the last time I'm going to ask you who he is."

Johnny Franks caught the look in Newton's eye, the imperceptible nod, the motion toward the milk bottle.

"The guy you want," he informed Colimo slowly, "is right now down on Centro Pier 50, unloading a boatload of goods. He has on a big, brown, fur-collared coat. He's our guard on the unloading job."

"Is that straight?" sharply demanded Colimo.

"That's it," cut in Newton. "You see, we will play with you."

Colimo rushed from Franks' office, through the restaurant and to the big car at the curb. A chauffeur and two grim-faced body-guards were waiting.

"To pier 50—on the river!" he ordered.

"Now you see why I wanted Scorpio sent on that pier job?" he inquired, like a school teacher explaining a lesson. "What I thought would happen, did."

Franks looked at him as though about to say something, then turned and picked up Scorpio's bottle of milk. Carefully he dropped it in the waste basket.

With a smile, the lawyer squinted through the amber brandy. He raised the glass with a mock gesture.

"Well, here's to the late Mr. Scorpio."

DAILY TRUE STORY 'Interesting Facts'

Plot to Convict Innocent Man Is Foiled

Mattie Warner leaned across the hot dog counter of the Wayside Arcade and stared at the glib agent.

"This isn't a book you read and forget—you always keep it—it is full of interesting facts; you know something when you have read this book——"

And so on for another five minutes.

It was early in the season and business was dull at the junction of the five roads, where Bill Piper had built the big woodland "oasis."

Mattie was a matter-of-fact girl, anyway. Facts interested her.

"For example, if anybody asked you how many school buildings there are in this country, what would you say?"

"I would say that I didn't know," Mattie told him.

"There you are. This book tells you—more than 300,000. And suppose someone told you he was a great linguist and spoke 45 languages, what would you tell him?"

"I'd tell him there wasn't that many."

"No, no—you should tell him that he didn't know many. You should tell him that there are 3,424 spoken languages and dialects in the world and that he had 3,379 to go. That would surely make him sit up and marvel at your knowledge."

Purchases Book

"Yes," Mattie agreed, "but suppose no one ever told me he spoke 45 languages?"

"Now take shekels — that's money, you know," the agent went on rapidly, ignoring Mattie's remark, "if anyone gave you 3,000 shekels what would you do with this money?"

"Put it in my purse," Mattie informed him.

"Ah, then you carry quite a large purse, for 3,000 shekels weigh 125 pounds—shekels are weights in money, you know—old Bible time stuff."

He talked longer and finally Mattie bought the book.

Bill Piper, who employed Mattie, came in from the garage a little later and saw the book.

Don Holsworth, who managed the arcade for Piper, had been too busy to notice that Mattie had bought a book but Piper's eagle eye spotted it.

"Did that man give you this book?" Piper asked, jealously.

"I bought it."

"Bought it? Bought it! Paid money for it? Say, won't you ever get over being dumb, Mattie? I pay you good money and you throw it away like that"

"Aw, lay off Mattie, Bill," Don said.

"Who's boss here?" Piper demanded.

"What is it to you what Mattie or I do with our money so long as we earn it?"

"Where does this 'we' stuff come in, you and Mattie?"

A car stopped then and Piper had to go out to the gas pumps.

Intend to Marry

"I'll take a couple good cracks at him if he bothers you. Why the dickens can't you buy a book if you want one?"

"I don't know."

"I do, Mattie—he thinks he's going to marry you. And so if you save all the money he pays you, why he'll get it all back again when he marries you."

"I told him I wasn't thinking of getting married, Don, you know that."

"Sort of a fib, wasn't it, dear?"

"Well," Mattie paused to flash a smile at Don, "I meant that I wasn't thinking of marrying him."

"Just as soon as this season's over, Mattie, you won't be bothered with Piper. You'll go back to your uncle's and help his wife as he wants you to and I'll be working and saving, and next spring we'll be married and start our own place."

"That," Mattie said, with a sigh, "is a year from now."

"I know it, but think of our swell plan—we'll have a big roadside restaurant and gas station down South in the winter and one up here in summer—won't it be great?"

"You bet—"

More people came.

And as the season advanced business increased mightily. Piper had been decidedly wise in establishing his Arcade. The five roads centering there brought big crowds. Campers all summer made this their amusement headquarters from the four lakes near at hand. No other place like this within many miles. Twice a week there were dances there.

Piper not only sold tires, gas and oil, but he had a good restaurant for lunches, he sold souvenirs and such and he had installed literally scores of penny slot machines, rows of picture machines from old-time penny arcades, machines for gum, weight, fortunes, perfume and endless things.

Don lived half a mile up the mountain road in an old camp he had rented from Pop Wentworth. It was a steep climb up there. Pop Wentworth was the local deputy sheriff and popular dispenser of wisdom and justice. He was especially fond of Don Holsworth, and also of Mattie. As for Bill Piper, Pop had to be nice to him, but he didn't like his arrogant ways.

The season was at its best, just midseason, when Bill Piper intimated that Mattie ought to marry him at once.

This was because Piper could see that Mattie and Don were altogether too friendly to suit him.

Meets Wentworth

It was shortly after this that Don locked up the place at midnight and drove Mattie down to her uncle's house. He came back and put up the car. He couldn't drive it up the steep, stony road to his camp.

But when he got up to his little camp he missed his pet pipe. It was past 1 o'clock then but he went down to the Arcade to get that pipe. He needed it. He wanted to have his good night smoke and plan his plans about saving money and marrying Mattie the next spring.

Down at the main road he met Pop Wentworth driving home from the lower village. Pop was driving into his yard.

"Forgot my pipe—had to have it, Pop," Don said.

Pop didn't see Don come back.

But early the next morning Don was surprised to find Piper already there. He usually came later. Piper barely spoke to him. Soon after this Pop Wentworth came in.

"Well, Don, guess I'll sort of have to arrest you," Pop said.

"What's the joke?" Don asked.

Locates Pennies

"You saw him comin' down at 1 this morning, Wentworth, and I've had $300 in pennies stole from me. They was rolled ready for putting in the bank. Two sacks full there was, you'll find Don has hid 'em in th' woods somewhere," Piper insisted.

"You're crazy!" Don yelled.

Pop was troubled, but he saw no other way out except to arrest Don.

"I told you Don Holsworth was crooked," Piper said to Mattie; "now you believe me."

"You say he stole $300 in 1-cent pieces from the slot machines?" Mattie asked.

"He did."

Mattie reached under the counter and got out a book, entitled "Interesting Facts." She turned the pages.

"Look," she said, "$300 in 1-cent pieces means 30,000 coins, and 30,000 1-cent pieces would weigh 210 pounds. How far do you think Don or any man could carry 210 pounds of copper in two sacks?"

Pop Wentworth read the facts from the book.

"I'll search around your house, Piper," he said.

"Oh, never mind—we won't argue; I'll let Don go if he'll beat it," Piper said, hurriedly.

But Pop Wentworth found Piper's pennies hidden in his cellar. They weighed just a bit more than 210 pounds. Mattie's book was right.

Rather than stand trial Piper ran away. Later Don bought the place for a tenth of its value.

On the parlor table in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Holsworth are two books, the family Bible and a volume entitled INTERESTING FACTS.

YOU TOLD ME TO TRUST YOU, AND I'VE TRUSTED YOU LIKE A CYCLE COP TRUSTS HIS OWN SPEEDOMETER! BUT I'D LIKE TO KNOW JUST WHY A COUNTY JUDGE ASKED YOU TO COME IN AND SEE HIM!
ELLA, DEAR, I HAVE MY EXPLANATION RIGHT HERE ON PAPER!
WHY---WHY, IT'S A MARRIAGE LICENSE! BUT IT'S MADE OUT IN BLANK!
EXACTLY! THAT'S WHY THE JUDGE CALLED ME — TO TELL ME THAT YOUR SIGNATURE WOULD BE NECESSARY TO MAKE THIS PAPER VALID!

Hoover Regime Abandons Coolidge Protection of Nationals

In dealing with the increasingly aggravating Nicaraguan situation, where eight more Americans have been massacred by Nicaraguan outlaws, the Hoover administration goes from bad to worse.

For the last two years the Hoover administration has failed to insist that the Nicaraguan government keep its promises to the Coolidge administration to organize a native national guard of sufficient strength to provide protection for foreign life and property all over Nicaragua.

Now the Hoover administration notifies surviving Americans in Nicaragua that if they fail to get protection from the Nicaraguan government THEY MUST NOT EXPECT ANY FROM THEIR OWN GOVERNMENT unless they flee to the coast towns and hold themselves in readiness to be evacuated.

All Americans remaining in Managua, the capital, or other inland towns are informed by President Hoover through the Department of State that they "do so at their own risk."

"THE PERSON AND PROPERTY OF A CITIZEN ARE A PART OF THE GENERAL DOMAIN OF THE NATION, EVEN WHEN ABROAD. There is a distinct and binding obligation on the part of self-respecting governments to afford protection to the persons and property of their citizens, wherever they may be. These rights go with the citizen. Wherever he goes, these duties of our government must follow him."

Contrast the Hoover renunciation of responsibility for the lives and property of Americans in Nicaragua with the following statement of President Coolidge in a special message to Congress on January 10, 1927:

"The United States cannot fail to view with deep concern any serious threat to stability and constitutional government in Nicaragua tending toward anarchy and jeopardizing American interests. IT HAS ALWAYS BEEN AND REMAINS THE POLICY OF THE UNITED STATES IN SUCH CIRCUMSTANCES TO TAKE STEPS THAT MAY BE NECESSARY FOR THE PRESERVATION AND PROTECTION OF THE LIVES, THE PROPERTY AND THE INTERESTS OF ITS CITIZENS, AND OF THIS GOVERNMENT ITSELF."

It was in discharge of this responsibility that President Coolidge loaned to Nicaragua a large mission of American Marine officers to assist in the training and organization of a native police force capable of protecting life and property throughout Nicaragua and of discharging the treaty obligations of that country to foreign countries.

It was to assist the Nicaraguan government in living up to its responsibilities as a nation that President Coolidge landed Marines by the thousand to assist in protecting foreign life and property until the Nicaraguan government could afford this protection with its own armed forces.

More than a thousand of our Marines are now in Nicaragua. But if President Hoover's extraordinary message to Minister Hanna means what it says, these Marines will not be permitted to protect any American life and property outside of the coast cities and towns.

Apparently these Marines are to confine their future activity to the protection of the Moncada government and in ministering to the needs of the Nicaraguan victims of the Managua earthquake.

The only effect of the Hoover administration's refusal to protect American life and property in Nicaragua and of its failure to compel the Nicaraguan government to provide such protection will be to encourage the extension of outlawry all over Nicaragua and to invite European intervention to protect the life and property of their own nationals.

If this is what the American people want, they have only to say "Amen" to the Hoover administration's abandonment of the Coolidge program and the Hoover administration's repudiation of President Coolidge's inspiring declaration that there is "A DISTINCT AND BINDING OBLIGATION ON THE PART OF SELF-RESPECTING GOVERNMENTS TO AFFORD PROTECTION TO THE PERSONS AND PROPERTY OF THEIR CITIZENS, WHEREVER THEY MAY BE."

Income Tax Unfairness

Experts of Joint Congressional Committee Advocate Elimination of Injustices from Present Law.

To the Joint Congressional Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, its own experts, after careful study, have finally urged that Congress grant tax relief on earned income.

Approaching the subject from a scientific point of view, these experts point out that "brain and brawn are entitled to as much consideration as capital."

Capital receives deduction from taxable income on account of depreciation. Proportionate relief should be extended to the individual because he is also subject to exhaustion of his earning power.

Furthermore, the individual with earned income generally bears expenses not borne by the individual with unearned income.

Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium and Spain in their tax laws recognize the fairness of taxing more lightly incomes from wages, salaries and professional services than the income from a business or from investment.

In fact the present method of relief is so complicated that 20 per cent of all the individual returns are in error on the earned income computation.

Many of the injustices of those provisions of our present laws dealing with earned income arise from the facts that they were based on revenue requirements, and are consequently as unscientific as they are unfair.

The joint committee is urged by its experts not only to reduce the tax on earned incomes, but to simplify the method of computing this tax, and thereby eliminate some of the injustices of the present income tax law.

All that the Hearst newspapers have charged against the oppressive and unfair methods by which earned income in this country is now taxed is corroborated by the experts of the Joint Congressional Committee appointed to study this subject.

The report of these experts has been filed in ample time for the joint committee to study and report to the first session of the new Congress a specific program by which taxes on earned income will be reduced and American taxpayers given the equitable consideration they would get if they lived in European countries.

Other civilized countries long ago abandoned the unfair practice of penalizing by law the brain of the doctor, lawyer, clerk, preacher, teacher, author, actor and scientist.

Their brain is their only capital, yet, as Prof. Thomas S. Adams, Yale economist, points out, an American concern "selling oil, stocks, chewing gum, white spats, or any other form of property" under existing federal tax law, "is allowed important deductions which find no counterpart in the income tax return of the man of service."

It is high time for the United States to give "the man of service" the relief that only a reduction in the tax on earned incomes can afford.

Study Unemployment

Steps Are Taken to Outline Plan in Preparation for Future Emergencies.

The naming of a committee of the Allegheny County Emergency Association, with Horace Forbes Baker chairman, to make a survey of the unemployment situation, appears to be a move in the right direction. Explaining the aims of the association, Arthur E. Braun, chairman of its executive committee, said:

"It is the purpose of the long-range study to bring in a plan, especially applicable to Pittsburgh, which will not only aid in preventing a recurrence of acute unemployment, but provide ready measures for immediate use in case any emergency should again arise."

"In times of peace prepare for war" is an old and wise adage. It can be paraphrased—"In times of tranquility prepare for emergencies." When our present crisis has passed, as it must eventually, it may be many years before another as serious recurs. But it will be well to be ready for it whenever it may come.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 20.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Awakened by loud ringing of the doorbell and it was the nit-wit Mickey Neilan, who in greeting me left a cold, raw oyster in my hand. And did I fling it across the hall! Aalked on the phone also to Hal Mangum, the Mexico ranchman.

All afternoon trying to write an introduction to a friend's book and then out and came upon Julia Sanderson and Frank Crumitt and we talked of Crummitt's home town Jackson, O., and I was tempted to ask Miss Sanderson to hum "You Wouldn't Believe Me."

In the evening to dine at Pierre's and there was a squab served in a bird's nest of potato strips and on to see Al Jolson in "The Wonder Bar," enjoying it as much as the original in Berlin last summer. So talking to Morris Gest, who has regained his health and enthusiasms.

The evening pajama rage for the ladies has gone beyond a mere fashion whim. Three stunning creatures swished through a corridor of Pierre's wearing them. One also sported a long green jade cigaret holder to blend with the ensemble. And with a blaze of red hair she had me colliding with a potted palm.

* * *

One of the first fashion writers to hail the daytime pajama for Milady was Miss Helen Uffert of the Delineator. Incidentally, it was Miss Uffert who introduced the heiress Polly Lauder to Gene Tunney and it was at her apartment that Tunney proposed and was accepted. The Tunneys are now in Russia.

Joe Weber and Lew Fields again enjoy their old professional comradeship. For a few years a coolness sprung up between them—the inevitable tinge of contempt that comes with such long intimacy. But radio work reunited them. They have an old time theatrical office on West Fortieth street near Broadway. The walls are hung with costume photos of old Weber-Field stars — Lillian Russell, Pete Daly and all the rest. Fields is still the flashy dresser, splotching the Rialto horizon with an assortment of color that recalls the days when the actor made up for the street as well as the stage.

Weber and Fields have another unofficial office which they have maintained for at least 20 years. It is a round table which they have graced for luncheon in the Hunting Room of the Hotel Astor almost daily, while in town, during the period. Here upon various occasions will be seen David Warfield, Adolph Zukor, George W. Lederer and now and again the old Roman—at which the Rialto once tittered—George M. Cohan.

* * *

Performers—I like better Junie McCree's spelling, "piff-awmer"—were too hurriedly pitied when the legitimate stage wobbled. The fact is they have had the best break in the history of the stage. First came silent movies, recruiting thousands ripe for oblivion. Many who had heretofore essayed only character parts suddenly found themselves stars at salaries Mansfield or Joseph Jefferson never dreamed. Then came the talkies, a similar haven for as many more. The third rebirth was the radio, which as quickly puffed hundreds who were through into an unbelievable prosperity.

* * *

When I first came to New York there were two places where one might see the foremost of the theatrical stars—at luncheon at the Hotel Knickerbocker and the Sunday evening dinners at Browne's old chophouse on Broadway. But today there seems to be no focal point. Each apparently has a favorite speakeasy, hideway or something.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Popular Bigamy

In one day, a week or so ago, two beautiful screen stars and one famous prima donna were granted decrees of divorce. And that was only a fair day for the lawyers.

"An actress is really married, first of all, to her art, and there is no divorce from that," confessed Pola Negri.

Of course, being wedded to an art and to a man at the same time is the most deplorable and the most popular form of bigamy. There ought to be a divorce decree printed on the back of every marriage certificate granted to a movie star — or any other lady celebrity.

It is not that successful women are any harder or any easier to get along with than any other kind; and it is not that the men they marry are any better or any worse than other men.

* * *

It is just that marriage and an artistic career are the oil and water which won't mix. And the career, like the oil, always comes out on top.

The cruelest thing that a celebrated woman can do to a man is to marry him—and thereby rob him of all his hope of glory and all his burden of responsibility. Nothing so effectively dims the light of a man's ambition as to marry a woman who is already in the limelight.

When he marries a lady celebrity, a fairly nice man is so dazzled that he goes around in circles and never gets anywhere. Either he becomes conceited and lazy, or he loses his identity and is resentful. Few men are big enough to rise above such a one-sided situation.

No woman can divide her heart between two men; but she will cheerfully try to divide her MIND, her time and her attention between a career and a man—and then wonder why they both suffer.

* * *

No man is satisfied with what is left of a woman's thoughts, pep and enthusiasm after she has been through a wringer all day at the studio or the office or the theater. And when a woman has had an exciting, exhausting day and comes home full of plans and ideas, a husband clutters up her life.

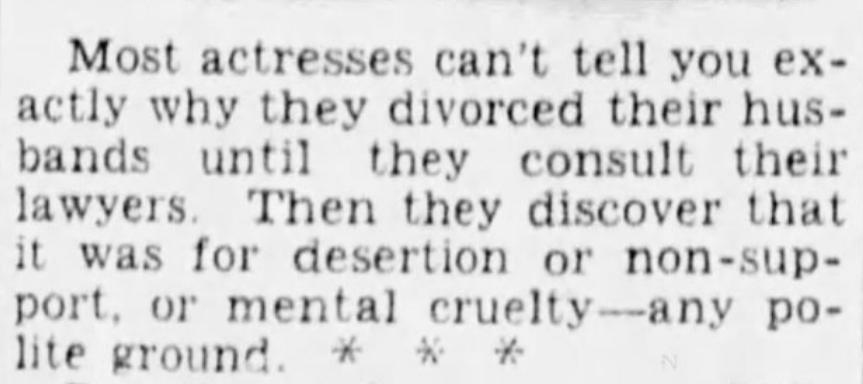
It isn't that an actress doesn't love her husband—it is just that half the time she doesn't remember that he's THERE. And no he-man can laugh that off.



Most actresses can't tell you exactly why they divorced their husbands until they consult their lawyers. Then they discover that it was for desertion or non-support, or mental cruelty—any polite ground.

But the real reason was BIGAMY—the futile attempt to lead a double life and to combine art and marriage.

Text For Today Rest in the Lord, and wait patiently for him: fret not thyself because of him who prospereth in his way, because of the man who bringeth wicked devices to pass.—Psalms, xxxvii:7.

The Ex-Kaiser Today

He Brings Back the Old Look, BUT—

THE OLD LOOK.

AS HE REALLY IS

Time heals wounds, wipes out hatreds. The war is past, and while many whose sons and fathers were murdered must retain their bitterness until death, others can discuss the figures of the war as they would discuss leaders in wars of long ago.

These two pictures of the former Emperor are interesting, showing him as he was on his recent seventy-third birthday.

In the picture on the right you see the Emperor with soft hat, folded hands, as he actually IS—AN OLD MAN—with the glory, ambition and hope of the world behind him, making the best of life.

Far happier had his life ended in battle, and that, beyond question, he would have preferred.

But it was not to be, and he lives in exile, looking after the trees around his place, as you see him in one of these pictures, or sawing wood for exercise.

When the war ended millions clamored for his death: the watchword in England was: "Hang the Kaiser!" and Englishmen in the highest positions found it necessary to promise that they WOULD hang the Kaiser.

Of course, they had not the faintest idea of hanging a first cousin of King George of England. And the Kaiser is his first cousin. A hanging would not look well in the annals of the royal family.

What a chance this man had. What good work he actually did as a business Emperor, building industry, honoring science.

What a marvelous career he might have had.

But he was a descendant of Frederick the Great. It was his business to make glory for his family and glory for Germany.

He had his day and he failed.

And it is fortunate that he did fail; fortunate for the whole world, and for the millions of Germans now controlling their own affairs, in a republic, with a great man at the head of it and the most powerful scientists and thinking men of the world working for it.

MEASURING STARS

By Archibald Henderson

There was a time in the history of science when every thing was measured roughly. In physics, astronomy, chemistry, the calendar — everything was measured with a certain degree of approximation. The scientists were content with these reasonably accurate results. They scarcely hoped for anything better. Their instruments crude, their methods of measurement imperfect, they got what they could in the way of results and went their way rejoicing, more or less.

Today all that is changed. Accuracy is an indispensable criterion nowadays for all scientific work. Instruments must be in very truth instruments of precision. The results must be accurate to an almost inconceivable degree of refinement. Perhaps the choice between two scientific theories may depend upon a measurement involving a millionth of an inch.

Take the great reflector on Mt. Wilson, for example. It is so accurate that it could detect the light of a candle at a distance of five miles; or, to put it another way, the illumination of an arc-light at the distance of the moon. One of the most marvelous of modern instruments of heat is the bolometer, which is capable of measuring temperature to one ten-millionth of a degree!

Again, take the micrometer, which means an instrument for measuring small differences. Today it is possible to measure with precision the change in direction of a point 70 miles away when the observer moves his instrument along a base-line a single inch.

An immense amount of work has been done by astronomers in the past in the effort to count the stars. Of course, all the stars have not been counted yet, but the increase in accuracy of our instruments have given rise to results which are almost incredible. Stars used to be counted in terms of thousands or tens of thousands.

As the telescopes became larger, the mode of measurement more refined, the results almost staggered credulity. We can scarcely do more, with accuracy, than to count the stars in our own galaxy—that is, in the system of the Milky Way. Ten or fifteen years ago, a photographic chart of the heavens would be made; certain fractions of the whole considered for star count, and the number of stars in all the fractions added up to make the grand total. This figure was approximately fifteen hundred millions. Today, as Floyd Darrow points out in his interesting work, The New World of Physical Discovery, we are sure that there are about 30 times that number of stars in our galaxy—say forty billions of stars. This count includes the very faintest of stars, which we call stars of the twenty-first magnitude.
